The Hudson Gazette relates a huge practical joke that was recently perpetrated on the proprietor of one of the clothing stores in that city, who had shown symptoms of "oil on the brain" for some time, An entrance was effected to the cellar, under the floor, by means of a back door, and a gallon of kerosene poured into a cistern in the cellar. The ambitious proprietor, noticing a "foreign" substance on a pail of water drawn up, immediately had an analysis, which satisfied him that there was a mine of wealth under his store. He immediately closed negotiations with the proprietor of the lot, paying a fabulous price for the property, which previously he had refused to buy, for fear that the business of the town was going down street toward the railroad depot.

The anecdote of Gen. Sherman is fresh, according to which the General upon being congratulated on his universal popularity, took occasion to remark the similitude between popularity and morning dew: "If I should make a blunder tomorrow," said the hero of Atlanta, Savannah, Charleston and Raleigh, "next day would see me abused as badly as McClellan." His declaration is already verified.

The Bank of Pittsburg, the only State bank in Pittsburg or vicinity, was organized in 1810, and has passed through every financial crisis since without suspending specie payment but on one eccasion-in 1837-and then only for a short time at the special request of the citizens. Throughout the crisis of 1841, 1857, and during the present war, it has always redeemed its liabilities, circulation, and de-postes in specie whenever called upon. We do not think a similar parallel can be found in the country.

There are numerous applications from the North for their services, but it is almost impossible to induce any of them to migrate in that direction.
