Hoofland's German Tonic Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine, free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS. Those who have no objection to the combina on of the Bitters, as stated, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.

They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a mere matter of taste, the Tonic being the most palnatable.

GERMAN TONIC, A . . Arelmires os

DR. C. M. JACKSON, Philadelphia, Pa.

Twenty-two years since they were first introduced into this country from Germany, during which time they have undoubtedly performed more cures, and benefitted suffering humanity to a greater extent, than any other remedies known to the public.

These reniedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundies, or Nervous Debility, L. Chronic Diarrhea, Diseases of the Kiders arising from a distinction of the red Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

Resulting from any cause whatever; Prostra-tion of the System, induced by Severe Labor, Hardships, Exposure, Fevers, Etc. There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole system, the appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is cradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being. Persons advanced in life, and feeling the hand of time weighling heavily upon them, with all its attendant life, will find in the use of this HITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their voins, restors in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE. It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female portion are seldom in the enhalth; or, to use Later own expression, "never teel guid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite."

Weak and delicate children are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail. Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space with allow of but few. These, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS:

HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, Lx-Chief Justice of the Supreme Court or ennsylvania, writes:

"I find Hoofland's German Bitters is a good tonic, useful in gestive organs, and cases of debility, and tion in the system. Yours truly, GEO, W. WOODWARD."

HON. JAMES THOMPSON, ludge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania

"I consider Hoofand's German littlers a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience. Yours with respect.

JAMES THOMPSON."

FROM REV. JOS. H. KENNARD, D. D. Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Phila. DR. JACKSON-Dear Sir:-I have frequent been requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but priate sphere. I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in and particularly in the usefulness of Dr. N. Hoofiand's German Bitters, I depart for one from my usual course to express my full conviction that, for Civer Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fall; but, usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above cause.

Yours very respectfully,

Eighth, below Coates, St.

FROM REV. E. D. FENDALL, Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philad'a I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofiand's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic to all who are suffering from General Debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the Liver. Yours truly, E. D. FENDALL.

THE GRECIAN BEND. NEW HAVEN, OCT. 1868.
My DEAR MANSFIELD:—I am the happiest man alive. I am, in fact, so brim-full of happiess I shall have to reverse the natural or fully as she did before the attack; and we are to be married at Christmas, after all. And you, my dear fellow, shall be invited to the wedding, not, I assure you, on account of calling me "decidedly green" in your letter, and telling me I should always be making a fool of myself if I didn't keep myself better posted as .to ladies' fashions; but the prescription you gave me, in the same letter, worked so like a charm in removing my troubles, on that score, you are forgiven for laughing at my verdancy, and shall be permitted to come to our wedding, and to bring as many and as valuable bridal presents as you please, besides.

I suppose you would like to know how I wrought so complete a cure in so short a time. Well, I am ready, now, to begin at the beginning and tell you the whole story. Your reply to my letter came to me on the first train Friday morning; not a minute too soon, for the very next train brought Mr. Meserve and his family. I have be a like a charm in prompt of the present as you please, the beginning and tell you the whole story. Your reply to my letter came to me on the first train Friday morning; not a minute too soon, for the very next train brought Mr. Meserve and the first plane and the first train brought Mr. Meserve and the family. I have to say for the very next train brought Mr. Meserve and his family. I sent a boy immediately up with a note to Mary, telling her I was aware of her arrival, and that I would drive up that evening if I were able. The remainder of the afternoon I spent in making preparation for the interview. I really had a bad cold, which, for the first time in my life, I did not consider unfortunate, as I was assisted by it

"Are you leeling so very chilly as to be obliged to sit in your shawl?" she anxlously inquired, and added, "I am atraid it was presumptious for you to come out to-night." I am a little chilly, but I shall get over it presently, and lay aside my shawl. My cold is nothing serious," I replied in a slightly depressed tone.

comfort from you at once, if anything was troubling me. Do tell me, John, and relieve me of this dreadful suspense. Is it physical or mental trouble 9" or mental trouble?"

She said this so tenderly; and with such genuine sympathy in her tone and manner, I felt almost condemned for alarming her so genuine sympathy in her tone and manner, I felt almost condemned for alarming her so much. I took her hand in mine and was about to soothe her; but as I looked at her, all the regret I was beginning to feel for taking such a course with her, died out. She was dressed precisely as when I saw her at Newport. Her figure strongly reminded me of Aunt Sukey's looks in cold, raby days, when the rheumatic pains in her back were a little worse than common. I had no more misgivings as to the propriety of doing as I did. I felt that a work must be done, and might as well be done then as ever. What the result would be, I could not foresee. If I was outwardly calm, I believe that I inwardly felt quite as aginted as she did. After all this had passed through my mind, which, of course, did not take a quarter of the time it has to write it, I replied, gravely, to her last question—

"But my mind was not relieved, Mary. That was not the trouble. It seemed to me about as great's misfortune to have your mind and taste so fearfully warped as to see the auty in the semblance of such malformatic in the semblance of such malfo which, of course, are any the time it has to write it, I replied, gravely, the time it has to write it, I replied, gravely, to her last question—

"Both, Mary, both physical and mental."

My manner was so cold and restrained, so different, probably, from the meeting she had anticipated, she seemed exceedingly hurt by

"I must say, in justice to myself, John, that I never have seen much beauty or sense

"Why, John, you frighten and grieve me. Is it so serious you dare not tell me, or don't you wish for any sympathy?"

This she said rapidly, in an agitated, grieved tone, and then burst into tears. I never saw her weep before, and it was an impossibility for me to maintain the same cold manner toward her. I had not given her one accordance. When the most your nationer Manafald if Lating to work the same cold manner to ward her. I had not given her one accordance.

slawl with one hand—I was still holding her's in the other—and then as I alowly haid the shawl aside, I said, in a low tone, deliberately and distinctly, as she breathlessly watched my lips— "I have got the Grecian bend, Mary." As the words came out and she glanced at my figure, which showed as fashionable a Grecian bend as the most stylish ladies wear. Grecian bend as the most stylish ladies wear, imagine, if you can, the change in the expression of her countenance, from the sudden revulsion of her feelings. I shall be obliged to leave that part entirely to your imagination, for my pen is not sufficiently graphic to delineate the variety of feelings that were portrayed in her countenance. Surprise, indignation, grief, and a keen sense of the ludierous, were all there; but indignation was the most strongly depicted. She withdrew her hand from mine, as hastily as she would have taken it out of the fire. I withdrew her hand from mine, as hastily as she would have taken it out of the fire. I have no doubt, Mansfield, you are convulsed with hughter as you read this letter, and think what a combe tableau we must have made, just then. For comic it certainly must have been—she, standing motionless, transfixed by my audacity; I, standing so as to give ther the full benefit of my Grecian bend. That must be thoroughly done—done once for all, for never should I be caught again on such a bender.

But, grotesdue as I know I must have looked fudderous as it all would have seemed to you, I did not, one motion is laughing. There was quite too much at take, in the game I was playing, to permit even a

THE PEOPLE of Weedsport, New York, have invented a new church entertainment—a "inush and milk sociable." MRS. BILLINGTON, of Wayne, Maine ontered her one hundred and seventh year on the 8th inst. She is in good health.

A MARRIAGE took place in Thomaston, Maine, last Saturday, in which the bride-groom was eighty-five and the bride eighty. A BALTIMORE paper urges the male dry goods clerks of that city to throw down their yard-sticks and surrender to the women. A Sr. Louis husband has applied for a divorce on the ground that his wife is in the habit of throwing the children at his head.

The Chillicothe (Ohio) Gazette says that two citizens of that place have, one twenty-three, and the other twenty-five living children—each man having now his third wife.

Mr. Mussins says there is no country in the world where wives are more worshipped than in France. He regrets to say, however, that all the adoration comes from somebody else's husband. A young lady having promised her grand ma that she would never marry a certain fellow, "on the face of the carth," repaired with him, after the old lady died, to the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, and was married underground.

A MARRIED man in Constantinople had a difficulty with five of his wives, which he settled by tying them up in sacks and throwing them into the Bosphorus. His thirtyeight other wives have given him no trouble since that bit of house-cleaning came off. you would do such a thing. How could you

IT is a curious and instructive fact, that out of every 100,000 married persons (including widowers) at the age of 20,026 die before attaining the age of 25, while out of a similar number of persons unmarried, at the same age, no less than 1,231 die before attaining the age of 25. Last Friday, while a girl named Kennedy

MAST FIGURY, While a girl named Kennedy was passing through the woods near Memphis, she was seized by a negro and horribly violated. The next morning he was found by some of the citzens and identified by the child. He was then taken to the scene of violence and hanged. In Philadelphia it has been a peculiarity of the "old families" for the last six years, that they have assumed a simplicity of manner and dress, in order to be distinguished from those whose sudden riches are expended in all kinds of extravagance. "Elegant simplicity" is now the mode in Philadelphia. This is the way a colored gentleman of Great Barrington, Mass, announced his in-tended marriage, combining business with pleasure: "Notice:—Cezar Carter will be married at Miller's Hall, November'25, 1868, at 7 o'clock, P. M. Admittance to the Hall 50 cents. A good time expected. Come one, come all.—Seazar Carter.

to you, you feel that you cannot forgive me, then I must hear it and bear it the best I can; but I trust our happiness is not to be thus wrecked."

"O, John: how could you heat me so?" she sobbed, more in grief than anger, then bowed her head on the arm of the sofia and wept convulsively.

A Connectricut legislator having become satisfied that the majority of married people desire separation, proposes to annul all existing marriages. The small minority who are satisfied with their present condition can get married over again, which will be cheaper than to compel the majority to sue for divorces.

figures, especially as they are trying to do the same thing. The greatest scruple that arises in my mind is, that with my peculiar view of things, it does sometimes strike me a little like an indignity offered to the Great laboring class. Soon after this the return of the first husband was reported; whereupon the woman, who had kept the fact of her first marriage a profound secret, immediately disappeared, and the most diligent search by both husbands has failed to discover her retreat. A Connecticut man has had an excellent I did not speak, but gravely shook my head, as much as to say, "I have my doubts about it." She looked perplexed. She came to me and laid her hand gently on my shoulder, and said—

"Why didn't you let me know, John, that you were in trouble? I would have hastened home immediately. I should have sought comfort from you at once, if anything was troubling me. Do tell my lethen and saids. I then asked—
"Do you wish to finish that sentence."

She raised her head and looked thought: fully at me without replying. She was get ting glimpses of a side of my life that had been revealed to her but very little. If there was grief in her countenance then, I could mourning the proper time, married again. At last he came back, found his wife comfort from you at once, if anything was the finish that sentence.

> to marry, nay, that they want not to marry—and that they will not take to themselves wives on any consideration. They even pretend to erect their own practice into a precept, and to be the apostles of a new creed, whose first and last commandment is, "Thou shalt not be such an ass as to get married. shalt not be such an ass as to get married. They treely allow that they are a new variety of the human species: but they plead that they are a superior variety—in fact, the finest variety that has ever yet been produced.

A DASHING young widow in Detroit prepared a pleasant surprise for her suitor a few evenings since. Expecting a call from him, she hid herself in a convenient corner, and as he touched the knob of the door bell, sprang out in the darkness of the evening, and nearly smothered him—with kisses. His cool-reception of her caresses startled her with the recognition of the fact that in-stend of her lover she had been lavishing her sweetness upon the conductor of a street car who had come with a note explaining an un-forescen absence. The widow thereupon, with great propriety, fainted on the spot. THE WIFE OF M. V. de M-, of Antwerp, was recently safely delivered of four female children. According to the local journals, this occurrence created an immense sensation in the town. When the christening took for me to maintain the same-cold manner toward her. I had not given her one cares, or endearing epithet on meeting her, after a separation of more than six weeks; but now I mised her hand to my lips, and said—

I raised her hand to my lips, and said—
"Yes, darling, I do want your sympathy, and the fear that I shouldn't get it has added fully one-half to my trouble. I am afraid it will not seem so serious a thing to you as it does to me, and that you will make light of it. I have suffered a good deal in my mind.

I shall make this, letter too long and weary your patience, Mansfield, if I stop to write all I said in reply. You know you used to say: "When John gets inspired he is quite eloquent." I don't know about the eloquence: but I do know, if I ever felt inspired and talked in carnest, I did then. I think I succeeded in convincing her that it should be her part in life to become a teacher and godmothers, were to pass. Cries of "Vicent lee epour V de M—! On my return, my Mary, my own Mary, no longer crippled and bowed over like Aunt Bukey; but with the same graceful figure and elastic motions she had before going to Newport, met me in the hall. I passed my arm around her and pressed my lips to hers. I whispered—

"Is it true, darling, that you never can for rive me?"

She did not speak, but from the gentle, answering pressure of her lips to mine, I knew that I was forgiven, and that the Grecian bead had disappeared from her forever.

A FORCIBLE ELOPEMENT.—The New Haven Register says: "We learn from a gentleman round agentleman from Bridgeport, that yesterday (17th inst.) a Miss Cooley, a scholar at Mrs. Warding school in that city, was forcibly carried off by a young gentleman named Willett, of Broeklyn, to whom she was engaged to be married when her education should be completed. He called at the house where the young lady boarded, and proposed that she and a lady friend should accompany him to the depot. As the train was about to start, he seized her around the waist, lifted her into the cars, and was off before an alarm could be given. They got off at Westport, and were noticed on the road, she crying and acting as it reluctant to go on; and although active search has since been made their whereabouts have not been ascertained, or any clue to the affair. It is said the young lady fainted in the cars; but the presence of the groom.

smile to pass over my features. I know you used to say, when I was a boy, that I was incorrigibly mirthful and playful, finding fun and amusement in everything, turning the whole of life into comedy. But you know that was not altogether true when you said it. That underneath that uppercrust of fun-and frolic were hidden some soher and com-mon-sense views of life, which sometimes came to the surface and revealed themselves. The sober side came to the top, that night, and smothered all lighter feelings, for vital consequences seemed, to me, to be connected with that evening's performance. I tell you,

NO. 31.

Mansfield, I never felt more serious in a Mansfield, I never felt more serious in a prayer-meeting.

Mary was the only girl I had ever loved as I felt I ought to love the woman I sought in marriage. I trusted she loved me as truly and devotedly as I did her. What was in store for us in the future? Would she ever forgive me for thus caricaturing her sex? Would she be led to see how ridiculous, if not positively sinful, it was thus to disfigure the beautiful form God had given her? Or would she persist in being a fashionable woman at the expense of health, and all true and refined ideas of beauty, for no other reason than because it was fashionable? Should we, from that night, come nearer to each we, from that night, come nearer to each other, understand each other better, have more exalted views of life, and mutually assist each other in attaining to a more correct knowledge of the really beautiful, good and true? Or would, henceforth, our lives run in diverging lines? These questions passed rapidly through my mind, in the few instants that she stood silent and motionlesss. As soon as her surprise permitted her to speak, she indignantly exclaimed—

"O, John! I wouldn't have believed it possible for you to play such a cruel joke upon me. Nothing could have convinced me that

That is, I must give vent to myjoy by giving you the sequel of the story before I give you the story itself.

The Grecian bend has entirely disappeared from Mary, and has not left a trace behind. She looks as beautifully and moves as gracefully as she did before the attack; and we are to be married at Christmas, after all. And you, my dear fellow, shall be invited, to the weekling not I assume you on account of the story in a story in the story is a story in the story in the story is a story in the story in the story in the story is a story in the story in th

As soon as it was dark I took a large shawl, which I throw on one my outside coast when taking long drives in the winter, and wrapped it closely around me. Thus muffled, in October, I got into my carriage and dreve up to Mr. Meserves. Mary met me at the door. The shawl, which was rown in a sollows:

"Then what is the matter, dear?" she tenderly asked. "Tell me, won't you, John? Perhaps I can comfort you."

I did not speak, but gravely shook my head, as much as to say, "I have my doubts about it." She looked perplexed. She came to me and laid her hand gently on my shoulder, and said—

Her reply was: "I wouldn't have grieved you so this night."

I took both her hands in mine, and told her the whole story of my going to Newport. She smilled through her tears before I was half through, and laughed repeatedly before I closed. As I finished, I said—
