JAMIE. Father, where is our Jumie to-night— Jamie so hold sud gay? The twilight shadows are falling now,

Why does he stay away?

Jamie is handsome, and manly, too,

And he will be good and great;

But, Valler, why is our daring boy

A staying away so late?

"Our noble boy is a child no more,
He has grown to man's estate;
He has gone a courting Minnie Gray;
The reason he stays so late;
For her golden hair and eyes of blue
Have stolen his heart away,
And he goes in the holy twilight hour
A wooing sweet Minnie Gray," Why does the maiden lure him away, Now we are growing so old?

Air's see have shielded him all his life, Our love has never grown cold; The maid can sever love him as we Have loved him all his years, Who have led him along the path of life,

Sharing his smiles and tears." But, Millie, remember long years ago, When I was handsome and gay, And you a maiden so fair and sweet That you stole my heart away; I had a father old and gray,
And a mother kind and true, Who loved me fondly all my life— But my heart went out to you."

A blush crept over her withered check, Her eyes shown clear and mild;
No longer she childed the lovely mand
For winning away her child;
She thought of the long ago, when she
Stood child by her lover's side;
In the little church, and the man of God
Made her a happy bride.

IEAVY TAXATION AND RADICAL RECKLESSNESS. We are a heavily taxed people. Few, per-haps none, are more so. Some at first were disposed to regard this matter of neavy taxa-tion as of little consequence. We were so tion as of little consequence. We were so rich and prosperous, and had such exhaust-less resources, they said, that we could stand almost any amount of taxation the Governamoust any amount of taxation the Govern-ment might lay upon our shoulders. But this folly has had its day, and people generally be-gin to feel that there is no pleasure in being left destitute of the comforts and necessaries of life by taxation on everything we eat, drink, wear or use in any shape.

Even the common pursuits and business of life are seriously interfered with and interindependent of the fragrant odor of the oils of palm and mace.

THE MARVEL OF PERU.

A new and beautiful perfume, which in delicacy officent, and the tenacity with which is a tax on the raw material; then, a tax upon the carry of the head therefore the control of the particles manufactured from that material:

and then an income from the material. and, then, an income tax upon the profits of the business. Thus, industry, labor and en-terprise are burdened and depressed in every possible way. From twelve to fifteen thou-sand articles pay internal revenue imposi-

1800, are certain to be continued, and cor-respondingly heavy taxation to be levied to meet them, while the Radicals remain in power.

The evidence of this is furnished in the last report of the Secretary of the Treasury, which gives the six heads of expenditure enumerated in the foregoing table an aggregate of $316,569,398 as the estimated disbursements for 1867, or $156,710,926 more than

This extravagance of expenditure is not confined to the Radical Congress. The Radical State Legislatures imitate their example. it is estimated, and truly, too, that the States under Radical control have increased their debts, since 1860, to the amount of $300,000, 900, while the city, town and county debts in those States have been increased to a much greater extent, and the local taxation thus induced has become most oppressive, and added to the Federal taxation, it becomes and added to the Federal taxation, it becomes absolutely ruinous to the business and material growth and prosperity of the country. These facts should arouse every man to assist in applying the true and only remedy—reduction of expenditures in the public administration of affairs by the practice of the most rigid economy. We must adopt the Democratic motto of a "light and simple government." But the present party in power will never apply this remedy. They will go on in this course of extravagance and reckless corruption, because to retreat from it would be their destruction. They got power rould be their destruction. They got power by such means, and by such only can they retain it. The only way the people can save themselves and the country from ruin is to

An amusing incident occurred in one of our down-east churches a few years ago. The clergyman gave out the hymn: "I love to steal awhile away from every cumbering care, and spend the hour of setting day in humble, grateful prayer." The regular chorister being absent, the duty devolved on good old Deacon M., who commenced, "I love to steal," and broke down. Raising his voice to a still higher pitch, he sang "I love to steal;" and, as before, he concluded that he had got the wrong pitch, and deploring he had not got his pitch tuner, he determined to succeed if he died in the attempt. By this time all the old ladies were tittering behind their fans, whilst the faces of the young ones their fans, whilst the faces of the young ones were all in a broad grin. At length, after a desperate cough, he made a final demonstration, and roared out, "I love to steal."

This effort was too much. Every one but the godly and eccentric parson was laughing. He arose, and with the utmost coolness said, "Seeing our brother's propensities, let us pray." It is needless to say that but few of congregation heard the prayer.

"It amazes me that ministers don't write better sermons—I am sick of the dull, prosy affairs," said a lady in the presence of a parson. "But it is no easy matter to write good sermons," suggested the minister. "Yes," rejoined the lady, "but you are so long about it; I could write one in half the time, if I only had the text." "O, if that is all you want," said the parson, "I will furnish that. Take this one from Solomon—'It is better to dwell in the corner of a housetop, than with a brawling woman in a wide house.'" "Do you mean-me, sir!" inquired the lady quickly. "O! my good woman," was the grave response, "you will not make a good sermonizer, you are too soon in your application."

SHARP.—A man in Connecticut obtaine a winter's supply of excellent potatoes in the following cute manner: He gave out word that he was desirous of obtaining a specimen of the best sort of potatoes, and would pay of the best sort of potatoes, and would pay three dollars for a peck of such, himself to be the judge. Potatoes poured into his cellar from all the country round, and when the avalanche subsided, the man handed over his three dollars for the peck, and the next spring sold potatoes to more than cover the original outlay, besides having had a first quality article for home use all winter.

ADVERTISING.-Robt. Bonner, writing to the editor of the Troy Whig, says:
"All the capital I had when I began to advertise I carned as a journeyman printer; but I was careful to make a paper which, when advertised and introduced, I knew the people would like and continue to buy. I put my money into advertising, I paid cash as I went, and my present fortune is the re-

In 1796, Josephine, before consenting to marry Napoleon, consulted her notary, Mons. Raguideau, upon the propriety of her marrying this soldier. The notary seriously opposed it. "It is madness," said he, "to marry an officer of fortune, and with no bright future before him." Napoleon heard from Josephine the notary's opinion. These garments were made of skins or richly wrought cloth, sometimes fitting tightly to the limbs, like those in use here, and sometimes loose and hanging in folds over the shoes like the Turkish trousers. The Greeks never wore them at all; nor did the Romans until the time of the Emperors, who attempted to introduce breeches among their subjects, as a means of making them forget their ancient liberties.
