County warrants for $300, issued to pay the bounties of volunteers, and payable in three months' time in County scrip, have been sold at 90 cents on the dollar. It strikes us, that at such a price, there is a chance for a considerable speculation. The family of the rebel General Lee, according to Richmond papers, is now living in two rented rooms, in the plainest way possible. The city of Richmond proposed to give him a house, but he declined to receive it, saying his family was comfortable, and the money could be expended to better advantage.

Mr. John W. Shannon, on Monday evening, resigned his position as Common was 195,000 tons. The amount shipped from Councilman for the 1st Ward, but the Counoil unanimously refused to receive it. Mr. B. is one of the most efficient members of Councils, and we trust, for the interest of the city, he will not persist in his determination to resign. The Pittsburgh Daily Post came to us and a good quality of paper could make it. The Post is a favorite exchange, and we hail with pleasure any token of its prosperity. We recommend it to any of our readers wanting a reliable journal from the "smoky city."

About six hundred rebel prisoners passed through this city on Friday evening, for the East, where, we are informed, they intend entering the naval service of the Union. Several of our citizens had brief opportunities of conversing with them, and the general sentiment appeared to be that the rebellion of Washington, North Carolina, for copies of had nearly "played out." We hope their view of the matter may be correct.

The sole reason why the journals that you mention can be purchased cheaper than your county paper, is because they are made up out of dailies, and have so much greater circulation than any county paper can possibly obtain, that a few cents profit on each number makes a large aggregate.
