PRINTERS .- In a sermon delivered last Sunday, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher is said to have remarked that more public men of em-inence have started from the business of typesetting than probably from any other occupa-tion. We know not how true this is, but it is pretty certain that there are few public men that have not been made eminent by the type-sotters—a class which, if not always great in themselves, are often the cause of greatness in others.
