Dr. Tobias—Dear sir: I have been in the livery business for the last twenty years, and during that time have used all the various liniments and lotions of the day, but never have found an article equal to your Venetian Horse Liniment. I have fairly tested it on my horses in distemper, sprains, cuts, galls, swelling of the limbs, &c., as also for rheumatism on myself, and have always found it an invaluable remedy

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—They expel the poisons which threaten life. Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time it rents a few days of excess from this purgation, we make up fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process we expel further quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure, so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring back the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health. Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are diseased

UNIVERSAL MEDICINE.—By what we eat, by the air we breathe, or by the water we drink, we is made sick; or by fatigue, or from debility induced at last, because these effects end by producing impurity of blood. To regain health we must purify the blood, the organs of the stomach and bowels; these organs must be continued in the regular performance of that duty which nature has assigned them, and should there any impediment, to what does experience point?

It is a sure and speedy cure for sore throat, headache, toothache, chronic rheumatism, colic, croups and pain in the limbs. We advise every one to give it a trial. The expense is a mere trifle—25 cents—and we are confident no person will ever be without it. Every family should have a bottle in the house for use of sudden accidents, such as cuts, burns, scalds, &c. Its pain relieving qualities are miraculous. As for sprains, it has saved hundreds, we have the certificates to prove it.

President Lincoln's Favorite Poem.

We find the following poem in a mutilated form, in several of our exchanges. A friend, who admired and committed it to memory many years ago, supplies us with a perfect copy. The fourth stanza is omitted in the version given by Mr. Carpenter which is being extensively circulated

It was written by William Knox a Scotch clergyman, many years since.

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift, fleeting meteor, a fast flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passeth from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around and together be laid;
And the young and the old, and the low and the high,
Shall moulder to dust and together must lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved;
The mother that infant's affection who proved;
The husband that mother and infant who blessed,
Each, all, are away to their dwellings of rest.

The maid on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye,
Shone beauty and pleasure—her triumphs are by,
And the memory of those who loved her and praised,
Are alike from the minds of the living erased.

The hand of the king that the scepter hath borne;
The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn,
The eyes of the sage and the heart of the brave,
Are hidden and lost in the depths of the grave.

The peasant, whose lot was to sow and to reap;
The herdsman, who climbed with his goats up the steep;
The beggar, who wandered in search of his bread,
Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

The saint that enjoyed the communion of Heaven,
The sinner that dared to remain unforgiven,
The wise and the foolish, the guilty and just,
Have quietly mingled their bones with the dust.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or the weed
That withers away to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat the same tale that so oft has been told.

For we are the same things our fathers have been;
We see the same sights that our fathers have seen—
We drink the same stream and we view the same sun—
And run the same course our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think;
From the death we are shrinking from they too would shrink;
To the life we are clinging to they too would cling;
But it speeds from us all like a bird on the wing.

They loved, but their story we cannot unfold;
They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold;
They grieved, but no wail from their slumbers may come;
They joyed, but the voice of their gladness is dumb.

They died, aye! they died; we things that are now,
Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
Who make in their dwellings a transient abode,
Meet the changes they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yea! hope and despondence, and pleasure and pain,
Are mingled together like sunshine and rain:
And the smile and the tear, and the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath;
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud—
Oh why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

SHOWMAN IN TROUBLE.—On Monday evening of last week, a concert was given in Farrar Hall by a certain self-styled "Professor" Millar and lady, which was attended by perhaps a hundred and fifty or two hundred persons, of whom about half were what is known in fraternity parlance as "dead-heads." Accompanying the party, the bills announced as one of the great attractions of the show, Signor Blitz, jr., with his troupe of learned canary birds. It appears that previous to the performance a difficulty occurred between the "Professor" and the Signor, which came near ending in a knock down, but was quelled by Mr. Varney, who announced that he would tolerate no fights in the Hall, and that if they wanted a set-to, they had better adjourn to the street. The Signor claimed his pay, and alleged that he had received none for some time, and the Professor responded by declining to give it to him, for the very good reason that he "hadn't the funds." The Signor then "went into the dumps," refused to play, and took a back seat, and the "Professor" was obliged to exhibit the birds himself, a consequence of their being in strange they did not perform as well as usual.

On Tuesday morning, the Signor followed the "Professor" to the depot, and again asked for his pay, which was declined. He then demanded the birds, which the "Professor" refused, whereupon the Signor undertook to obtain possession of them by force. The Professor took to his heels, the Signor started after him, and up Peach street they flew at a break-neck pace, to the astonishment of the grown-up spectators and the intense glee of the juveniles. The Signor, in spite of the Professor's longer legs and advantage in start, soon proved himself the better nag. Finding that he would be overtaken, the Professor took out the four best trained birds and threw them against a house, killing them, and the cage being left open, the remaining birds, which were but partially educated, escaped. Thus by a signal stroke of the Professor's genius, or rather by an audacious proof of his malice, he converted what began as a first class comedy into a famous (bird) tragedy.

The Signor is not the only man who has been a victim of the Professor's dexterous tricks. He left his bill-poster and printer in the cruse agreeable position. The complaint appears to be a chronic one with him, for about four years ago, on his previous appearance in and departure from this city, he forgot to call and settle his bill at the OBSERVER office. Our experience with him leads us to believe that he developes the same traits in every place he visits, and we caution our cotemporaries to be on the lookout for the rascal.

The members of our court and bar, on Tuesday, passed a series of resolutions, denunciatory of the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, and expressing their approval of his course as a public man. A set of resolutions offered by Mr. DeCamp, of an exceedingly radical nature, were laid aside. The court then adjourned for the day, as a mark of respect to the murdered President's memory.

Spring is Coming.

Spring is coming—Spring is coming!
With her sunshine and her showers;
Heaven is ringing with the singing
Of the birds in brake and bower;
Buds are filling, leaves are swelling,
Flowers on prairie, land blossoms on tree,
All the earth, and air, and water,
Nature holds her jubilee.
Softly stealing comes a feeling
O'er my bosom tenderly;
Sweetly I ponder as I wander,
For my musings are of thee.

Spring is coming—Spring is coming!
With her mornings fresh and light,
With her noons of chequered glory,
Sky of blue and clouds of white;
Calm gray night falls, when the light mist,
From the star-bespangled sky,
While the splendor, pale and tender,
Of the young moon gleams on high!
Still at morn, at noon, at even,
Spring is full of joy to me,
For I ponder as I wander,
And my musings are of thee.

Still on thee my thoughts are dwelling
Whatsoever thy name may be,
Beautiful, beyond words telling,
Is thy presence unto me.
Morning's breaking finds thee waking
Wandering in the breezes light;
Noontide's glory mantles o'er thee
In a shower of sunny light;
Daylight dying leaves thee lying
In the silver twilight ray,
Stars look brightly on thee nightly
Till the coming of the day.

Everywhere and every minute
Feel I near thee, lovely one:
In the dove and in the linnet,
I can hear the joyous tone.
Bud and blooming mark the coming
Of thy feet o'er vale and hill;
And thy presence, with life's essence,
Makes the Prairie's heart to fill
Low before thee, I adore thee,
Love creative, thee I sing;
Now I meet thee, and I greet thee
By the holy name of Spring.

LOCAL CURRESPONDENCE.—A meeting of business men was held last month, at which a resolution was adopted, requesting the bankers to throw out all currency of State banks and circulate only National money. In accordance with their request the following notice has been taken:

The undersigned Banks and Bankers of Erie hereby give notice that on and after the 10th day of May next they will receive at par no other notes than those of the United States and of the national banks; that they will after that date pay out no other currency, either on checks, discounts or otherwise; and that they will send away for exchange all the State bank notes they may thereafter purchase.

M. SANFORD, Cashier 1st National Bank.
J. J. TOWN, " Keystone National Bank.
WM. C. CURRY, " 2d National Bank.
F. P. BAILEY, " Marine National Bank.

The result of this movement will be to drive out of circulation much of the present currency in use here, and to render greenbacks and National bank notes the main circulating medium. As we understand the measure, the bankers will not totally refuse to receive State money, but take it on deposit as usual, charging an exchange at the time it is placed in their hands. All checks will be cashed in National money without charge, and the State currency received will be sent home. In this way it is believed we will soon get rid of the pestilent trash that now circulates so extensively here

We understand that petitions are in circulation among our business men, asking for increased facilities for shipping freight upon the Philadelphia & Erie railroad. While we cordially admit the necessity for the improvement asked for, and are strong in the hope that the controllers of the road will grant the request without delay, we feel a regret to learn that the petitions, in some degree, reflect upon the business capacity of the Superintendent of this division, and the freight agent at this city. Our acquaintance with railroad gentlemen well qualified to judge of the matter, leads us to believe that there are in no way to blame for any delay or annoyance that persons doing business on the road may have been subjected to. Both of them are assiduous in their efforts to accommodate the public, and we have been informed of frequent instances in which they have placed themselves to personal inconvenience for the sake of helping the interests of shippers. We have been plain spoken in our opinion of the general management of the road, heretofore, and intend to write in the same independent spirit hereafter, but when we see any of its officers who appear to us to be endeavoring faithfully to perform their duty, unjustly blamed, we shall be no less ready to defend them than we would those of our most favorite organizations.

THE LAKE.—Our harbor is now almost clear of vessels, most of those belonging to the port of Erie, having started up the lake for cargoes, and but few having entered. We are informed by lake men that the prospects for the season are not encouraging. Freights are scarce, and the rates proportionately low. Less money will be made this year in the lake business than in any year for one since the war began.

Navigation is open to all the principal ports on Lake Erie excepting Buffalo, where the ice blockade still continues. The ice extends for some twenty or twenty five miles up the lake, and from present indications will not leave for two or three weeks. This fact is sufficient to show the importance of completing arrangements for the through trade of the Philadelphia and Erie railroad at as early a day as practicable. Had there been facilities at this point for receiving and forwarding freight for the East, our harbor business would have commenced in earnest two weeks ago.

The work of cleaning the streets was begun on Monday last, on the same plan as that of last summer.

A NEW STEAM CARRIAGE.—We have been shown, by Mr. Perry Dickson, the model of his patent Steam Carriage, and also the one now in process of construction by him in the new iron works of Mr. Chas Loverein. In Mr. Dickson's present effort, he has labored under many disadvantages in materials, &c., and has no doubt as to his being able to greatly improve the construction, and adapt the carriage to various uses—on common roads and in fields.

The great difficulty, as we learn from Mr. Dickson, in previous attempts of this kind, has been the mistaken idea that great weight was necessary in order to increase the traction, and the failure of the inventors to furnish a means by which the speed could be decreased, by which the wagon or carriage would be enabled to overcome inequalities and mud in the road. These objections Mr. Dickson has succeeded in overcoming, and the latter is accomplished by his "sliding fulcrum arrangement," which increases instantly the power by diminishing the speed, and at the same time any desired speed can be obtained which the road will warrant. He says of it himself: that "It is a travelling or stationary engine at the will of the operator, without connecting or disconnecting anything, and instantly changed from one to the other while the piston is in operation; the driving wheel can stand still while the engine runs; it can pump up the boiler any time while standing, or pump water from any creek or pond into the tank; draws its own wood, and is generally independent."

The carriage has also an improvement in the steering apparatus, which is quite an important particular. We should judge from an inspection of the machine, and the explanation made by the inventor, that, having avoided the three great objections, the weight, the difficulties of applying increased power when needed to overcome obstructions in the pathway, and of steerage, there is no reason why steam transportation on common roads may not become as frequent as on railways. Certainly the day will come when this will be the case.

The inventor proposes to adapt his plan to steam plowing, and various other useful purposes.

THE FESTIVAL OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.—The concert and festival for the benefit of the German St. Paul's Church, which took place last Thursday evening, was a complete success pecuniarily. Farrar Hall was filled with a large audience, who listened with approval to the music, which consisted of instrumental and vocal alternately. The chorus singing by the young ladies, ten in number, and the gentlemen showed care and practice. The chorus piece, (words and music by Mr. Willing,) appropriate to the death of Mr. Lincoln, was well received, and the violin solos by Mr. Clark Niece, a young gentleman well known to our citizens, who is unfortunately blind, were loudly applauded.

After the concert, the seats were removed from the floor of the hall and the various stands presided over by the ladies of the congregation, supplied those present with edibles of every variety. In the art of securing actual enjoyment at their social gatherings we think our German citizens excell all others.

Sometimes pleasing, sometimes teasing,
Sometimes coaxing, sometimes hoaxing,

Little knowing, little sewing,
Little walking, greatly talking,
Mischief-making, promise breaking,
Duty shirking, hating working,
Novel reading, dainty feeding,
Idle dreaming, sudden screaming,
Lap dog doting, Byron quoting,

Dandy loving, white kid gloving,
Thin soled wearing, health despairing,
Daily fretting, sickness getting,
Ever sighing, almost dying,
Wish blessed morn, to cheer man's lives."

THE NEW DEPOT.—We congratulate our citizens and the traveling public upon the approaching completion of the new depot. We learn from Mr. W. P. Sweeney that the work will be finished and the building opened to the public about the last of June. It will be a day long to be remembered when the present small and forlorn structure shall cease to offend the eye, and impress strangers so unfavorably with Erie. Many have thought had fled or been carried to the trenches

General Sherman and his Brother, the Senator.

The following circumstance, related to me yesterday, goes to show that General Sherman is no respecter of persons, and, that very little favoritism in the administration to Cleveland and Franklin, and the Oil Creek Railway, have been, exclusive of Erie bonus and mileage of cars and engines due to the Company, in January, $354,755; in February, $388,147, and in March, $449,815. Total, $1,187,717.
