REBEL PRISONERS .- Five hundred rebel prisoners passed through this city in a special train for the East, on Saturday afternoon last. A considerable crowd gathered at the depot to see them, and some amusing conversations took place. One of our citizens asked a rebel officer whether he didn't desire peace. 'Yes, sir," he replied, "and it can easily be had, if you only let us alone." "Can't see it," was the response. The rebels, as a general thing, were rather roughly clai, and many of them looked very little like soldiers. He left fond, doting parents, beloved brothers and sisters, and flattering prospects, all for his Country. When urged by those who idolised him, not to go, his answer was: "I consider it my duty to go, and I must!" He was a sincere and humble christian, a devoted patriot and soldier. He received his discharge on the day of his death. Nine long, weary days passed before the anxious friends at home heard of his untimely end. Then it was to hear that he was buried, but kindly cared for through his short illness by strangers. Strange hands smoothed his dying pillow, and closed his sightless eyes, and straightened that manly form in death, and buried him far, far away. From J. Senton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encycle-pedia of Riligious Encodedge. Aithough not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrest of their ingreshents and effects; I yet know of no sufficient leaves why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoostand's Genman Bittern, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Bhosmaher, Eq., for the removal of this prejudice by groper tasks, and for encouragement to try thests, when salikring from great and long continued dobility. The use of three bettless of these littern, at the beginning of the present year, was fullowed by avident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and sensit vigor which I had not felt the six manths before, and had almost despaired of regulating if therefore thank God and my friend for directing me thouse of them.

From the Rev. JOSEPH H. RENNARD, Peder of the Truth Restid Church DR. JACKSON-DEAR SIR :- I have been frequently re-DR. JACKRON-DEAR SIR:—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with commendations of different kinds of facilities, but, regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases dealined; but with a clear proof in versions instances, and particularly in my own family, of the mechanics of Dr. Hookand's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for guneral debility of the system, and especially, for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail, but usually I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who safer from the above causes.

Yours very respectfully.
