THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1868.

RUMORS of the most exciting nature are afloat respecting our relations with Great Britain. Those who profess to be best in formed declare that war is imminent. Mr. Adams has resigned, and a new Minister is to be appointed to the British Court, who will be instructed to press the claims of our Government to a satisfactory issue without delay. But one ultimatum is to be presented -either England must pay what she owes or fight.

GREAT interest is everywhere beginning to be developed in the next Democratic National Convention, and vigorous efforts are being made to unite upon a candidate who will be acceptable to all the elements of the party. Mr. Pendleton's friends, we learn, are already sure of unanimous delegations to the Convention from the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Nebraska: while, as yet, it is not known that the conventions of a single State have expressed an adverse preference The Conventions of Connecticut and New Hampshire, held last month, did not pronounce in favor of any individual, but decided to leave their delegates go uninstructed Among the Eastern Democrats Mr. Pendleton is personally very popular, but they do not look upon him as possessing the availability necessary to carry such States as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut. A lively caucusing is now in progress in Washington and New York, to see and at the same time meet the desires of those | ment: of the East, and it seems probable that the effort may be successful. We beg Democrats in both sections to remember that if we expect to attain success, there must be mutual' concessions, and a disposition to labor for the harmony of the whole organization, and not merely to please any section.

THE GRANT-JOHNSON CORRESPOND-ENCE.

A long, spicy and interesting correspond ence has taken place between the President and Gen. Grant, growing out of the Stanton matter. It was opened by the General, who, decorous expressions, and simply reciting the thets in the case. He shows that the General had expressly agreed either to resign the oftice before the Senate should vote to reinstate Stanton, in order to give an opportunity for tion offered in Congress by Mr. Scofield, of jority. Since then the Democrats have made one of veracity, Gen. Grant being the sole witness on his side, and the President and his Cabinet on the other-eight to one. It is evident that upon receipt of the President's unanswerabie letter, Gen. Grant lost his temper. He waited three days before sending his reply, and then appended his signature to tion, he will wish had never been written. The General reiterates his denial of the agreement referred to, and in an angry and unofilcerlike manner endeavors to give his remembrance of the circumstances, which only serves to make "confusion worse confoundobey Stanton's orders, notwithstanding the unmistakably exhibits his sympathy with the

The Radicals are come to any other conclusion than that the ting a good deal of rope lately, and the disposed to look at the subject fairly, can usual result is sure to follow. President has the better side of the controversy, and that Gen. Grant, has been omilted of an act of duplicity disreputable in the strongest sense, unworthy of his position, and cloud upon his future reputation.

RADICAL STATE CONVENTION.

State Convention to meet in Philadelphia, on the Democrats. From present indications, the contest between the two hostile factions of the party will be renewed with increased venom and energy. In a recent private letter to a friend Gen eral Hancock says: I shall always regard the law, acting inside of it, not outside. If new laws are required, it is for Congress to make them. Those in force I shall not execute in a partisan spirit; as long as I remain I will execute those in full. Having often to choose between the civil and military law, I take the former, and where powerless, will try and build it up. If the officers fail, I will appoint new ones, and if no good ones can be found on the content. and if no good ones can be found, may have to resort to military despotism. lieve that will come. When it does I may make as good a despot as any one. I shall send you copies of my orders, which will show my course of action to be in conformity

This is a sufficient relutation of the Radical slander that General Hancock sought his present position to gratify his political proclivities, and will not furnish much encouragement to the Radicals who are threatening to legislate him out of the army.

"What," asks the Cincinnati Commercial, "will it profit the Republican party if it gain the whole South and lose the whole North? The answer to this conundrum will appear when the election returns of next November are counted.

It is known to most per ons that the Court, as originally constituted. was made up of nine members. During Lincoln's administration, the number was increased to ten. The real but unavowed motive was to revolutionize the Court by adding more Republicans. In 1866, after Congress had quarrelled with President Johnson, an act was passed reducing the number to seven .-The unavowed motive of this change was to prevent Mr. Johnson appointing Conservative judges to fill vacancies. The Conservative judges appointed under Democratic administrations are aged men. In the ordinary course of nature, their seats were more likely to fall vacant than those of the Republican appointees of Mr. Lincoln. As the court had been increased to ten to enable Mr. Lincoln sooner to make it Republican, it was afterwards reduced to seven to prevent Mr. Johnson filling vacancies with Conservative judges. As judges cannot be legislated out of office, the law of 1868 provided that no anpointments should be made to fill vacancies until the number of judges should be reduced to seven, and that the Supreme Court should thereafter consist of one Chief Justice and six Associate Justices. The death of Julge Wayne, of Georgia, last year, left the Court with but eight members, at which standard it will remain until another of the judges takes his exit from this lower sphere, or the Radicals in Congress find it to their advantage to again increase the Bench to its original proportion. Thrust it in their teeth that Gov. Curtin approved the act, and that it is now the law; show them, too, that the Republican Legislatures of Ohio and New York have pursued the same policy; and the immaculate Rump, by the passage of the act making Legal Tender notes a good tender in payment of all debts, have stultified themselves. They are the last persons who should declaim against others for adopting precedents established by themselves. THE reply of Senator Doolittle to Nevada Nye in the Rump Senate on Friday last. when the latter impudently asked him "under which flag he would march," should immortalize the Wisconsin patriot. "I would march," said he, "under a flag having thirtyseven stars." Such a banner, of course, don't suit the Radicals. They would mutilate the old flag as they have mutilated the old Constitution, but the people, like Senator Doolit erased. "A flag with thirty-seven stars!" That's the talk!

RADICAL ASSAULTS ON GRANT.

General Grant Charged with Drunken-ness by Wendell Phillips—An Investi-gation Demanded. from the Anti-Slavery Standard of last week.] This is an anti-slavery journal. Looking out on politics as the negro looks on them; it deals with public men and measures only as they are true or false to him. But experience has abundantly proved, even before the existence of the present Administration, that only temperate men can safely be trusted with grave responsibilities. Temperance is substratum of all other reforms. How sad the result, when power is given to men who are wont "to put an enemy in their mouths to steal away their brains," this war has most impressively shown us. Now rumors reach us from Washington, coming from different and trustworthy sources, that General Grant has been seen unmi-takably drunk in the streets of that city within a few weeks. We know nothing ourselves of the truth of these rumors. We make no charge against General Grant in this respect. But even the possibility of the truth of these reports is of too momentous importance to be lightly dealt with. The nation is bound to inquire as to the habits of candidates for high office. After the experience of the last three years it has no right to run the slightest risk in this respect. No public man, whose friends are asking for him high office, ought to complain of the strictest scrutiny by the public as to his habits in this particular. We call, therefore, on the national and State temperance societies to investigate these reports. They have this subject in their special . They are bound to give us the facts, charge. They are bound to give us the facts, and save us from even the possibility of such another infliction as the nation now suffers. another infliction as the nation now suiters. Especially we call on the Hon. Henry Wilson, a pledged teetotaler, to see that the whole truth in this matter is given to the country. He has devoted himself to the adcountry. He has devoted himself to the advocacy of Grant's claims. As a temperance man, he is bound to see that we run no risks of this kind. Living in Washington, he must know, or have ample means of knowing, the truth as to this matter. If we are unneces-sarily anxious, let him relieve us by trustworthy assurances that Grant is now a temperate man, fully able, on all occasions to withstand this temptation. If the fact is not so, let him explain to his temperance associon me top of the precipice where the young lady was thrown over. Several shots were fired into his body while hanging there."

So, het nun explain to his temperance associates how he dares to ask their votes for Grant. It is perilous enough to give the Presidency to a man who was confirmable. lady was thrown over. Several shots were fired into his body while hanging there."

An exchange says: "Rats and vermin may be driven out of any building by burning a little sulpher." We suggest the Capitol at Washington as a proper place to try the experiment.

A Covert Thrust by Theodore : Tilton----A Presidental Candidate Fuddled in The Streets.

From the Independent, January 23.] Under the roof of the Capitol there is now very little intemperance, whether among Democrats or Republicans. Occasionally a Presidential candillate is seen fuddled in the streets; but, as this happens only on a Sun-day, it cannot be said to interfere with pub-lic business, and does not strikingly challenge public attention. Besides, if a Vice-President is drunk with a view to his inauguration what shall restrain a Presidental candidate may give this whole nation the delirium tremens. We suggest a prohibitory law to take effect on nominating conventions, and a temperance pledge to be signed by their nominees.
