THE STATE CONVENTION.

We have seldom had the pleasure of witnessing a more harmonious assemblage, or one more enthusiastic in devotion to the principles which it had met to advance, or respectable in point of membership, than the State Convention, repre--senting the Democratic party of Pennsyl vania, which convened in Philadelphia, on Thursday, the 24th ultimo. The attendance was remarkably full, every disstrict and county in the State being repre sented, and many persons of mark being present as visitors. Among the members were some of the most prominent Democrats in the State, and the sentiment which pervaded the proceedings was of the kindest and most patriotic nature. In the list of delegates were a number whose names are "familiar as household words" to our readers, such as Wm. H. Witte, of Montgomery; Carrigan, McGrath, Hirst. Gilmore, and Miles, of Philadelphia; Galbraith, of Erie; J. Glancy Jones, of Berks; Piatt, of Wyoming, formerly Speaker of the Senate; Kerr and Mc-Calmont, of Venango; Lamberton, of Clarion; Sanderson, of Lancaster; Wallace, of Clearfield; and Schell, of Bedford; By far the larger portion of the members, though, were new men, fresh from the people, and representing more directly than usual their wishes. One remarkable feature of the Convention was its almost entire absence from wire-pulling, and the ordinary tricky tactics by which shrewd managers control the action of large bodies. The proceedings generally sprung from the spontaneous wishes of the menibers, and in no respect was this fact more marked than in the election of officers and delegates to the National Convention. Whatever may have been charged against previous assemblages of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania, it resentative of the Democratic masses of the State.

The place of meeting was in National Guards Hall, a large edifice used for local military purposes, on Race street, in convenient proximity to the large Hotels, and other places of public resort. The Hall is not as well suited for gatherings of the sort as that of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, where the State Conventions ordinarily meet, but the thoughtfulness and kindness of our Philadelphia friends had made it as agreeable as possible. A large space arranged with seats had been fenced off for the delegates, leaving a still larger one, which was constantly crowded with interested faces, for spectators. Above the President's chair. and in various parts of the Hall, waved the national banner, and during the proceedings an immense flag floated from the staff on the top of the building.

The Convention was called to order, according to custom, by the Chairman of the State Central Committee, Col. Chas. J. Biddle, of Philadelphia. This gentleman will be remembered as having been the first commander of the celebrated Bucktail regiment, which he led into several important actions. While he was in service in the field, he was elected to Congress from one of the districts of Philadelphia, where he distinguished himself for ability, and daring defence of Union principles. In personal appearance he is entirely different from what our imagination had pictured him. He is quite small and slender, wears his coat closely buttoned around him, has a sharp, rale face, and with the exception of a remarkably keen, piercing eye, possesses no feature that would lead one to suppose him the intrepid hero and able man that he really

The Convention elected as its temporary Chairman, Hon. Thomas B. Searight. of Fayette county, a representative in the present Legislature. We were rather agreeably disappointed with this gentleman, who proved himself a very excellent speaker, and a good presiding officer. His remarks were brief and pointed, and did him great credit. We copy them in full from the Philadelphia Age, which gave a complete phonographic report of the proceedings:

REMARKS OF THOMAS B. SEARIGHT. GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I am at a loss to find words that would be adequate for the expression of my gratitude to you for the high honor you have con-ferred upon me. I am one of those who believe that the maintenance of the Constitution and the restoration of our Union depend upon the application of Democratic principles in the administration of the Government [applause]; therefore, to be called upon to preside over the delibe-rations of a Democratic State Convention

I esteem one of the highest honors that can be conferred upon any citizen. My obligations, gentlemen, are greatly in-creased when I reflect that in assigning me this position you have passed by a many others who are more worthy of 11 and better qualified to discharge the duties it imposes.

But, gentlemen, you will pardon me if I transgress upon your time for a moment longer. It has been solemnly announced by a Senator of the United States, high in the confidence of the National Administration, that the liberties of the people are more in danger from the unholy schemes and poculations of the cormorants who hang about the public treasury, than from the armed enemies of the Union. [Great applause.] In addition to this startling disclosure, made by one whe was authorized to speak for the mea in power, it is an undeniable fact that the National Adan undeniable lact that the National Administration has ruthlessly overthrown all the wise safeguards of the Constitution, and broken down all the sacred bulwarks ponents, that this is not the time for, and that the Democratic party, as a party, should not encourage the holding of political conventions. I hold that in view of the events that are every day transpiring, it is the imperative duty of the people to meet together, to take counsel for the safety of the country and themselves. [Applause.] I trust that under Providence the measures to be inaugurated here to day by this Convention will be crowned with ultimate success. And although the future prosperity of our country seems beset with doubt and darkness, I ardently hope that we may all live to again enjoy the immeasurable blessings of the Constitution as it is, and the Union as it was. [Long continued applause.]

I again thank you, gentlemen, for the high honor which you have been pleased to confer upon me. After the election of three secretaries, the list of delegates was called over, and from Warren county not being present, Gen. J. Y. James volunteered to take his place and was accepted by the Convention. debate sprung up on the subject of choosing a permanent Chairman. Judge Mcdistrict to select permanent officers. Another gentleman amended the motion that the Convention vote for Chairman direct, and the subject was discussed at and Kerr were the leaders in the opposition to Judge McCalmout's motion, and State Central Committee. their arguments had great weight, for the decisive vote of 76 to 48.

Nominations for permanent President were then announced, and Messrs, Witte, Landerson, Hirst, McCalmout, Jones, Wallace, Galbraith and Kerk were named. all of whom declined except the two former. But one ballot was taken, in which Mr. Witte received 94, and Mr. Sanderson 31 votes. The former was escorted to the chair by Messrs, Sanderson, and Jones, of Greene, and in introducing him to the Convention. Mr. Sanderson, whose course throughout was gentlemanly and courteous to the fullest extent, took occasion to say that he was platform to the National Convention. highly gratified that the Convention had selected a gentleman of such distinguished abilities and whose course was so consistently Democratic as its presiding officer.

Mr. Witte is a gentleman whose record is probably as well known to the people of the State as any other man living within her limits. He has been a repretorial nomination. Defeated in each instance, he acquiecsed in the decision of can never be said with truth of this one, the majority with a grace and magnanimity age, and bids fair to attain a distinguished be an exaggeration, not imagining that that it was anything else than a true repthat entitle him to the highest honor. can fail to be attracted by, on first sight ver a great political convention.

> Mr. Sanderson, his manly rival, is the editor of the Lancaster Intelligencer, one of the oldest and most influential papers in the country. He is said to be the particular friend of Mr. Buchanan, and received most of his support from the immediate personal adherents of that gentleman. His appearance is that of a bland, kind-hearted and intelligent person -"one of the olden kind," who alas, have become too rare.

> The speech of Mr. Witte, on taking the chair, was an exceedingly strong and eloquent effort, and if the tumultuous cheers with which it was received, are to be taken as an indication, received the undivided endorsement of everybody present. We understand that it is to be written out in full, and as soon as received, we shall present it to our readers. The Convention, after a recess for dinner, proceeded to the selection of Committees on permanent organization and resolutions. The representatives from this section, on the former, were Messrs. Shellito, of Crawford, and James, of Warren; the writer of this article was selected as the member from this Senatorial district on the Committee on Resolutions. The Committee on organization soon made their report, which was unanimously adopted, Mr. White being chosen as the Vice-President from Erie county. These proceedings, briefly as we have condensed them, occupied the attention of the Convention until late in the afternoon, and it being understood that the Committee on Resolutions would not be ready to report for a considerable period. a general disposition was exhibited to adjourn until the next day. A delegate from Philadelphia, belonging to the Catholic Church, Mr. Samuel G. King, opposed this proposition in several strong and earnest speeches. He reminded the members that the succeeding day was a holy one in the calendar, one revered by the whole Christian community-Good Friday-and argued that it would outrage the feelings of many pious citizens if the sittings of the body were held on that occasion. His views were adopted by a couple other speakers, and finally accepted by the Convention, which agreed to finish up its business that night, or adjourn to Saturday.

On motion of Mr. Hirst, of Philadelphia, the following order of business was agreed upon:

That the Convention will proceed to nominate and elect by a viva voce vote: 1. The Chairman of the State Central Committee. 2. Two Senatorial candidates on the electoral ticket. 3. Four Delegates at large to the National Convention.

The Convention then took's recess, and the delegates from each Congressional district retired to select electors, reprewhich grand the liberties of the people.

These facts, gentlemen, are a sufficient reply to the common assertion of our opcided upon with perfect unanimity.

Messrs. C. L. Ward, William L. Hirst, William Bigler, Wm. H. Witte, and Wm. A. Wallace, were placed in nomination for Chairman of the State Central Committee Mr. Wallace, in a modest and neat speech, withdrew his and Gov. Bigler's names, and the balloting proceeded. At the close of the second ballot, Mr. Witte's name was withdrawn, and most of his friends uniting on Mr. Ward, that gentleman was chosen by a vote of 85 to 35 for Mr. Hirst.

The selection of Mr. Ward is in all respects a most fortunate one for the party. and creditable alike on the score of mental and personal character. Mr. Ward is a resident of Towards, Bradford county, with one exception only which was the very hot-bed of Abelitionism in Pennpromptly and courteously settled by the sylvania. Surrounded by fanaticism of parties, there were no contested seats- the most hateful sort, with every motive a feature that has probably never before of ambition enticing him towards the taken place in any convention for the other side, he has steadily maintained his last twenty five years. The representative consistency through trials and temptations which would have compelled any man of less firmness to falter. His abilities are of the highest type. His writings A good-natured, but somewhat disorderly are distinguished for a literary polish and pointedness which are seldom seen in political productions, and the addresses Calmont, of Wenango, proposed to selecta which will emanate from his pen during Committee of one from each Senatorial the campaign soon to open, we feel confident will take rank with the most celebrated documents that have appeared on public topics in this nation. The Committee on resolutions had Convention finally adopted them by the protracted session at the Merchants' Hotel, and did not report until late in the evening. Their proceedings exhibited an extensive diversity of opinion, but were none the less conciliatory and pleasant in consequence. A large and persevering peace element prevailed, which was principally confined to the members from the counties bordering upon the Maryland and Virginia line. Several gentlemen had lengthy sets of resolutions prepared but the Committee finally compromised on a motion to dismiss them all, and adopted the brief series printed in our last issue, transferring the subject of a

Every mention of the noble hero's name, from the beginning to the close of the proceedings, was the signal for warm and prolonged applause.

The nominees for Senatorial electors were Ex-Gov. Bigler, John L. Dawson. Robert Ewing, of Philadelphia, Robert L Johnson, of Cambria, Judge McCalmont, Vincent L. Bradford, Henry D. Foster, Richard Vaux, and Wm. A. Galbraith. Of these Messrs, Foster, Bigler, Galbraith, McCalmont and Dawson were withdrawn and on the first ballot Messrs. Johnson and Vaux were elected, having received nearly all the votes. The former is an eminent lawyer of Cambria county, a gentleman of fine personal appearance, the purest personal character, and good speaking qualities. We believe he has never held any office, or asked one, though residing in a county which is firmly Democratic, where he could obtain almost any public station he aspired to. Mr. Vaux is a distinguished Ex-Mayor of Philadelphia, and a person of wide-spread and well-deserved popularity. Both these centlemen were devoted friends of Judge Douglas in the campaign of 1860, as indeed were two-thirds of the electors, delegates and members of the State Committee.

The only remaining important business was the election of four Senatorial delegates to the Chicago Convention, and Gen. Geo. W. Cass, of Pittsburgh, Ex-Gov. Packer, of Carbon, Wm. V. McGrath, of Philadelphia, Gen. T. Jefferson Miles. Thos. J. Hemphill, and Alfred Gilmore. all of the same city, were placed in nomination. The understanding was that two should be taken from the Eastern and two from the Western part of the State. On the first ballot, Mesers, McGrath, Cass, Packer and Bigler were chosen-Mr. Galbraith having received the complimencited the support of any member, and was known to be already a representative delegate. The gentlemen elected are mostly so familiar to the people as to require no extended notice at our hands. Gov. Bigler has always been popular in this section, not only with the Democratic party but with many of the opposition.

He has several times been a conspicuous candidate for Governor, and would be an efficient man in any public position. Mr. Packer was formerly member of Congress, and Mr. McGrath has served as State Treasurer several terms, coming out of office with an unsullied name and an exalted reputation as a financier.

After the customary resolutions thanks, the Convention adjourned with hearty cheers for McClellan and the Union: The Philadelphia Club honored the members with an elegant entertainment after the close of the proceedings, which was largely attended by prominent gentlemen from every part of the State.

Abolition Bypocrisy. The Abolition leaders are incessant in their pretensions of affection for the soldiers, but we have all along argued, and repeatedly shown by undeniable facts, that their professions are hollow and hypocritical. They care no further for them than to obtain their votes, and believing BOOT & SHOE STORE their schemes to be so far perfected now as to secure that desirable result beyond any uncertainty, they no longer hesitate to exhibit their real disposition. An incident which happened a few days ago in the Senate at Harrisburg, may open the garden control workmen, and experiatedding by the senate of our galiant brethren in the ranks to the truth. "Mr. Hopkins, of Washthe Senate at Harrisburg, may open the ington county, offered a resolution requiring the proper committee to bring in a bill instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress to vote for a law providing for the payment of non-commissioned officers and privates in the service of the Government, in coin or its equivalent. This resolution, which was ably advocated by Senators Hopkins, Clymer, Wallace and Lamberton, was fiercely opposed by the Abolition leaders-Johnson, Lowry, Fleming and others-and de feated by a strict party vote-all the Democrats voting for it, and all the Abolitionists against it. In its place, they proposed a resolution, merely instructing the proper Committee "to inquire into the expediency of urging Congress to vote an increase of pay to our brave soldiers and sailors," which was finally passed unanimously-that being all the Abolition majority would allow-with an amendment added by Mr. Hopkins, (Democrat) that

> The Blinels Disturbance. As we suspected, says an exchange, the reported "copperhead" rising in Illinois turns out to have been a mere local quarrel between some soldiers and citizens of Coles county, Illinois. It seems a Democratic meeting was announced to be held at the county seat on a day when the court was in session, at which the Hon. Mr. Eden, the Congressman from that district, was to speak. There had been a bitter feeling between some soldiers and the Democrats, on account of outrages committed by the former. It was offensively announced beforehand by some soldiers that the meeting should not be held, and, in anticipation of trouble, the Democrats armed themselves. Upon Mr. Eden arriving at the town he saw how high the feeling was running, and, to prevent disturbance, wisely determined not to speak. A fight, however, was provoked by the soldiers, who were the first Mats. Rugs, Stair & Table Oil Clothe, aggressors, and a few persons were killed. and several wounded. The whole affair, however, was over in ten minutes time. From this circumstance came the extravagant reports of a "rising of copperheads" which have furnished the staple of Abolition slander for two weeks past. The troubles in the West have clearly sprung. from the malidious and disorderly teachings of the Administration and its supporters. -THE Republicans have elected their Bigler, William A. Galbraith, Hon. Asa ticket in Connecticut. We expected they would, and are not disappointed in the result. IT IS LESS COMPLICATED & A SIMPLER MACHINE. It is a well maderstood principle in Machanics the the least compilention and the least gearing in machinery, seesancy to susperve the purpose for which it is designated, the bett r. Ours is the only single-geared Mover move in the market, and it will need no argument to convince farmers that because of this fact, it will be less liable to get out of order, and more readily repaired if sacidantally broken.

Our Mover is better than any of its competitors for emother reasons: in the construction of rival Machines, their proprietors have found it necessary to gear them up to a high motion, to prevent "clogging." Herecofore those Machines laving the highest motion have been one of the worst difficulties to be overcome, and the higher the motion the less "clogging." By an improvement which we have made in our Mower, we prevent clogging, and reinia a low motion; our halfs making less thus fourtees revolutions to see of the drive wheel, which is less than two thirds of the motion is offer Machines. Hence they offer less resistance to the horses, and are more durable than those of a higher motion.

Our knife is placed on a iten with the axis of the drivewheel, which is found servicable in mowing on a knoll or in a guily; having a comparatively low motion it is less liable to break when "brought up" by a hidden stub or stone; and there, added to the fact that we use a limber entiting-bar, easile us to mow roughs meadows with prenter impanty than can be done with a y other Meyer.

Excepting the tongue, our Yachine is made wholly of irea and steel; hence is more darable than those made largely of wood, and therefore extain to abrick, swell and wear out. The "GENESEE VALLEY"

The operator is enabled to throw the shaft attached to the knife out and in gear at pleasure; and having a limber esting-bar, the knife can be folded up over the Machine, and beace it can be conveniently transported from field to field, and will occupy less storage room when shying is over.

The seat is attached by means of long steel springs so that elderly men and partial invalids are enabled to operate it; and its simplicity of gearing makes it more notesiase than double-geared machines.

It will be an advantage to farmers in Krie, Crawford and Ashtabula counties, and in vicinities contiguous to our manufactory, to buy machines made near home, so that, if any part should be accidentally broken, a new place could be more readily substituted.
