The House of Representatives, on Monday, adopted a resolution almost unanimously, that Jefferson Davis should not be released on bail or parole without a that he will not be permitted to be set free on bail. It is stated that Horace Greeley and Commodore Vanderbilt have offered to go security for him to a large amount. The Tribune argues that his continued imprisonment without trial is a stigma on our national character, and alludes to his treatment in terms of indignation which, in a Democratic paper, would be thought grossly disloyal.
