HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

Hoofland's German Tonic, The great Remedies for all Diseases of the Liver, Stomach or Digestive Organs,

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS Is composed of the pure julces (or, as they are medicinally termed, Extracts) of itools, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation highly concentrated and entirely free from alcoholic Hoofland's German Tonic s a combination of all the ingredients of the sitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz tum, Orange, etc., making one of the most leasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to be public.

pleasant and agreease statements in public.

Those preferring a Medicine, free from Alcoholic admixture, will use HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS. Those who have no objection to the combina-tion of the Bitters, as state i, will use HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.

They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a mere matter of tasic, the Tonic being the most paintable.

The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dysbility, etc., is very itons deranged. The Oliver, sympathizing as closely as it does with the Stomach, then becomes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatelence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, D sgust for Food, Fullness or Welght in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swinming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Viston, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Denciency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eves, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning of the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and Great Depression of Spirits.

The sufferer from these diseases should exercise the greatest caution in the selection of a remedy for his case, purchasing only that which he is as- of sured from his investigations and investigations and intrue merit, is skill-fully compounded is free from injurious ingredients and has established for itself a reputation for the care of these diseases. In this connection we would submit these well-known remedies—

It is a well established fact that fully one-half It is a well established fact that finly one-half of the female portion of our population aro seldom in the en-health; or, to use I their own exprés-sion, "never te el yell," They are lan-guid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended. Weak and delicate children are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail. Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of but few. These, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

DR, JACKSON-Dear Sir:—I have frequently been requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, kut regarding the practice as out of my-appropriate sphere, I inve in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course to express my full conviction that, for General Debility of the System, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but, usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above cause.

Fashionable Street Sweeping. "When lovely woman stoops to folly,"
And trails her dress-goods thro' the stree
A full half yard—'tis melancholy,
To say the very least of it.

Pray who could guess that so much beauty,
Would condescend to clean the pave
With silk and muslin!—yet a duty
Fashion demandeth of her slave.

And on they trip in gossiping dozens.
Reckless of how they gather well
The debris of the public highway—
Nameless, if decency would tell;
And gaiter boot with faultiess fitting
Must hide its charms from every eye,
Because, forsooth, some brainless beauty
Hath trailed her rich robes proudly by. See yonder, down the drizzly sidewalk That awkward chap-some thoughtle bore, Unknowing how to pass the damsel

Just where to put his foot-soles down, With dainty drapery idly floating— Floating in fact o'er half the town! And see the look the angel gave him As on she swept the dusty carth, While he—scared victim—stands and shivers For, 'tis as much as life is worth To stem the fury of a woman Even in fashionable guise; Better a whole brigade of foemen,

Has rent a couple breadths or more, How could be tell, poor harmless fellow,

Than lightning from her blazing eyes. "When lovely woman stoops to folly,"
And drags through mud her rich attire,
Sweeping abominable crossings, Rather than lift her drapery Each mother's son may stare and wonder, Each mother's son may stare and wonder, And smile in scorn, but nothing more. Unless to sigh for by-gone beauty Of snow-white ankles as of yore.

I made up my mind to get at once down to Devonshire, and settle everything rixi roce! I rang the bell for my servant, ordered my portmanteau to be got ready, and preparations made for my journey, I then carelessly broke the seal of my second letter. It had been misdirected, had travelled half over England, and was covered with very many postmarks. It was dated Bath, and began: "My dear Dick." I looked at the envelope closely: instead of Glover, Moore & Co., to whom I knew I owed a bill, found printed on the seal, "I love you more and more," with a heart, or something, in the middle. and not much of a coward, but I bursted into a cold perspiration as I read something to this effect—"My dear Dick—We left home before the arrival of your dear letter, which I shall forever keep, and have been traveling incessantly, so that it was not till last night. antly, so that it was not till last night

Fanny. Now this was pleasant, I was engaged to two women at once.

It will readily be perceived that I was in a fix, and how to get out of it was the question.

I could not see my way to do it creditably, but I determined that I would not be a black-guard. Marry two women I could not. Prefer one of the innocent little dears to could I bear the idea of tossing up, now that I had hooked them both—or rather, I should say, they had hooked me. Then, again, ugly ideas of irate fathers, gunpowder, and horse-whipping big brothers loomed in the distance. What on earth could be done? At hered all at home, the tarnish to the family name and the anathemas that would be launched at me across the waters by those I loved. Well, I made up my mind to go through it all, to see every one, and explain the matter fully. Surely, thought I, they must see it was a mistake, and will make allowance for me. What allowance they made you shall hear.

About three o'clock the next morning I knocked at a certain rectory, not many miles knocked at a certain rectory, not many miles from Exeter, the residence of Rev. Henry Mortlake Leslie. The footman answered the door, and on inquiring if his master was at home, showed me into the dining-room WILL be received up to October 5th for the Construction of a sewer on Tenth street, from Stage street to Mill Creek.

"Oh! the wretch," howled Margaret, "he has married another!" Then she fainted again. Water dashed into her face made her to shriek cuce more: "Papa, mamma; he is going to bring his wife here; he has got her in the hall. Oh-o-o!" Things were at a pretty pass. "Perhaps," said I to the father, "you will let me see you in another room, and I will give an explanation." "Certainly, sir, if the matter admits an ex-

We entered the study. He heard me through with compressed lips, and a face pale with rage; and his rubicund nose became white for the once. When I had all but finished, he burst out, "Sir, you blackguard, you brute, you villain, you scoundrel!"

"Allow me to explain, sir," said I.

A New church was being built in the vicinity where little Milton II—lived. The work went on very slowly; and sometimes stopped for days. At last Milton's patience was exhausted. "I do wish," he said, "they would finish that church." "Ah!" said his would finish that church." "Ah!" said his grandmother, "don't be in too big a hurry. The world wasn't made in one day." "I know it wasn't," Milton replied, "but when the Lord commenced to make it he never stopped until he finished it." control exported was simply imposed, so that he might buy it for a price six cents less than it was worth in the markets of the world. I say it was a vindictive act, for if you will read the debates in Congress, when this tax was levied to cover the selfish interest that prompted it, you will find that it was a vindictive act.

"You come here to steal my daughter's affections; I would horse-whip you were it not for my cloth. You dared not have thus outraged my feelings if I had not been a clergyman. Be off, sir, or I shall soon forget myself and swear. Be off, I say, or James shall kick you out!" He rang the bell for the footman. "James, kick this rascal out!" James hesitated.

"Allow me to explain, sir," said I.

Fellow Citizens:—The first words uttered by the republican convention, in their resolutions, congratulated the country upon the success of their scheme of reconstruction. The last words uttered by their speakers and their presses declare that reconstruction is a failure; that the south is still in a condition of rebellion; that its social disorders domand the presence of great armies, and that the first duty of Congress when it meets will be to turn reconstructed Georgia out of the Union again. [Applause.]

"Allow me to explain, sir," said I.

It is the dread that the public mind having been turned to its finan cial and political policy, is reaching conclu-sions which will sweep them from political power. Therefore, they seek to change the issues—therefore, they have changed their front in this contest. We are admonished that it is a dangerous thing to change front on the eve of battle, on the eve of battle.

I propose in the course of the canyass, on occasions like this, to discuss the conduct and policy of the men in power. To-night, I must confine myself to a few points—else. must comine mysell to a few points—else-where I shall speak of other wrongs and errors. When this war ended, nearly four years ago, it left the Southern States disor-ganized and impoverished. The duty of re-storing peace and perpetuity to that section and putting it into condition where it could add to the national prosperity and aid to bear The difficulties of the task were increased by the fact that its population was made up of two distinct races, one of which had been held in slavery, and was now suddenly called upon, untutored as they were, to act a now part in our social and political system. I do not wish to underrate the difficulties with which they had to contend. But the magni-tude of these difficulties demanded that they that of these difficulties demanded that they should enter upon the task in a wise, great and thoughtful way. Armies alone cannot bring back prosperity or a due sense of the value of order to a community. They can only restrain violence. The healing measures of the statesman must work the cures. The two great objects to be kept in view, were to give all classes that prosperity which tends to make men desire-peace, which gives them hopes, and in the end a stake in the them hopes, and in the end a stake in the good order of society. Despair ever makes disorder. Another great object and end was to lift up the African as fur and as fast as could be wisely done. Humanity dictated this. The interests of the white population of the South demanded it. As the two races were to live upon the same soil, their common interest called for harmony of purposes and of feelings.

Under this state of facts, wise men would seek the aid of the most intelligent and influential men of that section of the country. taking care to guard against any influences springing from their prejudices. Have these obvious truths been regarded by these men in power? Has not reconstruction failed be-cause they disregarded them? The first step cause they disregarded them? The first step towards restoring order and producing harmony between the races was in all ways to minister to the prosperity of that section—which prosperity would be shared alike by the white man and the negro. The industry of the South should be made profitable. Unless the complexer wades excitives the cert poverty, but confusion and discontent. True statesmanship, then, would have stretched out a helping hand. But what was the first excellent thing in woman. Indeed, we feel inclined to go much further than he has on the subject, and call it one of her crowning charms. How often the spell of beauty is rudely broken by cearse, loud talking. How often you are irresistibly drawn to a plain, unassuming woman, whose soft silvery tones render her positively attractive. In the social circle how pleasant it is to hear a woman talk in that low key which always characterizes the true lady. In the sanctuary of home how such a voice soothes the freful child, and cheers the weary husband.

The negro, exasperated by the labor of the interest of his ruined efforts under still greater difficulties than before. I say it was a selfish act, because it was done in the interest of the because it was done in the interest of the eastern manufacturer, already wealthy from the fruits of the war. Protected by enormous tariffs, this tax of six cents a pound upon all cotton exported was simply imposed, so that The world wasn't made in one day." I know it wasn't," Milton replied, "but when the Lord commenced to make it he never stopped until he finished it."

When a young man in some of the old countries goes a courting, the first queston the young woman asks him: "Are you alle to pay the charges?" That is to say, in plan English, are you able to keep a wife whear you have got her? Such a rule in this country would lessen the number of markages very materially, and would guard against much misery.
