The umpire said "play." It is the most radical play I know of, this base ball. Sawing cordwood is moonlight rambles beside base ball. So the pitcher sent the ball toward me. It looked pretty coming; so I let it come. Then be sent another. I hit it with the club, and hove it gently upward. Then I started to walk to the first base. The ball lit in the pitcher, or in his hands, and any cach. how he was making it, and a mule kicked me on the check. The man said it was the Pretty soon it was my strike. "Brick to the bat?" yelled the umpire. I went, but not all screne, as was my want. The pitcher sent in screne, as was my want. The pitcher sent in one hip high. I missed it. He sent in another neck high. It struck me in the gullet. "Foul," velled the umpire. He sent in the ball again. This time I took it square and sent it down the right field, through a parlor window—a kerosene lamp, and rip up against the head of an infant who was quietly taking its nap in its mother's arms. Then I shing the hat and mendered forth to the I slung the bat and meandered forth to the first base. I heard high words and looked. When I slung the bat I had with it broken the jaw of the umpire, and was fined ten cents. The game went on. I liked it. It is such fun to run from base to base just in time to be put out, or to chase a ball three-fourths of a mile down bill, while all the spectators yell "muffin!" "go it!" "home run!" "go round again!" or "go round a dozen times!" Base ball is a sweet little game. When it came my turn to bat again, I noticed everybody move back about ten rods! The new umpire retreated about twelve rods. He was timid! "The pitches cent them in hot was timid! The pitcher sent them in hot. Hot balls in time of war are good. But I don't like 'em too hot for fun. After a while don't like em too hot for iun. Alters wine I got a fair clip at it, and you bet it went entiting the daisies down the right field. I have played two weeks, and don't think that I like the game. There is not a square inch on, in, or under me but aches. I sleep nights dreaming of hot balls, "flys," 'fouls," and descending "ky rockets." I never worked so hard since Ruth stole wheat, and never was so lame since the burning of Lu ther.

But I am proud of my proficiency in the game. It's fine exercise—a little easier than being run through a threshing machine, and not much either. It's a nice game for a poet or orator—'twill make one sore beyond all accounts.

The upshot of the matter was that the Judge finally sent counsel out with the jury to help them make up a verdict, and then a suitable one was rendered.

A curious experiment was recently tried by two inhabitants of Vienna, between whom the question arose whether man or woman had the most vanity. Unable to convince each other, they made the subject a question of bet; the stakes were two hundred florins. To decide, they agreed to place themselves before a mirror shop and count the number of men and women who out of the number of men and women who out of one hundred of either sex should stop and admire themselves in the looking glasses. In an hour they had counted out of one hundred women eighty who had stopped to look at themselves, and out of one hundred men ningty-five who paused to admire their

A YOUNG lady of Burnside, Connecticut, A Young hady of Burnside, Connecticut, eloped a few days since with a young man from New York. They were subsequently found concealed in a neighbor's house, down in the cellar, sealed behind two barrels of apples and well shielded by washtubs and other furniture, innocently enjoying the re-pose which their escape from an enraged pa-rent afforded. The girl was at once restored to the paternal mansion and the young man, was held on the charge of abduction, but a few hours after he had compromised with the girl's father and the matrimonial noose was fastened around the neeks of the happy MARRIAGE is, in common parlance, said to be the making of new ties. Pondering on this subject, I have noted down some of the ties with which I should like marriage to make me acquainted. Firstly, I should like to find beau-ty combined with puri-ty, modes-ty, sensibili-ty and fideli-ty. Secondly, I should wish to meet with a sure-ty (a certainty) which would be a sure-ty, to make the ty) which would be a sure-ty, to make-the marriage tie a du-ty, and securi-ty to socie-ty. For a varie-ty, I should delight in an occasional gaie-ty, gravi-ty, loquaci-ty and jollity, accompanied always by an infini-ty of amiabili-ty. Could I find these ties in unity I think the new tie would indeed prove a novel-ty, and, I am quite sure, a nice-ty, which would make life a reali-ty. In such a case, I should not at all mind giving up the only tie I have at present, my liber-ty.

WHIPPING AS AN INCENTIVE TO MARRIAGE Two weeks ago the minister of one of the churches at Hazleworth, Columbia county churches at Hazleworth, Columbia county, New York, learning that his daughter was keeping company with a young man he did not like, inflicted upon the girl a severe chas-tisement with a bircli rod, badly bruising and discoloring her flesh. The next Sunday the preacher, on retiring from the church, ascer-tained that she had gone to a neighbor's house. He went to find her, and was met by the young man who exhibited to him a by the young man, who exhibited to him a marriage certificate. The young couple had been married while he was in the pulpit.

ONE OF WEBSTER'S ANECDOTES.—A cor-respondent from New Hampshire says.—Dan-iel Webster had an anecdote of old Father Searl, the minister of his boyhood, which has never been in print, and which is too good to be lost. It was customary then to wear buckskin breeches in cool weather. One Sunday morning, in the autumn, Father Searl brought his down from the garret; but the wasps had taken possession of them during the summer, and were having a nice time in them. By dint of effort, he got out the in-truders, and dressed for meeting. But while raders, and dressed for meeting. But white reading the Scriptures to the congregation, he felt a dagger from one of the small waisted fellows, and jumped about the pulpit slapping his thighs. But the more he slapped around and danced, the more it stung. The people thought him crazy, and were in commotion what to do; but he explained the matter by saving, "Brethren don't be nlarmed. How to Become a Millionaire. Mr. McDonough, the millionaire of New Mr. McDonough, the minionaire of New Orleans, has engraved upon his tomb a series of maxims he had prescribed as the rules for his guidance through life, and to which his success in business is mainly attributed. They contain so much wisdom that we copy

Rules for the Guidance of my Life, 1804.—
Remember always that labor is one of the conditions of our existence. Time is gold; throw not one minute away, but place each one to account. Do unto all men as you would be done by. Never put off till tomorrow what can be done to-day. Never bid another do what you can do yourself.

Never cover what is not your own. Never "With is the letter D like a ring?" said young lady to her accepted one day. The Marriage Business. Marriage Brokerage is a business carried on to a certain extent in all countries. We have the report that a marriage broker in England, in reply to a letter from a young lady, said that he had on his list about fifty gentlemen of first-class position, and withincomes from £300 to £5,000 ayear, who are anxious to marry; so that he can guarantee a good marriage to any lady. He adds: "I will send some cartes de visite for your inwill send some cartes de visite for your in-spection. Among my clients are officers, clergymen, merchants, and gentlemen of in-dependence. You may depend on strict good faith." In a pamphlet which he sends good faith. In a painfact which he sade to the lady, he describes his system and its success. He avers that during the last eighteen years he has married upwards of 500 couple happily, who, had it not been for him, would still have been pining in single misery. He points out that marriage by ne-gotiation is the rule in most foreign coun-tries, and in all royal families, and urges that unions thus brought about are productive of as much real happiness as those known as love matches, which young people make for themselves, in which the motive power is usually a straight nose, smooth waltzing, a neat foot and ankle, an exhorbitant chignon, or a heavy mustache. This broker tells a very plausible story, but of course any man public. ARE THERE HORSES IN HEAVEN ?-In his novel of "Norwood," Henry Ward Beecher discourses as follows concerning the future life of horses: "What do you think becomes of horses, "What do you think becomes of horses, Hiram, when they die?" said Rose.

"Wal, Miss Rose, it's my opinion that there's use for horses hereafter, and that you will find there's a horse-heaven. There's Scripture for that, too."

"Ah!" said Rose, a little surprised at these confident assertions, "what Scripture do you mean."

"Why, in the Book of Revelations! Don't type an account of a white horse, and a red horse, and black horses, and gray horses? I've allers s'posed that when it said Death rode on a pale horse, it must have been gray, 'cause it had mentioned white ones already. In the ninth chapter, too, it says that there was an army of two hundred thousand horsemen. Now I should like to know where men. Now I should like to know where they got so many horses in heaven if none of them that die off here go there? Its my opinion that a good horse's a darned sight likelier to go to heaven than a bad man."

WE PASS FOR WHAT WE ARE.—A man passes for what he is worth. Very idle is all curiosity concerning other people's estimates of us, and all fear of remaining unknown is of us, and all fear of remaining unknown is not less so. If a man knows that he can do anything—that he can do it better than any one else—he has a pledge of acknowledgment of that fact by all persons. The world is full of judgment days, and into every assemblage that a man enters, in every action he attempts, he is guaged and stamped. In every troop of boys that whoop and run in cach square, a new comer is well and accurately weighed, in the course of a few days, and stamped with his right number, as if he had undergone a formal trial of his strength. peed and temper. A stranger comes fr istant school, with a better dress, trinkets in his pockets, with airs and pretensions, older boy says to himself, "It's no use; we shall find him out to-morrow."

How to Stop the Flow of Blood.
Housekeepers, mechanics and others in handling knives, tools and other sharp instruments, frequently receive severe cuts, from which blood flows profusely and ofttimes endangers life itself. Blood may be made to cease to flow as follows: Take the fine dust of tea and bind it close to the wound—at alt times accessible and easy to be obtained. After the blood has ceased to flow, laudanum is advan-A London watchmaker named Watkins
