EI &C.

ART. VIII. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted.

We have made our citations full, net merely in deference to the apparent inaccessability of the document at Washington, but because we wished every reader to see that the passages we have placed in Italics are not garbled or picked, but that they are of the essence and vi-tality of the Constitution itself. Being so, how can we justify, or excuse, or even keep silence with regard to, the military trials just initiated at Washington? A miscreant, acting in concert with other assassing, has attempted the life of the Sceretary of State, and though his pur-pose was defeated, he nevertheless severely wounded Gov. Seward, his oldest son, and two or three others who nobly re-sisted him. Of course, this villian and his confederates should be sternly dealt with; but why not according to law? What reason, what excuse, can be urged, to justify the sending of this case before a court-martial and having it tried in secret? How can such a trial be reconeiled with the plain provisions of the Constitution above quoted ? As to the military trial of these who conspired with Booth to assessing to the P. esident, and aided to achieve that fell purpose, the outrage is not quite so fla-grant; but such trial is at best a blunder, while enshrouding it in secresy is utterly indefensible. To try a doctor for his life, because he set a stranger's broken bone and gave, or sold, or lent him a pair of arutches, may just do; but to try him in secret, allowing no report of the testimony put such as the prosecution sees fit to make, is nothing less than abominable. I'wo months ago, it would have been en-dured for the country's sake; now, there is no reason that it should be. We warn all who take any voluntary part in these strange proceedings that the rebellion is suppressed, the war at an end, and the right to suspend the privilege of habeas corpus and make the will of a Secretary of War the supreme law of the land, has expired. If our present Secretary cannot be made to realize these grave truths, it is high time he had a successor; and if our Attorney-General believes the assailant of Secretary Seward now "legally triablé before a Military Commission," he badly needs his own time for the completion of his legal studies, while the Gov-Proment needs a different law officer. There may be politer ways of setting forth these convictions, but none of these would do them justice.

Gentlemen of the Cabinet 1 the war eastward of the Mississippi is ended ; the rebellion is suppressed; the Union is re-established, and peace virtually restored : wherefore the people demand of you a speedy and thorough return to the safe and orderly ways of law and liberty. Do not compel them to speak in tones that you cannot refuse to hear!
