MADAME PAREPA ROSA died in London last Friday morning. She was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, where she was born in 1829.

An incomprehensible mystery to ninety-nine in every hundred men who receive and live on three and four hundred dollars per year, why men who are salaried at three, four and five thousand dollars a year want their salaries raised. It is a question whether the men who receive such salaries can explain satisfactorily to their own minds why they ask for the increase.

COMMUNISTS insist that it is the bounden duty of government to maintain and give work to those who are out of employment, and their organizations, it is said, will insist—if they ever get strong enough to control the policies of the country—on the incorporation of such doctrines in the fundamental law. To put such a theory into practice in governmental affairs would soon run Communism into Feudalism, and in less than a century build up a system of white slavery or vassalage, something akin to that of the middle ages. Instead of enlarging the freedom of the individual it would circumscribe it.

NEARLY one fourth of the people of this country are dependent on manufacturing establishments for a living. Free trade would throw this class out of employment and the means of obtaining a living until other ways and means could be devised for their maintenance, which would require several years to do. During the change or passage of the transition state, the distress that would accompany it cannot be imagined; no effort at description could reach it. There are thousands out of employment now, and the country is much distressed in consequence thereof. The distress that now prevails is almost as nothing compared to the distress that would follow free trade.

"GREAT excitement was created at Petrolia on Monday a week over the finding of a large quantity of nitroglycerine, which had been secreted in a cave used for keeping lager beer cool. The packages contained about eight pounds of the treacherous stuff, enough to send the whole town to destruction on the shortest notice. A party named John Wilkins was arrested on suspicion of having concealed the dangerous compound, and bound over in the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars to answer the charge. While the trial was in progress some cool headed fellows managed to burgle the nitroglycerine from the authorities, who have not yet succeeded in recovering the article or getting any trace of its whereabouts."

"In the excellent account of Eylon by the late Sir J. E. Tennent, he mentions that he was told by a native the one hundred men for which the products of the cocoa-nut tree were made available. They were as follows: The nut and its juices for food, for drinking, for oil, curries, cakes and cosmetic; the shell for cups, lamps, spoons, bottles and tooth-powder; the fibre which surrounds it for hats, brushes, nets, ropes, cordage and cables; the fruit sap for spirits, sugar and vinegar; the blossoms for preserves and pickles; the web sustaining the fruit stalks serves for strainers and fans; the leaves furnish twenty-seven appliances for thatch, matting, fodder, baskets and minor utensils; and lastly, the trunk yields fourteen appliances for building, furniture, firewood, ships, fences and farming implements."

By a vote of eighteen to eight the Kentucky Senate refused to hoist the stars and stripes over the Capitol.

The Siamese Twins Dead.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF THE MOST CELEBRATED TWINS OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

The celebrated Siamese Twin wonders, Eng and Chang, residing in Mount Airy, Surry county, N. C., since 1861, are reported dead. There are no details of the event further than the fact that Chang expired first, and in two hours after Eng breathed his last.

The story of the life of the twins is very interesting. Their mother bore seventeen children, never giving birth to less than two. The twins were united at the anterior part of the chest by a prolongation of a kind of fleshy band the size of the hand. This band of flesh is about two inches broad and four inches thick. The whole mass is tough and capable of being considerably extended. One could whisper in the ear of one without the other hearing, while volatile salts applied to the nostrils of one had no effect on the other; and while pinching the arm of one excited no sensation in the other, still if you but stuck a pin in the exact vertical centre of the connecting link, both would flinch from the hurt.

The twins were seldom observed to converse with each other. They played a good game of draughts, made pretty much the same moves, and at the same time, and frequently played against each other. After attracting a vast amount of attention among scientists and physiologists in the Old World, they married two sisters, and settled down near Salisbury, N. C., on a well-stocked plantation.

The Bengal famine is thus dwelt on by a New York despatch of the 21st: Some of the Greek merchants doing business here are in receipt of private advices stating that the impending famine in Bengal creates the gravest apprehensions abroad. It is thought that the preparations of the Indian government to avert it are entirely inadequate, and prompt assistance from Great Britain will be required to prevent a repetition of the Orissa famine of 1865, when seven hundred thousand people perished.

If a famine takes place, it will undoubtedly produce great misery in the English money market. The merchants referred to have advices stating that the money market in Calcutta and Bombay is already very stringent, owing to the failure of the rice crop.

A despatch from Trenton, N. J., under date of January 22nd, says: Dr. Liverzey, of Yardleyville, Bucks county, Pa., was arrested yesterday on complaint of the Coroner of Mercer county, N. J., founded on a verdict of a jury of inquest that one James A. Grant, of this county, came to his death by taking emphysema of potassium, sold by said Dr. Liverzey, for iodine of potassium, which was ordered by the prescribing physician. The doctor, who is a druggist, was taken to the Doylestown jail, whence he will be brought by requisition from the Governor of New Jersey and tried in this city.

The congregation of Rev. Kemp's church, in Miami City, Ohio, were startled Sunday night in the midst of the service, by the sudden death by apoplexy, of B. F. Ellis, while seated in a chair near the pulpit. Rev. Mr. Landis was preaching, when some of the congregation heard Mr. Ellis more, and a moment after observed his head fall back. Persons nearest him supposed that he was asleep, but they were suddenly terrified by the discovery that he was dead. The scene was made particularly startling by the agonizing screams of the adopted daughter of Mr. Ellis, whose intense grief thrilled the congregation. Every effort was made to resuscitate Mr. Ellis, but in vain. Mr. Ellis was probably near 70 years of age, although he had the appearance of a man not exceeding 60 years.

The Railway Monitor for December says that 4,190 miles of railway were built in this country during 1873. The total number of miles now in operation is 17,564. The total number of miles in Pennsylvania is 5,845, which is greater than that of any other State except Illinois, which has 6,479 miles. 412 miles were built in Pennsylvania last year.

The Richmond Enquirer says that hundreds of well-to-do families in England are preparing to emigrate to Virginia in the spring, thinking it better to purchase lands in the Old Dominion than to lease them in England at an annual rental of $25 per acre. A number of English families have already bought $50,000 worth of lands in America, and are highly pleased with the result.

Senator Merion has prepared a speech, which he intends to make before long, on the resolution looking to a Federal supervision over the railroads, introduced by him on Thursday. He will cover the whole subject, fortifying his position by copious citations. He will take the strongest possible ground for minute control by the general government of the whole inter-State railroad system.

A San Antonio (Texas) despatch says: On Friday, the 9th inst., at Newton, Mexico, a boy was chased by Indians. Mexican citizens started immediately in pursuit and overtook the Indians. After a hard fight of eight hours they succeeded in killing the whole band, consisting of nine Indians and one squaw. Two citizens were wounded. The Indians are supposed to have been Comanches from their reservation.

NEWS DISPATCHES.

A despatch from Jersey City, under date of the 21st inst., says: A terrible homicide occurred a few days ago in the township of Headfield, Hunterdon county. A colored man named Theodore Cruise lives in a small hut on Sourland mountain, East Amwell township. His place is the resort of many negroes from the surrounding districts. One night last week a disturbance occurred, when Cruise's son ran to the door, armed with a huge club, and challenged any one of the party to come out and fight him. His mother went out to quiet him and he struck her a blow on the head with his club, felling her instantly. He then fled. Israel Moroco, Cruise's half-brother, armed himself with a huge carving knife, and accompanied by another negro, George Thompson pursued the son, overtaking him and stabbing him mortally with the knife. Cruise's mother soon recovered, but he died two days afterward. Moroco and Thompson have been arrested.

A Harrisburg despatch of the 21st inst. says: At an early hour this morning Adam Grove, engineer on the Northern Central Railroad, was instantly killed at Bridgeport, opposite Harrisburg. The deceased was under the engine doing some work, when some case, which were being shifted, struck the engine, which ran over Grove, breaking his back and crushing him terribly.
