"Peace on earth , good will to men." Softly, reverently, John Meredith's voice lingered over the word- 11 was Christmas day, bright, cold, but most beautiful. The little grand children sat by their thought-ful parents. The presents were laid aside at this hour of family devotion. In the centre of the room stood a great Christmas tree, covered with tapers, and from which hung still other gifts, enclosed for the evening's enjoyment. The lips of John Meredith were unsealed.

"All! all! O take me up stairs; take and words of wisdom flowed therefrom as they never had before. Never to the listeners had the peace of God seemed so or the peace of our seemed so worthy of possession; never had the love of Christ appeared so grand, so overwhel-ming, especially towards the poor, the mis-erable, and the lost. After prayers Mrs. Meredith beckoned her children, and they "Heaven bless you for those words. O! followed her into the next room. There hear you say it." was Mary, Ellen and George. Mary was very young; a sweet, blue-eved creature. George was manly, broad shouldered, broad man, solemnly, and, as he spoke, he was

A TERRIBLE TALE- LOST AND FROMEN TO Minnesotian and Times, of the 10th inst., extracts from Nor Wester, published at the lied River sottlements, a sad narrative. A party, including Mr. Mackensie, started from Georgetown, at the mouth of the Buffalo River, to cross the prairie to Fort Lar-ry. They started December 23d, taking mules. The latter gave out in three days, mules. The latter gave out in three days, distance only half done and provisions get-ting short. Here they were hopeless, in the heart of a vast, dreary, unknown prai-NUMBER 39. With a low groan, she turned her face With a low groan, she turned her face to the door and sank upon her knees. He reach Pembins, and send back succor.ed words so different from his straight-for-ward manly writing, would not these tell her that the heart, as well as the hund, said—Come ?" cold December night, so forlorn, so droop-ing, so shrinking from all human compas-sion, unmanned him. He moved a step forward and bending, cried out in a husky whisper. "Is it Martha?" "O! George," said the figure ; what a voice it was. What a revelation they em-bodied—those two words of deepest re-balance in the same evening. Mr. Mf. had not been there.

Two men were sent and they fell in with - Another pause, during which pride gave the remnant of the party shortly after some fierce throbs, and then his tenes lost midnight on Tuesday, and after supplying their urgent needs, went off in search of Mackenzie. Wednesday they came upon traces which brought them to his corpse. The out of the way; they must hate me." "God forbid !" said the young man, fer-vently and more tremulously; "none of us hate you, Martha; come, my sister." After leaving his companions, he seemed to have followed the trail for a consider-able distance, and then to have lost his way. After leaving his companions, he seemed way. Night came upon him, and, bewildered you must be better, holier than others to by the growing darkness and the drifting give such joy to a broken heart; you do snow, he made towards a clump of trees, nity me you do for the state of the snow he made towards a clump of trees, pity me; you do forgive me, only let me with the intention probably, of kindling a fire. If such was his object, he seemed "I pity and forgive you !" said the young to be unable to accomplish it ; and his beaten track showed that to keep himself conscious of a sweet rapture stealing into his soul, filling him with pure and Christhis soul, filling him with pure and Christ-like love for the forlorn, the wretched, the a circle. With the break of day, he again sinning. He took her hand now. It was the first time he had felt happiness that step that he took carrying further and further from the spot which he was strain ing every nerve to reach. Another weary day of fruitless travel was followed by a see ond night even more dreary than the first Again he had managed to stave off what he must have felt to have been the hour of his dissolution by long hours of ceaseless sctivity. A third day's journey brought him towards Lac des Roseaux. Here he attempted to run round as before. But the strength and courage which had hitherto sustained him, now forsook him. He dragged his tired footsteps through the loose snow towards a tree, from which he plucked a branch and hung thereon a shred of his tattered coat as a signal to mark his dismal resting place; he next tore off another branch of the same tree, which he placed as a pillow for his cold bed and then aid upon it his weary head and died. His right hand was on his heart, and his left hung by his side, firmly holding a compass The body gave indications of having under gone great suffering. Some portions of it had been frozen and thawed many times in succession, before death intervened sud released it from further anguish.

When a man leaves home on business, it is always important he should have his wits about him; that the mind should be fresh and vigorous, the spirit lively, buoyant and cheerful. No man can say that it is thus with him after a night on a railroad car or on the shelf of a steamboat.

The first great receipt for sound, connect-ed, and refreshing sleep is physical exercise. Toil is the price of sleep. We caution parents, particularly, not to allow their children to be waked up of morning; let nature wake them up, she will not do it prematurely; but have a care that they go to bed at an early hour let it be earlier and earlier, until it is found that they wake up of themselves in full time to dress for breakfast. Being waked up early, and allowed to engage in difficult or any studies late and just before retiring. has given many a beautiful and promising child brain fever, or determined ordinary silments to the production of water on the brain.
