Mr. Benson's "opposition to treason," like that of his compatrious, the Radical lead ers in our county, was chiefly of that "bold and fearless" fort shown by vigorous denunciations of them at a safe distance away from the reat of war. In this be was wonderfully proficient -in short, we will admit that he was almost without a compeer in that peculiar style of warfare. His "damus" and "Goddrinns" upon the heads of the rebels arose to r solutely terrific-they overwhelmed everything which came in their way and wee would the course. it have been to the Southern forces had he planted himself at the head of one of our adlumns, and opened out with his lungs in full vicor. Unfortunately for his recutation as a "hold and fearless" man Mr. R. never volunteered to rout the rehels by blowing a blast into their faces from his unerring trum pet, and so the work was left for Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and their "brave boys" to perform, which they did in a pretty satisfactory manner.

The Eric Observer came very near being treated to a 'real expression of the political opinions of the soldiers and sailors of Eric county" on several occasions during the war, and we sulvise it to again hang out an American flig for a few days as an evidence of its re constructed loyalty.—Gazette.

The meaning, we presume, intended to be the parties liable to a heavy fine. conveyed in the above paragraph is, that sevcral times during the war our office was rumor. The fact is now admitted by the official Disunion organ that such a scheme was designed, and there is no difficulty in deciding who were the plotters of it. In no case has an act of the kind occurred without the con nivance and encouragement of the Abolition noliticians of the locality.

We leave it for the fair minded portion of the public to decide how little self respect-an editor must passess who can thus publish and glost over a feature connected with the war which all good citizens deplore. The spirit which led to the mobbing of newspapers is now looked upon by every man of honest and patriotic purpose as one of the most discredit able that ever entered into a political controversy. No man who has any regard for his shame; and when an editor becomes so lost to his sense of honor, and so far forgets the rights of his profession, as to allude to it in himself down either a booby or a knave of the most pitiable or most degraded sort.
