We are apt to be free with our jokes upon BRITISH GUBBOATS ON THE LANGE The telegram from Canada announcing that a feet of British gunboats were to leave for the northern lakes on the opening of navigation is thus explained: On the 28d of last Novem ber, Minister Adams, in pursuance of instructions from the President, informed the British authorities that this Government desired the termination of the treaty of 1817, which limited to each power the maval armament to be kept on the lakes during time of peace, and therefore gave the six months' notice which was required. During the last session of Congress, the House passed a resulution of the same purport; but it was not taken up in the Senate until last week, when a substitute for it was passed which legalises or ratifies the act of the President of November last. This substitute, of course, went tack to the House and is at the present mement before the Committee on Foreign Affairs. Great Britain, however, soting upon the President's notice, seems to be preparing its fleet of gunbast to send over after the six months' notice has expired. Of course, this Government will lead to the same as the preparing its fleet of gunbast to send over after the six months' notice has expired. Of course, this Government will lead to the same as the lead of the service of substitute and between the six months' notice has expired. Of course, this Government will same purport; but it was not taken up in the send over after the six months' notice has expired. Of course, this Government will take similar measures to increase its armament on the lakes, and thus prevent all raids on its commerce from Canada under the gover of rebel emissaries .- Lan Intelligencer.
