WOLFGANG: 🥕 THE WRECKER'S BEACON.

CHAPTER 1.

BEFORE THE GALE. The good ship PATHFINDER, of New York. and bound for Copenhagen, had entered the North Sea, having left the Straits of flover two days behind. The commander of the ship was a young hagen, and her captain was dring the man, not over eight-and-twenty, and his could find no one to take his place but name was Maurice Lesten. He stood by met and he asked me to go. I could not the taffrail, gazing off upon the horizon to the eastward, ever anon raising his hand ried first. Mr. Thornton shook his head. above his head to feel if there was any wind and said not. But he had another plan stirring, and as often casting his eye aloft which he said would be better. He had to see how the canvas hung. As he stood been planning to visit Copenhagen, where thus his mate approached, and spoke to he had two brothers in business—they were

"What d'ye think of this, Capt'n ?", "I think we're in for a storm, sir," the master replied. "And I tell you what it is, Griffin," after sweeping the horizon know how to make things blow." "Then you think we'll have a hard one?"

said Griffin. "Aye," answered the captain, with almost a shudder, "I feel it in my bones." In the meantime Captain Lester had been watching the sea and sky as before. and he fancied that the signs of the storm were growing more and more pulpalde ev ery moment. The sun was going down in learn nothing there. Next I went to I on a thick bank, giving to the whole western don, and there I learned enough to issue horizon & dull, purplish ted, bloody nue with here and there spots of a darker tingelike openings, through the fiery cloud, looking upon a fearful blackness behind there?" said the captain, raising his finger months in searching after the lost ones towards the point where the sin was set-spoke of it, too. Seven o'clock came and went. Eight o'clock came, and the first watch was set. "Bon't go below," said the captum, as the men of the last dog-watch left their stations, "This calm can't last a great while. You had better batten down the hatches now, while there is nothing else to do, for I am sure there will be need of having them close before the coming of another day."

"Ayer" returned Griffin, "I have been watching those dark places." And others noticed the same thing, and heart."

The men had had no thoughts of going below, for they could see and feel; and they were not wholly ignorant of what was coming, so they went at work and secured the hatches with thick ternaulins; and when this was done those who had no par-ticular station collected about the school Another hour passed away and knother. Ten o'clock came, and still not a breath The slip lay upon the water like a dead

It was a putt of wind, and a light flying spray; or, perhaps it was a spit of rain.—At all events, the puff was felt; and the drops of water fell upon other checks than Maurice Lester's; and other cars than his heard the dull moaning which came over the dark waters. So other bodies quivered beneath the shock of the storm giant when he came in his might.

Aye-the storm had come. It come with wind and rain, and with an angry heaving of the sea. It came with a darkness like Erebus, and with the voice of thunder .-

ward, which caused him to catch his west as quickly as possible. As soon as the flood had gone from the deck, and the vessel had struggled up from the shock, he looked into his companion's face, and said, in a | Jack to his death that the const sharks might voice made tremulous by deeper emotion | pick his bones." than he had before manifested:

"Griffin, I have something upon my mind more than you know; and I am anxious to communicate it, too I must tell it now, for I have a strange torelooding rocks with a crash that sounded high above the of coming ill. Something is to happen that will bear great calamity to some of us. I am not croaking- Tam only reading what the Unseen has written in my soul. How ever, you shall hear my story. You have heard that my parents were both lost at

"Yes," said the mate. "And perhaps you knew that they were lost in this sea?"

"I have heard so, sir." "Aye—so it was. I was a boy then.— They were on their way to Copenhagen, as we should be now. My father commanded the ship-she was called the "Clara Jane." She was named for my mother, and she was a staunch, noble craft. I was at school then, in Troy; and when I knew that my parents were dead I was well nigh mad with grief. I functed then, in my first hours of orphanage, that my heart would break; and, I think such would have been the case if they had kept me at school.-But some of those who cared for me came to see me, and it was finally arranged that I should go to sea. And I prospered prospered so well that, when I was twenty that they gave me command of a column.

DENTAL NOTICE.

T the urgent request of the citizens of this place, I have determined to locate perma-ally in this city, for the purpose of PRACTISING MY PROFESSION, And shall open an office in STERRETT'S BLOCK, North East Cereor of the Park, where I shall be happy to wait on those standing in meet of DENTAL OF RATIONS. I need only refer to work I have already lone here, as a guarantice of my profession and skill in my profession.

From one to an entire sett. Particular attention paid to first dentition. All operations existedly performed and averanted. The Latest and Best Improvements IN DENTISTRY Rubber and Gutta Percha instead of Gold and Silver. To those who have Mestle Plates that will not fit by atmospheric pressure, this discovery diera a certain retief, for the kubber Plates will fit. For Claspart is the best material yet edired, because it will not wear the natural teeth. Lam prepared to construct such work for all who wish to use it, and make this fair offer, that if the Rubber fails to do all that can be reasonably asked or it when fairly tried, I will replace it with todo or either and charge only the difference to price CONTINUOUS GUM WORK. CONTINUOUS GUM WORK.

Which has established a new era in dentistry—combining the new and beautiful, the durable and unsurgassable in the dental art, to which be callespecial attention—presents advantages over all other modes, allowing no seems or spaces for the accumulation of food, giving the month a perfectly natural expression, to the breath a natural and pleasant sent, while immistering to the strength of the voice and general control of the subject to the respect to the property of the strength of the voice and general control of the subject.
