Salt and Cold Water for Swine.
We do not know the source of the following remarks upon the subject which heads this piece, but we regard the information it contains as valuable, both as regards the administering of salt to fattening swine, and the providing of pure water for them, not merely in hot weather, but at all seasons.

It is not a common practice, we think, to give salt to swine occasionally, while every farmer would consider it a prime duty to offer it to his neat stock, horses and sheep, as often as once a week. To be sure the swine get a little compared with the amount given to other animals. In proportion to their weight, why do they not need as much salt as the other stock on the farm? We find an article giving the reasons of the papers upon the use of salt for fattening swine. The writer states that he "selected two pairs of barrow hogs weighing 200 each. One pair received, with their daily allowance of food, two ounces of salt; the other, similarly fed, none. In the course of a week it was easily seen that the salted pair had a much stronger appetite than the others, and after a fortnight it was increased to two ounces apiece. After four months the weight of the salted hogs was 356 pounds, while that of the unsalted, five weeks later, reached only 300 pounds. The experiment was repeated with almost precisely the same results."

If such should prove to be the general result, most farmers have not gained all the good advantages they might have done from the food fed out. From the example cited there is no indication that the salt excited a morbid appetite, and produced unnatural flesh and fat. Of course a sound judgment must be exercised in the use of salt, as well as of grain or any other food. Another neglect of swine—and sometimes it must be a cruel one—is that of not giving them a plentiful supply of cold water. Why it is supposed that the hog should not need water as well as the cow and sheep, is more than we can tell. They do require it. When water is not given them, although fed with swill, they will drink heartily of the water collected in the yard or barn-cellar after visiting their trough several times, and finding it empty and dry. Nothing is more grateful to them in a hot day than a bucket of cold water, drank from a clean, sweet trough. We trust that farmers will give attention to the matter, and ascertain for themselves whether our suggestions are valuable or not.

Planting Trees in the Fall.

We find that transplanting fruit trees in the fall is preferred by many, so far as it relates to apples and cherries. For pears and small fruits spring is better. Our own experience would make the locality, rather than the season, the guide in making the selection. In the uplands or other lands of a naturally dry, silicious nature, we should choose autumn; but in moist, heavy or argillaceous soils, spring is undoubtedly the best, without reference to the variety of the fruit. And we should adopt this course whether in regard to shade or fruit trees—always excepting the evergreens, which we do not think do nearly so well in fall as spring.

The best time to transplant in the fall is as soon as the trees are done growing, which can be determined by the change of the leaf. By this early operation the roots have time to seize upon the soil before winter sets in and the tree is thus ready for an early start in the spring, and also better prepared to stand the severities of winter. Large trees, especially, should be transplanted very early, or not until the ground is frozen hard.

GIBLET SOUP.—The giblets must be well cleaned and singed; put them into some gristle or gravy broth, with shallots chopped very fine. Great care must be taken to keep the stock skimmed; when properly stewed, put in a wingless of Madeira, salt pepper, and mace, sifted fine, and a little lemon acid. When the richness of the wine and lemon are gone so that no flavor predominates, pour it into a tureen and serve hot to table.

A SWISS SOUP.—Boil three pounds of potatoes, mash them well, and add slowly some good broth, sufficient for the tureen. Let these boil together, then add spinach, a little parsley, lemon thyme and sage, all chopped very fine. Boil altogether five minutes; pepper and salt to taste. Just before taking it off the fire to serve add two well beaten eggs.

BAKED APPLE PUDDING.—Two ounces of butter, quarter pound pulverized white sugar, quarter pound boiled apples, the yolk of three eggs, the white of two eggs, the rind and juice of one lemon; mix the whole well together, and bake in a puff paste one hour.

BOSTON GINGERBREAD.—One pound of butter, one pound sugar, six eggs one gill of cold water, one teaspoon soda, one quart of fruit-citron and raisins.

DROP CAKE OR BREAKFAST.—Half pint of milk, four eggs, one pound flour, and add a little salt.

APPLE CAKE.—Two cups of steamed dried apples boiled in two cups of molasses. Drain off the molasses, add two eggs, two teaspoons of soda, four cups of flour, one cup of butter, one cup sour milk. Spice of all kinds. Then add the apple, (which was drained as above). The apples should be soaked the night before stewing for the cake.

It is very gratifying to see this, or any other medicine, "It is not always so easy to find a medicine so readily gratifying to the Proprietor of this medicine, that will be declared to the public that this is a most wonderful and effective specific for Humors, as stated above, he has abundant proof of its efficacy in his statement. For fifteen years and more, he has been manufacturing and selling, and every year has increased the sale of his medicine, and he has received many testimonials from all parts of the country, and he has been in New Hampshire, where it originated, no remedy for Humors is so highly prized. An eminent physician (now a surgeon) when presented with this medicine, purchased between fifty and sixty gallons of it during seven or eight years, and used it in his practice. He has since then ordered it for the Hospital where he was stationed. Other physicians have ordered it, and have used it with great success. When the proprietor lived in New Hampshire, at Goffstown Center, for the space of thirty or forty miles around, and in Manchester particularly, the Humor Doctor was well known and highly valued for the numerous and wonderful cures it effected. Though not so generally known, it is still in great demand, and quantity exhausted, and purchasers had to wait for more to come. In the year 1856, he was cured of a Rheumatism, or carbuncle, those ugly, painful ulcers, which he had for several years. He was cured by the Humor Doctor, and he has since used it with great success. For the sake of showing what is thought of it, a few testimonials are here inserted.

Poland's Humor Doctor, and I am very happy to state that all my boils were cured, and my health was restored by using Dr. Poland's Humor Doctor. I have since used it with great success.
