Brief Notes of Useful Things; Brief Notes of Useful Things;

Weeds.—Be careful to gather all the tromblesome weeds on your farm or garden before they are in blossom,
and throw them into large piles so that they may ferment and decay,
apidly, and form a very rich manure.
If the weeds should already have run to seeds, your gathering of the weeds
when they are wet or well covered with dew will prevent their seeds from falling out. It is better to spend a day or two at this work at the proper season than to spend weeks in proper season than to spend weeks in the ensuing sease; to keep down and destrey with the hoe and harrow those weeds that must, otherwise, spring from such ripened and seat

Pruning.—We are obliged to accept pruning, the cutting off of large limbs, as one of the operations that must be done. This and the next are the months in which to do it, as are the months in which to do it, as now in the growing season the wounds will heal over "kindly." Never cut a limb from a tree unless something is to be gained by it. Indiscriminate hacking, merely because it is the pruning season, is not to be commended. If the head is too crowded; and there is not room for the light and air, thin it; if one branch grows so near another as to chafe it, take it out; if the tree is disposed to grow one-sided, balance it. Use a saw with a wide "set," never an ax, tho sometimes a heavy chisel, driven up from below, will prove efficient.—
Leave a smooth cut, by paring carefully with a knife or chisel if need be. The wound will heal over all the better if covered from the air.—
The old solution of shellac in alcohol is an excellent application, but the is an excellent application, but the price of materials is too high to allow of their general use, and grafting wax, applied warm with a brush, is a very useful substitute. One part tal-low, two of wax, four of rosin, melt-ed together and applied while warm, will answer the purpose. The com-position may be made harder or softby altering the proportion of tal-

Grape Mildew Prevented .- Agen tleman who has visited the experi-ment grounds at Washington, informs s that some experiments for preventing the mildew of the grape, by erecting a cheap roof over them, seemed to answer the purpose perfectly. The roof, he states, may be simply a board sixteen inches wide, railed to the posts. On a hundred nailed to the pests. On a hundred varieties treated in this way, not any mildew was seen; while all the rest in the same yard were entirely ruined. Further experiments are necessary.—Country Gentleman.

To Keep Cream Sweet.—A good deal depends upon the proper management of the cream, if the churning does not take place every day, as it ough, to where the dairy is large enough to warrant it. If it is to be the quantity is sufficient to make up a churning, put it into a stone jar, in a cool place, and when fresh cream is added, let it be thorapped to the cool of the oughly stirred in, and a very little will be found al fine salt added. In this way it may ily use. Also be kept sweet several days.

Cattle.—It can never be too much impressed upon the minds of agriculturists, that with dung there is no corn—without cattle there is no dung. Every means should, therefore, be used to encourage the breeding and feeding of cattle, and none can be more effectual than to show that the profits of a farm are always proportioned to the number of cattle kept, and the abundance of food prepared for them.

The First Grape Grower.—The earliest account of the cultivation of the vine is found in Genesis ix, 20:
—"And Noah began to be a husbandman and planted a vineyard."
We are not informed as to the kind or quality of the grapes he planted, but we have abundant testimony that they made good wine in which the alcoholic element was amply develop-ed, as Noah's own testing of its qual-ities showed. The country in which Noah resided is supposed to be Armenia, a land still famed for its grapes and wine.

To Dry Cherries .- Having stoned the desired quantity of good cherries, put a pound and a quarter of fine su-gar to every pound; beat and sift over the cherries, and let them stand over the cherries, and let them stand all night. Take them out of the sugar, and to every pound of sugar put two spoonfulls of water. Boil and skim it well, and then put in the cherries; boil the sugar over them, and to every pound of syrup put a half pound more sugar; boil it till it is a little thicker, then put in the cherries, and let them boil gently. The next day strain them, put them in a stove and turn them every day until they are dry.

To Clean Knives .- I find that takro Cteam Ancees.—I find that taking one-half of a raw potato and dip that in brick-dust and apply it to knives, has an excellent effect in brightening them—a desideratum to all housekeepers and families certainly most devoutly to be wished:

Bone Manure .- If bones are broken into pieces and mixed up into heaps with some saw-dust, and kept moist with urine or other strong leaching waters of a dung yard, they will ferment and soften so as to be easily crushed into good bone manure. SPRING & SUMMER
