THREE ANGELS

They say this life is barren, drear, and cold Ever the same sad song was sung of old, Ever the same long weary tale is told, And to our lips is held the cup of strife; And yet a little love can sweeten life.

They say our hands may grasp but joys de

Whose night, with wild, tempestuous storms i

And yet -a little hope can brighten life. They say we fling ourselves in wild despair Amidst the broken treasures scattered there Where all is wrecked, where all once promised

And stab ourselves with sorrow's two-edged knife.

And yet—a little patience strengthens life. Is it then true, this tale of bitter grief Of mortal anguish finding no relief! Lo! midst the winter shines the laurel's leaf; Three angels share the lot of human strife, Three Angels glorify the path of life-

Love, Hope, and Patience cheer us on our Love, Hope, and Patience form our spirits Love, Hope, and Patience watch us day by

And bid the desert bloom with beauty vernal Until the earthly fades in the eternal.

House and Home.

A lady once went to an auction, and bought a house in a very favorite and fashionable locality. It was only leasehold; but the price it was going for was so very low, she was tempted. £100, I think, was the sum it was knocked down to her for, and she boasted of her bargain until she found she had to pay £300 a year ground rent, and that the £300 a year ground rent, and that the house would not let for more than £200. I have been informed, but do not quite believe it, that her husband was vexed. That was exceptionally a bad bargain; but few people, who are not criminals or paupers, are lodged for nothing. Clergymen, secretaries, and farm baborers, indeed, are sometimes housed; but then the fact is taken into consideration, and they pay indirectly. If you buy a house and live in it, you lose the interest of the money invested; so, as far as mere pecuniary considerations go,it comes pretty near the same thing. bo not accase me, O impatient reader, of boring you will trite truisms.
