How We do Love the Soldiers ! The soldiers who were led to believe that their services in the army were to be forever held in grateful remembrance are beginning to think that they have been grossly and implidently humburged.

During the last six years the staple topic of Radical orators was "our heroic boys in blue.' It was our brave soldiers here, and our brave soldier's there. "Vote for Grant," they said last fall; "he is a soldier, and will take care that soldiers receive their reward. Copperheads, rebels and sympathizers must be made edious.' Well, Grant is President, and what do w see ? An original rebel takes a seat in the Cabinet. The right hand man of Lea is given the faitest office in the whole South. Union soldiers, like Gen. Knipe, are turned out of place to make room for corrupt politicians like George Bergner. The applications of soldiers are contemptuously rejected, and the offices being filled' with stay-at-homes, who care nothing for the soldiers except as they help their party interests. These are facts which no amount of rant or fustian will conceal from the observation of the public. Take the case of our own section.

Capt. G. P. Davis, a one armed soldier who fought nobly in some of the severest actions of the war, was a candidate for Marshal of the Western District. He was promised the position, but when he went on to Washington for the purpose of laying his any of Gen. Grant's nominations, and dis claims before the President, found that the office was already peddled out. A member gusted with the flattery cast upon a rebel chief, left the Schate Chamber, and failed to of the Home Guards has since received the record their votes against a nomination which appointment.

they privately denounce as unfit to be made. Capt. J. C. Hilton, another galant fellow, A distinguished Senator from New England whose wooden limb; attests his patriotism, was a candidate for the Post Office in this remarked that it would be futile hereafter to consider any of the President's nominations. city. He was supported by the Grand Army as everything was to be put through. Then, there was out circleal friend Whal lon, who did enough fighting of Copperheads in the church and out, to entitle him to a warrior's sach, and who had, hesides, pledged himself that all his employees should be soldiers. Where five applicants were in the field, quence to be entered into without mature three of whom were respectively a soldier, the father of soldiers, and the soldiers' friend, it might be supposed that the "boys in blue" were certain of recognition in some shape or party achieve the independence of the island other.

Such, however, is not the view taken by the favor dispensing power at Washington. Astif to heap insult upon injury, the Administration deliberately overlooks the applications of all these parties, and goes out of the offer recognition to the party of rebellion beway to hunt up a gentleman who already fore they have some assurance of success. Amiable and competent Mr. Gara certainly is, and on personal grounds we are rather pleased at his good fortune. But even his warmest friends will not claim that he rendered much service in the field. The other two appointees in our city, Messrs. Douglass and Rogers, are of the same of course placed themselves outside of the class-both being prominent and distinguished members of the Home Guards. In Mr. Douglass' case, we dreshold, that a soldier was first tendered the place, but he was more magnanimous than those we have mentioned, and "declined" for reasons that are yet to be explained.
