In the Garden.

The following hints at this season of the year, may not be entirely unprofitible to some of our réaders:

Parsnips and Oyster plants or Salsify should be left in the ground, to be taken out as they may be wanted sify should be left in the ground, to be taken out as they may be wanted when the ground will admit of it; and if the frost should be severe and compel us to wait until february, they will be the better for it, and be at hand when vegetables are scarce. Celery should be secured before the ground is much frozen, for being nipped at the top, it will not keep near so well. Turnips should be buried directly in the ground where the soil is dry and at a grade which will allow the water to run off freely. A bunch of strawas thick as the arm should from the outside ecmmunicate with the turnips, to allow the escape of confined air, as well as answer as a ready means of access to the esculents. the eyes of all men the great truth that no Government is so strong as a Repub and laid down in the ground, and covernment is so strong as a Repub lie, controlled, under his guidance, by an educated, moral and religious people. Given under my haid and the great seal washing of the rains, in the form of a double-pitch roof, each row forming a continuous little mound. In no way will the raspberry be so certain of protection against the coldest weather, and come out in the spring in so. er, and come out in the spring in so fine a condition. All except the native varieties should be thus served, Grand Jurors, Dec. 2crm, 1865 and it will increase the productive capacities of even them.

The Catawissa, where two crops are desired, should by all means be laid down. When only one (the late) crop is desired, the wood should be removed close to the ground the latter part of this month, and slightly covered with manure.—Ger. Tel.

Winter Care of Cattle,

How many farmers there are who, towards the close of winter, complain of being short of fodder and are com-pelled to purchase hay at high prices to carry their stock until pasture time. I know from experience what this is and find it does not pay.

There are two causes and also two remedies for this state of things, viz:

Come then ye people whom He hath shared to horse-stable manure is to be preferred, and not too thickly applied, and to be very lightly raked off in the spring. Generally it settles or is beaten pretty well down by the winter storms, and much of it ought to remain, to act as mulching to the plants and protect the berries from the dirt when ripening.

There are two causes and also two remedies for this state of things, viz: Too heavy a stock and too wasteful feeding. For the former the remedy is obvious; for the latter, a great many farmers have not yet discovered a preventive; but go on in the Jdd way of feeding in common square racks in the yard. either cornfolder, straw or hay. Here is where the loss occurs, and did every farmer know the great gain there would be in cuttiag up everything he feeds, instead of feeding it whole, there would be no more complaints of "short fodder." I have tried it and find that I can winter ten head of cattle on cut fodder now, where I only wintered five head last year, and what is more, keep them in better order! I use a fodder-ceutter, (worked by hand or large the state of things, viz:

be no more complaints of "short fodder." I have tried it and find that I can winterten head of cattle on cut fodder now, where I only wintered five head last year, and what is more, keep them in better order! I use a fodder-cutter, (worked by hand or horse as the case may be,) and feed in the yard in troughs six feet long, eighteen inches deep and two feet wide at the top, soping to one foot at the bottom. My cuttle eat it upclean—hard buts, stocks and all! and one ordinary bundle of fodder—such as would be generally given to a steer at one meal—lasts an animal a whole day

Another advantage is, my manure is all short, easily handled in the spring when I heave it up under the sheds, and I am not bothered by the long compatals, all through it. Cattle prefer their fodder cut, and will eat it more quietly.

The same saving may be accomplished in the stable, by cutting the hay fed to the horses, cows, &c. They soon learn to like it better than long hay, and then they can waste none.

Let every farmer who has not tried it, and who has been worried to know how to get his cattle through the winter rightly without buying hay, try this plan, and if he does it right, he will never regret the outlay for the cutter. My saving of fodder in one winter will I think pay for my cutter.

The Southern papers complain to support the cutter. My saving of fodder in one winter will I think pay for my cutter.

Cannot some of the rest of our farmers, who have tried it, give us their experience for the benefit of the hundreds who have not?
