"As to General Grant, we hope to find him on the Republican platform of Equal Rights to all citizens of the United States; but we port of the two Rudical members who are on the Republican platform of Equal Rights to all citizens of the United States; but we cannot now point to any act or declaration which places him there. He may be all right—we hope he is; yet we cannot help seeing that those nominal Republicans whose hearts are with the adverse party, and who helped it to bent us badly on the 5th inst. It are all noisy Grant men. We do not know a professed Republican who rejoices over the late Republican reverses who is not for Grant; and many of them are venomously hostile to Impartial Manhood Suffrage. When General Grant demonstrates on this point, we hope he will be found square on the platform of Equal Rights. And, when he does, we shall very heartily support him for President, if he be the Republican candidate; but we suspect he will then be no stronger than another capable and worthy Republican. He may get some votes on personal grounds, in view of his eminent public services; but so would Gov. Chase; so those who now seem devoted to him on the assumption that he is not a Republican will govern the issue of the personal choice, will govern the issue of the personal choice, will govern the state of the inversident, and the reports in this issue:

The undersigned agreeing with our associates of the minority of the committee of the minority of the committee of the minority of the committee. The wind the evidence before the committee presents and the evidence before the committee of the impeachable of the president of the president, if they had stopped there, have been content simply to have goined in the report which they have submitted. But as they as well as the majority, have felt it position we occupy, to present as briefly as possible a few additional remarks for the consideration of the House and of the country.

Having determined that the evidence does not show that the President has been guilty of any act or crime for which, under our Constitution or laws he can or ought to be impeached, this conclusion, it seems to us, is the determination of the vhole question su with the Tribune, and has several times, of late, taken occasion to throw doubts upon the propriety of selecting Grant as the Radical standard-bearer. This position, it is true, is not taken openly and boldly, but the character of its quotations show its sympathies too vell to leave a chance for doubt. As a sample of these we clip from its issue of Thursday the following:

"The latest with regard to General Grant comes from the fertile pen of "Mack," of the Cincinnati Commercial. In a late communication to that high-toned sheet he says: "Among the witnesses summoned before the impeachment Committee was Col. Hillyer, ormerly of General Grant's staff, now a Federal office-holder in New York. What he testified to, or was supposed to know detrimental to Andrew Johnson, I cannot say, but he yesterday met Mr. Eldridge, of Wisconsin, (a member of the Committee,) on Pennsylvania avenue, and addressing him, said lie supposed it would not be necessary for him to revise the report of his testimony. "No," Eldridge said, "that would be all right." "Well," said Hillyer, "there's one thing you might have got out of me if you had put the question to me, and you came mighty near doing it when you were examining me about Grant." "What's that?" said Eldridge. "Why," replied Hillyer, "I heard a conversation between General Grant and the President some time ago—the only time I ever heard him talk politics. Grant seemed to be very earnest about it, and bringing his hand down heavily upon the table, said he, (Grant): 'Mr. Johnson, demagogues may talk as they please, but this is a white man's government, and none but a white man headle here. consin, (a member of the Committee,) on government, and none but a white man should have a voice in it." Now, the above is no figment of a Copperhead imagination. It is precisely what was related to me yesterday by Mr. Eldridge, with permission to print it, just after the conversation between him and Col. Hillyer."

"When Senator Doolittle first returned home from Washington for the purpose of addressing his constituents upon the differ-ences between himself and the Republican party, he was expressly commissioned by General Grant to say to the people of this State, that the contemplated reconstruction Price $1 per lox, six boxes $5. In his speeches here, in Milwaukie, and at other points in the State, Senator Doolittle gave General Grant's beginning that the principle of the south upon the basis of negro suffrage was an outrage upon the principles of justice or statemanship, and would inevitably result in a war of races. In his speeches here, in Milwaukie, and at other points in the State, Senator Doolittle gave General Grant's business and the statemanship and would inevitably result in the principles of justice or statemanship, and would inevitably result in a war of races. In his speeches here, in Milwaukie, and at other points in the State, Senator Doolittle gave General Grant's here. precise words, communicated to him personally and with the hope and expectation that they would be repeated to the public. In a recent conversation with Senator Doolittle, the assures us that General Grant was not only positive and unqualified in these views, but that he exhibited unusual carnestness and enthusiasm in urging them. This was after Gen. Grant's return from his Southern tour, and after he had become familiar with all the features of the Radical plan. No one will refuse to credit Senator Doolittle's statement on this subject. The facts were stated with the contract of the results of the results were stated. publicly at the time and widely published by the newspapers, and General Grant has never denied the position on the question of recon-struction then ascribed to him.

ime were positive and unconditional and inasmuch as he has uttered no positive opinion to the contrary since that time, the fair presumption is that he is still opposed to the Radical plan, and would refuse to become subservient to Radical schemes should he ever happen to become the President of the United States."

In every State where the Radicals hold or have held power the Congressional, Senatorial and Legislative districts are so gerrymandered as to give their party large delegations on very small majorities of votes. In Pennsylvania, for instance, they have 18 members of Congress out of 24, on the trifling aggregate majority, in 1866, of 11,000. Were the State fairly districted, the Democrats would have had 12 and the Radicals 12. Knowing this fact, they are fearful that the Ohio and New Jersey Legislatures may abolish the unfair arrangement. Impeacher Ashley (one of the fellows who were really advancing to the fellows who were really the nation's constitutional head.

We repeat, therefore, that the investigation of the committee was, so far as we took part in it, with the sole view to ascertain whether in it, with the sole view to ascertain whether in it, with the sole view to ascertain whether of the President, under the charge preferred against him, was guilty of any impeachable offense. Not only so, but with the belief that it was the only question we were authorized or expected to inquire into. Not a witness was called or examined with any view to proving a case for merely censuring or condemning the political action of the President. No suggestion was made, or intimation of the Constitution of his country to the dietation of an unscrupulous partisan cabal; in daring to meet the maledictions of those who were solved the committee much however honest may be the majority of the committee, the verdict of the commit snan of all organical or the time extended tong enough under the Radical arrangement to allow his corrupt party another chance to get into power against the popular will and vote. Such legislation will only serve to beat the Rads still worse next time.

GIVE HER THE PANTS. An Ohio paper is responsible for the following: "Once on a time, not long ago, and not far from Millers-burg, as it might be, a good-hearted man and his long-tongued style-talking wife, attended a social party. Almost every three minutes his wife would check her husband thus: "Now, William, don't lean back in your chair in that way." "Come. William, don't talk so loud." "Now, William, don't talk so loud." "Now, William, don't get so noisy over there." "Say, William, let the girls alone and sit by me!" At last forbearance. ceased to be a virtue, and the husband, who ceased to be a virtue, and the husband, who was really pitied by all in the room, arose and said: "I beg pardon of the company, but as my wife insists on being boss all the time it is right she should have these." And he deliberately took off his pants and handed them to his wife, and then sat down in his boots and drawers.

THE IMPEACHMENT MOVEMENT. Planting himself firmly and immovably THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1867.

The N. Y. Tribune continues to maintain its position against General Grant as the next Radical candidate for President, and its efforts are evidently weakening him in the esteem of the party. In one of its issues of last week, it contained an editorial closing as tollows:

Minerity Report of the Democratic Members of the Judiciary Committee.

The Democratic Members of the Judiciary Committee.

The N. Y. Tribune continues to maintain its position against General Grant as the recollected that five of the Radical members reported in favor of impeachment, and the liberties they shall live under, and the liberties they shall be permitted to enjoy. In this difference between Congress and the President, and the desire of each for the adoption by the country of their respective views, is, we suppose, to be found not only the cause for the movement to impeach the President, but of his censure and condemnation. Out of it has grown the embitdemnation. Out of it has grown the embit-tered feeling and violent hatred of the Pres-ident by his former friends. times alluded to in the following, making three reports in all. An abstract of the report of the two Radical members who are against impeachment follows the Democratic report in this issue:

The majority of Congress and of the committee have entertained, and been prepared to declare at all times, in Congress and out of it, even more strongly than is expressed in their report, the same censure and con-demnation. This opinion was not formed upon any testimony, taken before the committee, or upon any facts elicited by its intheir views of the law, and in the conclusion that the evidence before the committee presents no case for the impeachment of the President, might, if they had stopped there, have been content simply to have joined in the report which they have submitted. But as they, as well as the majority, have felt it their duty to go further, and express their censure and condemnation of the President, we feel that it is due to ourselves, and to the position we occupy, to present as briefly as possible a few additional remarks for the consideration of the House and of the country.

Having determined that the evidence does try.
Having determined that the evidence does not show that the President has been guilty of any act or crime for which, under our Constitution or laws he can or ought to be impeached, and hence none, as we insist, subjecting him to the official jurisdiction of the committee of the House.

The censure and condemnation of the

of any act or crime for which, under our Constitution or laws he can or ought to be impeached, this conclusion, it seems to us. is the determination of the whole question submitted by the House to the committee. It is the commission by the President of an impeachable offense only that can subject him to our official jurisdiction, or justify-us as a committee of the House of Representatives, the House and the nation. We cannot ignore the fact that time has been spent, and testing the thouse and the nation. the fact that time has been spent, and testi-mony taken by the committee, endeavoring to ascertain if the President, in his official or tree the House itself, as such, in challenging his official acts. As the report of the majority does not charge the President with any act recognized by any statute or law of the land, as a crime to ascertain it the President, in his official capacity, has spoken censoriously or condemnatory of Congress, with a view to his impeachment. Therefore, can it be more becoming in a committee of this House, or in the House itself, to go beyond its jurisdiction and censure and condemn the President than for him to censure and condemn Congression. or misdemeanor, we can but regard the charges preferred as a political or partisan demonstration, tending and intended to bring him into odium and contempt among the people. As an unjustifiable attempt to excite their sus-than for him to consure and condemn Congress?

Is not the impropriety of the one as apparent as the other? If one is impeachable, is not the other wrong? What would be thought of the Supreme Court if, after having been compelled, in a cuse properly pending before it, to decide an act of Congress constitutional, it should, because it did not agree to the propriety or policy of the enactment, declare its severe censure and condemnation of Congress for having passed it? Who would hespicions. "Spargere cores in vulgum ambiguas," we utterly deny the right of the committee, or any member thereof, as such, to do this.
As citizens, as politicians, we may criticise, find fault with and condemn the entire administration of the President; but as a committee of the House, considering the charge referred to it as members of Congress, acting officially, we have no such right; power, or jurisdiction. gress for having passed it? Who would hesitate to pronounce this an unjustifiable and even an unwarrantable interference with the The Executive is one of the co-ordinate departments of this government, invested with certain defined constitutional powers and prerogatives, over which the Legislature even an unwarrantable interference with the rights and duties of Congress by the Supreme Court, calculated to disturb the harmony of our governmental system, and to bring into unhappy, if not fatal, collision, the co-ordinate departments? Like this attempt to reprove or censure the President for acts or wrongs not amounting to offenses subjecting him to the legal jurisdiction of the House of Representatives, such an act would, it seems to us, be sheer impudence; an act on the part of the court justly meriting obloquy and rehas no control and with the Constitutional exercise of which the Legislative Department lias no right to interfere. The original source of all executive and legislative power is the same—the people; the warrant and measure of those powers the same—the Constitution. In his constitutional and legislative sphere; the President is as free to act and as independent as Congress.

While acting within the bounds prescribed for it by the Constitution, he is no more accountable or responsible to Congress than Congress is to him. Congress has no more authority to censure and condemn him than he has to censure and condemn Congress. His Congress is to him: Congress has no more authority to censure and condemn him than he has to censure and condemn Congress. His discretion, exercised within the bounds of the Constitution, is no more subject to the animadversion or reproof of Congress than are the constitutional and discretionary acts of Congress to his.

Neither Congress nor the President has any powers or authority not derived from and found in the Constitution. The only question with reference to which the committee were authorized to inquire was whether the As appropriate to the subject, we close our extracts with a quotation from the Milwau-

We think, therefore, that we are warranted in saying, that although,much testimony, irrelevant, illegal and experimental, was taken, much that had no bearing upon the guestion of impeachment, and much more that was not testimony in any case, or for any purpose; that none was taken with any view except the impeachment, and hence we insist that, if the committee had the right and jurisdiction, which we deny, to inquire into the political and discretionary acts of the President, with the most withering and indignant condemnation and rebuke of the entire people from tion and rebuke of the entire people from Maine to California.

The impeachers, forgetting that they have been themselves impeached, and that the verdict of the tribunal of last resort has altered been rendered against them, still persist in trifling with the peace, safety and prosperity of the country, by precipitating upon it this dangerous question at a time so critical as this. It is wicked thus to triffe with the interests of a nation, and disregard personal feelings towards every member, but the voice of a great people, when spoken, as candor and sense of duty compels us to de-

the voice of a great people, when spoken, as in this case, so emphatically in favor of the preservation of our constitutional form of government, and the rights and liberties established by our Revolutionary fathers.

We should not attempt to add anything to the able, and as we believe, unanswerable argument just presented by the Chairman of our committee, upon the law of impeachment, had not experience taught us the wonderful diversity of human judgment and conclusions. We should find it difficult to believe that there could, upon the questions submitted to us, possibly be two opinions among candid and intelligent men. Blind bigotry and unbridled partisan rage, it is true, can see no crime in the most meritotorious actions, and men governed by these unhallowed passions do not hesitate to drag to the stake and the torture of the inquisition all who will not conform to their wretched creed and miserable dogmas.
