The news from South America gives us the details of one of the most horrible events that has occurred during the present century. On the 13th of August an earthquake visited the cities on the coast of Peru and Ecuador, involving the loss of 32,000 lives and the destruction of property valued at the basis of peace, for which governments three hundred millions of dollars. Arequipa, a city of 35,000 inhabitants, passed away, and Arica, with its 25,000, is destroyed, scarcely a vestige being left. Eight other large towns are in ruins, and the site of Cocaquachi is now covered by a lake. It is disbursed by the War Department, exclusive impossible to add to the pathos of the mere facts. In 1848, the Democratic party was badly beaten and Taylor was elected President. The Whigs thought they had a sure hold upon the Gov- ernment, and in 1852 they nominated Gen- eral Scott, the hero of Lundy's Lane and Mexico. When Scott was put upon the track the Whigs were as confident of his success as the Radicals now are of the success of their hero. But the deep under-current of public opinion set in against the Whig party, just as it is now setting in against the Radi- cals. The masses—the hourest, hard-working class—determined to curb the ambition of the military hero then, just as they have de- termined now. The consequence was that Scott received hardly enough votes to swear by—he was the worst beaten man that ever ran for President. The Whigs were dumb- founded at the result, and became so demor- alized that the party split to pieces and has never since been heard of. The editor of the New York Star, one of the best politicians in the country, after care- fully studying the temper of the public mind, comes to the conclusion that the indications are growing strong that the Presidential campaign of this year will cause as great a political revolution as that of 1852. In 1848, the Democratic party was badly beaten and Taylor was elected President. The Whigs thought they had a sure hold upon the Gov- ernment, and in 1853 they nominated Gen- eral Scott, the hero of Lundy's Lane and Mexico. When Scott was put upon the track the Whigs were as confident of his success as the Radicals now are of the ancess of their hero. But the deep under-current of public opinion set in against the Whig party, just as it is now setting in ngainst the Radi- cals.' The masses—the houest, hard-working class—determined to curb the ambition of the military hero then, just as they have de- termined now. The consequence was that Scott received hardly enough voices to swear by—he was the worst beaten man that ever ran for President. The Whigs were dumb- founded at the result, and became so demor- alized that the party split to pieces and has never since been heard of. Let fury one ex- amine the signs of the times closely, and he will see a close analogy between the present campaign and the one sixteen years ego. The laboring men of the country are re- quired to devote one-half of their wages every day to the payment of taxes, in order that the bondholder may receive pay for his bonds in gold, because Horace Greeley ad- vised a few shoddy contractors and cotton thieves to invest their money in Government bonds at fifty cents on the dollar, and told them they would be paid in gold. If Greeley guaranteed the payment of the bonds in gold, the holders had better suc him on his guarantee. WILL HE RESIGN I In view of his being a candidate for Presi- dent, and holding the position of General of our Armies, the question is frequently urged that it is time General Grant would consider that propriety demands his resignation. The editor of the New York Star, one of the best politicians in the county, after care- fully studying the temper of the public mind, comes to the conclusion that the indications are growing strong that the Presidential campaign of this year will cause as great a political revolution as that of 1852. In 1848, the Democratic party was badly beaten and Taylor was elected President. The Whigs thought they had a sure hold upon the Gov- ernment, and in 1852 they nominated Gen- eral Scott, the hero of Lundy's Lane and Mexico. When Scott was put upon the track the Whigs were as confident of his success as the Radicals now are of the ancess of their hero. But the deep under-current of public opinion set in against the Whig party, just as it is now setting in gainst the Radi- cals. The masses—the houest, hard-working class—determined to curb the ambition of the military hero then, just as they have de- termined now. The consequence was that Scott received hardly enough votes to swear by—he was the worst beaten main that ever an for President. The Whigs were dumb- founded at the result, and became so demor- alized that the party split to pieces and has never since been heard of. Let any one ex- amine the signs of the times closely, and he will see a close analogy between the present campaign and the one sixteen years ego. There is now a manifest reaction in public feeling throughout the country. The work- ing classes see that the only hope of the poor man consists in ousting from power the cor- morants who steal the people's money and who run the Government in the interest of the bondholder and other capitalists. They have become disgusted with the negropolicy	Horace Greeley, the great Mogul of Radi- calism, in a speech delivered not long since at Brooklyn, said: "I prged men day after day during the war to put their money into Government bonds, and told them these bonds would be paid in gold or its equivalent. Should they not be so paid I would feel that I had been a party to a swindle and a trick." The laboring men of the country are re- quired to devote one-half of their wages every day to the payment of taxes, in order that the bondholder may receive pay for his bonds in gold, because Horace Greeley ad- vised a few shoddy contractors and cotton thieves to invest their money in Government bonds at fifty cents on the dollar, and told them they would be paid in gold. If Greeley guaranteed the payment of the bonds in gold, the holders had better suc him on his guarantee. WILL HE RESIGN I In view of his being a candidate for Presi- dent, and holding the position of General of our Armies, the question is frequently urged that it is time General Grant would consider that propriety demands his resignation. His friends assured na be would follow the ex- ample of General McClellan, and, like him, tender his resignation, but they attributed to him a delicacy he does not possess, for there are reasons for stating that. he does not in itend to resign at all, unless he is elected President, and as that event is most improba- ble, he proposes to hold on to a good thing. $20,000 a year is good, and General Grant is fearfully practical. GRANT's friends say that he shuns public demonstrations. Prentice says that's a mis- take. The shumning is all on the side of the demonstrations.	Hurrah, then, for Maine! There is now a manifest reaction in public feeling throughout the country. The work- ing classes see that the only hope of the poor man consists in ousting from power the cor- morants who steal the people's money and who run the Government in the interest of the bondholder and other capitalists. They' have become disgusted with the negro policy of the Radicals, by which the latter have en- trenched themselves in the Government-matery	Horace Greeley, the great Mogul of Radi- calism, in a speech delivered not long since at Brooklyn, said: "I prged men day after day during the war to put their money into Government bonds, and told them these bonds would be paid in gold or its equivalent. Should they not be so paid I would feel that I had been a party to a swindle and a trick." The laboring men of the country are re- quired to devote one-half of their wages every day to the payment of taxes, in order that the bondholder may receive pay for his bonds in gold, because Horace Greeley ad- vised a few shoddy contractors and cotton thieves to invest their money in Government bonds at fifty cents on the dollar, and told them they would be paid in gold. If Greeley guaranteed the payment of the bonds in gold, the holders had better sue him on his guarantee. WILL HE RESIGN I In view of his being a candidate for Presi- dent, and holding the position of General of our Armics, the question is frequently urged that it is time General Grant would consider that propriety demands his resignation. His friends assured na be would follow the ex- ample of General McClellan, and, like him, tender his resignation, but they attributed to him a delicacy he does not possess, for there are reasons for stating that. he does not in- tend to resign at all, unless he is elected President, and as that event is most improba- ble, he proposes to hold on to a good thing. $20,000 a year is good, and General Grant is fearfully practical. The editor of the New York Star, one of the best politicians in the county, after care- fully studying the temper of the public mind, comes to the conclusion that the indications are growing strong that the Presidential campaign of this year will cause as great a political revolution as that of 1852. In 1848, the Democratic party was badly beaten and Taylor was elected President. The Whigs thought they had a sure hold upon the Gov- ernment, and in 1852 they nominated Gen- eral Scott, the hero of Lundy's Lane and Mexico. When Scott was put upon the track the Whigs were as confident of his success as the Radicals now are of the success of their hero. But the deep under-current of public opinion set in against the Whig party, just as it is now setting in against the Radi- cals. The masses—the houest, hard-working class—determined to curb the ambition of the military hero then, just as they have de- termined now. The consequence was that Scott received hardly enough votes to swear by—he was the worst beaten main that ever ran for President. The Whigs were dumb- founded at the result, and became so demor- alized that the party split to pieces and has never since been heard of. Let any one ex- amine the signs of the times closely, and he will see a close analogy between the present campaign and the one sixteen years ego. There is now a manifest reaction in public feeling throughout the country. The work- ing classes see that the only hope of the poor man consists in ousting from power the cor- morants who steal the people's money and who run the Government in the interest of the bondholder and other capitalists. The editor of the New York Star, one of the best politicians in the county, after care- fully studying the temper of the public mind, comes to the conclusion that the Indications are growing strong that the Presidential campaign of this year will cause as great a political revolution as that of 1852. In 1848, the Democratic party was badly beaten and Taylor was elected President. The Whigs thought they had a sure hold upon the Gov- ernment, and in 1852 they nominated Gen- eral Scott, the hero of Lundy's Lane and Mexico. When Scott was put upon the track the Whigs were as confident of his success as the Radicals now are of the success of their hero. But the deep under-current of public opinion set in against the Whig party, just as it is now setting in against the Radi- cals. The masses—the hourest, hard-working class—determined to curb the ambition of the military hero then, just as they have de- termined now. The consequence was that Scott received hardly enough votes to swear by—he was the worst beaten man that ever ran for President. The Whigs were dumb- founded at the result, and became so demor- alized that the party split to pieces and has never since been heard of. Let any one ex- amine the signs of the times closely, and he will see a close analogy between the present campaign and the one sixteen years ego. There is now a manifest reaction in public feeling throughout the country. The work- ing classes see that the only hope of the poor man consists in ousting from power the cor- morants who steal the people's money and who run the Government in the interest of the bondholder and other capitalists. They' have become disgusted with the negro policy of the Radicals, by which the latter have en- trenched themselves in the Government-matery	Horace Greeley, the great Mogul of Radi- calism, in a speech delivered not long since at Brooklyn, said: "I prged men day after day during the war to put their money into Government bonds, and told them these bonds would be paid in gold or its equivalent. Should they not be so paid I would feel that I had been a party to a swindle and a trick." The laboring men of the country are re- quired to devote one-half of their wages every day to the payment of taxes, in order that the bondholder may receive pay for his bonds in gold, because Horace Greeley ad- vised a few shoddy contractors and cotton thieves to invest their money in Government bonds at fifty cents on the dollar, and told them they would be paid in gold. If Greeley guaranteed the payment of the bonds in gold, the holders had better sue him on his guarantee. WILL HE RESIGN I In view of his being a candidate for Presi- dent, and holding the position of General of our Armics, the question is frequently urged that it is time General Grant would consider that propriety demands his resignation. His friends assured na be would follow the ex- ample of General McClellan, and, like him, tender his resignation, but they attributed to him a delicacy he does not possess, for there are reasons for stating that. he does not in- tend to resign at all, unless he is elected President, and as that event is most improba- ble, he proposes to hold on to a good thing. $20,000 a year is good, and General Grant is fearfully practical. GRANT's friends say that he shuns public demonstrations. Prentice says that's a mis- take. The shumning is all on the side of the demonstrations. WHEX asked why the public debt has not been reduced and the taxes diminished, the Rudicals exclaim, "Let us have peace." We have elected Mr. Belden, our candidate for delegate to Con- gress. We have accomplished a magnificent victory! GEO. W. PERKINS, Chairman Central Democratic Com. At the election for a Congressman in 1866, the vote of Colorado was as follows: Geo. M. Chilcot, Rep. 8,529 A. C. Hunt, Dem. 3,421 Scattering, 46 In 1867, in an election for Territorial offi- cers, 9,949 votes were cast, being an increase of 2,353 over the delegate election of 1866, The returns gave the Republicans a joint majority of 13 in the "Council" and "House."
