N. Y. Tribune on the Situation. [From the New York Times, Soptember 20.] Nothing has contributed more, (and very many things has contributed much.) for the president googlast two rand sup-port from the just and liberal policy of the President toward the South, than the action of those who claim to be his friends in this respect. It has proved, indeed, as General Grant styles it, "a misfortune for the President," and we may add, tor the Government throughout the war, who made himself utterly obnoxious to the loyal men who were struggling to age the nation; and his election, by the defeat of a galant soldier who fought with heroism and ho.or for the overthrow of the rebellion, is held essential to the bindeation of the President's policy.— The same thing is true, perhaps, in a less conspicuous degree, in mominations for members of Congress and for State officers of various grades throughout the country.
