> JOHN ROWE. WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

FOR SUBVEYOR DENERAL,

The Gazette does not like our strictures last week upon the Republican party for its participation in the Massachusetts amendment, disfranchising the adopted citizens of that State, while a greasy negro from Virginia is at once admitted to all the rights and immunities of citisenship. To tell the truth we did not expect it would, but we scarcely looked for such a disingenous attempt from that source to shift the responsibility from the shoulders of that party. The audacity of the thing challenges our admiration. If the republican party of Massachusetts had not originated the amendment-if Gov. Banks, the republican Governor of Massachusetts, had not recommended it to the Legislature of 1858, and again to the Legislature of 1859-if the Legislatures of 1858 and 1859, both overwhelmingly republican, had not passed it by a two-thirds vote, and this against the protest of every democratic member-if in the State the republicans had not an overwhelming majority of the popular voteif any one of these propositions was not true, some little part of the responsibility of the proscriptive amendment might possibly be cast upon some other shoulders than those of the republicans. But every one of these propositions is strictly and undeniably true. And in addition thereto, the reader should remember that the Legislature of 1858 contained a large republican majority. This majority th party cincus, agreed upon the amendment as a party measure and passed it through the Legislature as such. Again, the Legislature of 1859 contained a large republican majority. That majority, inpurty caucus, agreed upon the amendment as a party measure and passed it through the Legislature as such., It was the adherence to this amendknow-nothings to disband. There is now no distinctive know-nothing organization in Massachusetts; it has melted into republicanism. The attempt, therefore, to cast the responsibility of this measure upon other shoulders is a piece of political impudence and effrontery that has no parallel within our observation. Gov. Banks, a Republican, recommended the amendment to the Legislature of 1858 in the following words. We quote from his annual mes-

The constitution of the United States confers upon Congress the power to invest persons with the attributes of citizenship, but it leaves to each State the right to determine what persons shall become voters. Recent constitutional amendments and legislative opinions repeatedly expressed which have not yet ripened into statutory or constitutional enactments, indicate that the qualifications of voters is a subject of deep and general interest. There can be no object of higher importance than that of determining upon what conditions the what legislative safeguards are necessary to of "political dirt" to obtain and retain maintain the purity of elections and to pro-tect the rights of American citizens. I shall cheerfully concur with you in such measures as you may judge expedient for this

Gov. Banks, still a Republican, recommended the amendment to the Legislature of 1859 in the following words. We quote from his message of that year:

Gov. Banks threw all his official and per sonal influence in favor of the adoption of the amendment by the people; and Abbott Lawrence, perhaps the most influential republican in the State, actually appeared at the polls as a vote distributor for the amendment. Why this change? The reason is plain. The James family was then holding their hats, like a parcel of medicants before a church door, beseaching the President to throw in a handful of official coin, in the shape of the office of Surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia, or any thing else that was handy and would pay. it was only after repeated neglects to provide pap and provender for the "family' that the "family" discovered the iniquity of the President's views on territorial affairs. It was only when the President refused to mend the rent in "Joseph's" coatwhich his encounter with Scorizan had left open to the wind, that the Ledger became all at once impressed with the sublime beauties of the profession of a "Kansas shrieker." He was a German and murdered his wife to get her out of the way in his infatuation for a servant girl with whom he had maintained criminal intercourse before and after his arrival in America.-In the case of Evans a powerful effort was made to induce Gov. She was born in a soldier's barracks, and educated as a 'Soldier's Daughter.' This was a case, on both sides, of love at first sight. Some bloodthirsty brothers, however, have sworn o bar the marriage, and the young lady is closely watched; but there is no doubt of the "Benecia Boy" and the "Military Star" being married, in spite of all these pugilistic displays by her Porkopolis admirers,

How will the "Opposition" of the North relish the doctrine of the "opposition" of the South. What will they do now that their candidate has endorsed the "swindle?"

ATTRAPTED CHLOROFORM ROBBET IN THE CARS.—A desperate attempt was made to rob the United States Express Company, going west, on the Erie train, near Por Jarvis, on Wednesday evening last. The robber, who is supposed to have gone on board the train at Jersey City, secreted himself in the Express Company's crate, posed to be Mr. Covert, the Expresss Messenger, but who was, in fact, Mr. Keck, of Cincinnati, the United States Mail Agent chloroform to the nose of the agent so bunglingly as to swaken him, when he demanded the robber's business. The latter drew a revolver and threatened to shoot the principle, and is entirely a subject for the agent, who wrenched the pistol from the hand of the ruffian, and gave him such a beating that he begged for his life.

All this time the train was in rapid mo tion, and Mr. Keck fearing the scoundre might have accomplices, pulled the bell rope in the hope that some one might come o his assistance. The engineer slacked the train, when the desperado, in spite of all Keck's efforts, opened the sliding door of the car, jumped out and made his es cape, with a bare and very severely bruised head. HORRIBLE MURDER.-A murder was committed in the town of Charlotte, Chautauque county, N. Y., on Sunday last. The victim was a young man named Cornelius Lynch, son of Mr. John Lynch, formerly of Sheridan. The murderer is also a young man, named Martin Battles, son of James Battles. The parties resided about 3 miles from Sinclearville, near the Kent road .--The circumstances of the murder, as we learn them, are as follows: The young men resided in the same house, îly, to whom both the young men were partial. On Saturday evening, the parties proposed to visit Sinclearville, and the girl

Battles, on being interrogated. said that Lynch had received the injuries by accidentally falling from the scaffold. Whether the victim had received his injuries on Saturday night, or in the morning is not known. Battles started across the lots for a physician who lived on an other road. Subsequently a pitchfork was found near his track, the fork and ferule of which had been newly broken from the handle; a stone was also found near by covered with blood and hair. Young Lynch expired on Sunday evening at 11 o'clock, remaining unconscious till his death.—

We advise all young men and some old ones we know of—to keep away from Amity township, Berks Co. There is no real "amity" about it. A young man, who has an appreciation of good things, kinsed a beautiful girl in that township the other day, and the young creature told her cross old pa, who prosected the young man and had him fined $5. It is true, the girl said she didn't want him to, but wno believes that? She didn't think her father would be so cruel. As a delightful report during the summer smooths, the Ohio White Sulphur springs have no rital in the West, and that few in the United States. The location is peculiarly healthy, the hototo here is a rapid, rocky stream; the "Cliff Limestone," a formation hundreds of feet in thickness, through which the river cuts its way, is creezy—where either at or near the surface; the grounds of the estate are beautifully undulated, and interspersed with numerium ravines which carry off all the superfisions water, thus rendering the soil dry and the atmosphere free from that bundidy so prejudicial to health; these circumstances, taken in connection with the altitude of the place, shoul 1,000 feet above the level of the ocean, make the locality as free from malarions influences as a mountain region.

The Spring property consists of 320 acres of land, one hundred of which is covered by one of the most beautiful groves in Ohio. This woodland is handsomely laid off into walks and drives, one of the latter being two miles in extent.
