ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,) 111th Regt., P. V., Marchiloth, 1868.

Ma. Engron: The corner of camp, and hum of preparation, are indicative of a forward movement of the army. The grand army of the Potomac, so long the topic of political and conversational circles, is arousing from its comparative lethargy, and about to strike as did the lamented Perry, "we have met the enemy and they are ours." The discipline of icy chains, here everything warns of up-TOWNSHIP AND BOROUGH KLEUTIONS. Proaching spring. Schlaudecker, but 272 ap-pear on dress purnde. The bullets of the enemy and the diseases incident to acclimation, have made fearful havos. We miss many a cheerful countenance and brave heart, yet to fail strong in the Justice of our cales. Manfally we will endure the privations of another campaign, though but few, if any, will be left to tell the tale of our misfortunes. We offer ourselves a living sacrifica upon the altar of our sematry's good. If we are instru-mental in eradicating from the soil of North America, that germ of tyranny so luxuriantly nourished by the oppression of the black, our labor will be ended, and our mission accomplished. Samuel Wilcox, connected with the Quartermaster's department, died on the 15th inst : he was honest and diligent in business We offer our condolence to the sorrowing wife and orphan children. Capt. Braden, of North-East township, is missed by his company, and his absence is regretted by his regiment. Rumors of his death have reached camp, which, if true, we shall lament. The captain was a brave soldier, and always: found on his post of duty and danger. Most respectfully yours, Correspondence of the Observer. ANOTHER GREAT BATTLE. COMMEAUT, March 28, 1868. One of the greatest battles fought during the war took place on Saturday, March 21st, 1868, on the Craven Farm, about two miles west of "Hog Hill," in Conneaut tp., Erie Co., Pa The battle was fought between Gen. Scott, of Hog Hill," Commander-in-Chief of the Hogheads, or radical wing of the Republican party, and Gen. Dorman, of the Western Pa. Ken and tien. Dorman, or the western Ps. Sengres, Commander in-Chief of the conservative wing of the Republican party. The battle commenced by Gen. Scott making assaulting Gen. Dorman. Gen. Dorman then made Transces dash on Gen. Scott, completely elegrocaling or tisabling the right wing of the latter, After a few more scattering shots and assaulting disk. Scott made a hasty retreat to "Res alli," with his eyes filled with tears, these to Albion, and as seen as he could get indicated reinforcements he returned to the mean of abition. In the meantime, General Berman had fallen back a short distance some the State line, where he made a bold sind, General Scott and his posse pursued in the state line.
