The people of this city have always mayed a readiness to participate in de onstrations of a public nature on all proper cusions, and when they undertake it, they nat often allow themselves to be excelled they have any faults, it is in their tendency nake a too extravagant display, rather un too little.

Doos.-The campaign of the city fathers gainst the "hogs, sheep, goats and geous" u have for so long formed such a picture eque pert of the busy throng that file our ppearance to our most active places of busies, is being attended with marked success. he City Councils planned the camp sign, furished the material of war and clothed what therwise might have seemed unjust aggres ion, with the panoply and majesty of law. Varuey is the General who has so ably executed the work of the battle, and we think hat such brilliant genius of conception, compixed with such ability for execution, should tot be suffered to sink into obscurity Alexader griered because there were no more werlds to conquer: the rulers of Eric reed sigh because there is no longer a field for heir conquering enterprise. Dons, gentlenes, Dogs are what we venture to hint at, we will not say hold up to your view, because enformance of that operation alike impossible and superfluous. Gentlemen of the City councils, Dogs howl at us from backyards as we wearily sink upon our welcome couch; get out." hey bark at us as we attempt vainly to leave behind us the cares of the day, and their long and hideous visions of a place which we hope you may never see. Dogs run between the dignified limbs of venerable men, upset small children in the streets and disarrange the gorgeous apparel of our fairest ladies. They angregate in riotous assemblages within the sacred confines of your Park fence, and gather in threes and fours in sedition and compiracy on our street corners. They hold camiral meetings in unseemly places and dispute with passers by the occupancy of the tidewalks. We conceive it impossible to take tal dogs; we say ten after careful consideration and observation. Ten dogs can be taken is by the 'ye at one glauce in almost any direction. THE PUNERAL CAR. The funeral car which conveys the remains from Washington to Springfield is a splendid piece of beautiful workmanship, and had it been originally designed for the purpose for which it has teen brought into requisition, it could scarcely have been more satisfactorily

It is forty-two feet long, with twelve win-Nows on each side. The pasnels are dark in contract with the usual yellow of the other cars, and the windows are draped with black. Silk fringe hangs from the edges all around the top of the car, below which is drapery of black, relieved by large silver tassels pendant between each window. The inside of the car is very sousher with draping of black. At as draped in black A state room adjoins, with conveniences for the guard of honor accompanying the remains, finely decorated, with the cost-of-arms of each State. It contains sofas and settees, wash table and other appurtenances.

THE COFFIN. The coffic itself is simply magaincent, and re learn that its entire cost was $2,000, and it is considered the most beautiful thing of the kind ever manufactured in this country. It is of mahogany lined with lead. The inside is lined with box-plated satin, the pillow and lower surface being of the finest description sons were killed. One of them was Mr. C. of white silk, and the whole surrounded with chenille as in a fringe. The inside of the face lid is raised with white satin, the center piece is trimmed with black and white silk braid, fastaned at the four corners with silver stars. The upper third of the fid is thrown hack so as to reveal the head and bust. The most rich and constly description of black cloth covers the outside. It is heavily fringed With ailver, having four silver madallions on either side, in which are not the bredles. All along the ing at is bestooned with marrive dilver tanks, tejne-enging drapers, in each fold of which glitter, a silver star. The edges are decorated with paying he aid, having tassale each fire igales jur feugth , Cpon geob side are four massive handles, also of silver, and at the head and foot are stars of the same meterial. the the top is a raw of silver tecks, extending the whole length a few inches from the edge: In the center is a cilver plate, on
