As a good many, says the Tribune, will soon be hiring help for the ensuing year, we urge all who may want labor to look about them and see if there be not a Union volunteer in our great civil war who wants employment, and, if there be, give him the first offer.

It appears that some of Gen. Geary's new political allies entertain doubts of his radical orthodoxy. The Philadelphia Press, being a devoted advocate of the General as the negro suffrage candidate for Governor, undertakes to quell the suspicions of its brethren by statements like the following:

We feel convinced that the Union State Convention, can erect no platform upon which General Geary would refuse to take his stand, should he be the nominee for Governor.

The gallant Democrats of Lancaster city have achieved another splendid victory in their local contest, re-electing Mayor Sanderson by a majority largely increased over that of last fall.

The Albany Journal reports the substance of the statements made by a well-known citizen and leading politician of Georgia, as follows:

The trouble between the two sections is, that we do not understand each other. We see the savage expressions of men like Stevens and Bingham, and come to the conclusion that we have nothing to hope for but repression, confiscation and exemplary punishment.

THE WASHINGTON INTELLIGENCER. TO THE HONORABLE SENATE. We cannot doubt that it has now become your duty as journalists, to claim the public good as your chief object, to invoke the testimony of every loyal member of the Union...

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY BREAKING UP.—The New York Herald says the outrageous radical measures of Sumner and Stevens are breaking up the Republican party, which would have ruled the country for the next century had it been properly managed.

Views of the President. On Wednesday evening of last week a large delegation of citizens from Montana Territory collected at the White House to pay their respects to the President.

Each community is better prepared to determine the depository of its political power than anybody else. It is for the Legislature, not for the Congress of the United States, to determine the mode of election.

Mr. Douglas, smiling—A great deal of wrong, Mr. President, with all respect. The President—It is the people of the States that must for themselves determine this question.

Mr. Douglas—I have to return you one thanks, Mr. President, for so kindly granting me this interview. We did not come here expecting to argue this question with your Excellency, but simply to state what were our views and wishes in the premises.

Mr. Douglas—If the President will allow me, I would like to say one or two words in reply. The President—What I have done is simply to state what I believe to be the views of the people.

Mr. Douglas—My own impression is that the very thing that your Excellency would avoid in the Southern States can only be effected by the policy which we propose, and which I would state to my brother contrabands because I perceive the President has taken strong ground in favor of a given policy, and distrusting my own ability to remove any of the impressions which he has expressed.

Mr. Douglas—Let the negro once understand that he has a right to vote, and he will raise a party in the Southern States among the poor who will rally with him in this contest.

THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BY WAY OF ILLUSTRATION. Suppose, for instance, here in this political community, which to a certain extent must have government, must have law, and putting it upon the broadest basis you can, what would be the relation of the colored race to the white race in the colored race? Is it proper to force upon this community without their consent the elective franchise without regard to color, making it universal?

Mr. Douglas—That was said before the war. The President—I am now talking about a principle, not what somebody else said.
