Mr. Fendleton became, in Republican estimation, a patriot,'s statesman, and a gentleman the moment he was a defeated candidate, though, in point of fact, he was all this before.-....N. Y. Express.

At Indianapolis, Ind., five men suspected at heing "rebel sympathizers," and supposed to be pleased with the death of the Fresident, were seized by a mob and hung. A man was shot dead in Toledo for merely saying that Lincoln had caused the death of as good men as himself. Several were besten almost to death in Cleveland for like offenses, and these are not a tithe of the outrages perpetrated, nor has the least attempt been made to bring to punishment any of those engaged. Andrew Johnson was one of the nineteen Senators of the United States who voted for the Crittenden Compromise, which, if it had passed, would have saved the country from the past four years of desolating war. The following was the vote on that resolution : YEAN-MORENT. Bayard, Bigler, Bright, Crittenden, Douglas, Gwin, Hunter, Jour-

The La Crosse Democrat, in noticing some of the recent speeches of Miss Anna. Dickinson, makes the following rather ungaliant remark about the "gentle An-nis :" " It is fortunate for somebody that she is making speeches instead of raising a family. For a babe to draw kindness from the breast which has so much of bate and redicaliam in it, would be like getting pepper sauce or nitric acid from its aursing bottle."

WRICE HORN ?-Whilst the Republican journals profess to admire the character of Mr. Lincoln, because of his slleged humanity, they urge upon President Johnson to be inhuman. They say that Mr. Lincoln was so merciful to the rebels, and he was a perfect man;" but Mr. Johnson ought to, treat the rebels without mercy. Now, such people either do not believe what they say about Mr. Lincoln, or they are very hypocritical.

Beast Butler is to have a military trial. with a view, we are told, "to have justice done him." We should think he'd be like the Irishman, who, when told by a learned judge that they would do him justice, exclaimed, "Jabers, and that's what I'm afraid of !"
