LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Gen. Langhorn Wister will be elected Congressman from this district.

A terribly murderous 'White League' riot has caused the death of many people in New Orleans.

A thousand to fifteen hundred people can shelter from rain and intense sunshine in the buildings in the Park.

There will be an abundance of ice cool water for all, at the Park during the days of the fair, free.

The Juniata County Agricultural Society expect to have a brass band to accompany their Fair.

Mr. John Wright has on hand a few fine copper bottles of large size, suitable for bottling apple butter, which he offers at reduced prices.

TO THE JUDGES ON PREMIUMS AT RIVERSIDE PARK—You are respectfully invited to meet at the ticket office, on the ground at 11 o'clock A. M., promptly on Wednesday.

Almost every family in the county can take something to the Fair that will claim the attention of their neighbors, and increase the variety and interest of the collection.

The prospects are that the people of Tuscarora Valley in a short time will be all aglow for the extension of the Selingsgrove and North Branch Railroad.

Samuel Strayer's new clothing store room is nearing completion. In the meantime he is selling all kinds of men's wear in a room almost directly opposite the old stand.

The picnic of Reform Council, Junior Order U. A. M., was largely attended in Lauer's wood, on Friday.

The Democratic Conference, that convened at Newport, Perry county, on last Wednesday, labored in vain to effect a nomination till Friday morning.

It is not often that the water in the Juniata river gets as low as it is now.

A grand stand to seat five hundred people has been erected near the judges' stand in the Park.

Philadelphia markets on Saturday morning were quoted as follows: Wheat, red, $1 22 1/2; amber, $1 22 1/2.

McKee is out in another statement against Beecher. It is simply a reiteration, and an effort to sustain his former statement, and if penned by Moulton, evidences that he has considerable ability in the ingenuity of composition.

THE ALTONA TRIBUNE says that James Fisk, Sr., father of the late Eric Prince James Fisk, passed through that town, the other day, enroute to Johnstown, Cambria county, and that a confidence man had selected the old gentleman as a victim.

Mr. McKee, to the "manor born," was there. He, too, like Spear, has served a term in Congress, and the fact of his presence at the conference as a candidate bore evidence that he liked the life, and if the securing of a second term was to be had he was ready to receive it.

THE PRICES OF TICKETS for the Fair, to be held at Riverside Park and Agricultural Association grounds, Sept. 22d, 23d, 24th and 25th, 1874, are as follows:

Single admittance, 25 cents; Family ticket, (on foot), to include heads of families and all members thereof, under 21 years of age, 1.50.

Excursion tickets will be sold during the four days of the Fair between Huntingdon and Harrisburg.

VALUABLE PERSONAL PROPERTY AT PUBLIC SALE.—Wm. M. Allison will sell, at his residence in this borough, on Saturday, September 26, 1874, a large and valuable assortment of Household Furniture, consisting in part of Bedsteads, Bureaus, Washstands, Tables, Sofas, Chairs, Mirror, Bookcases, Carpets, Piano, Pictures, &c., &c.

Large stock of ready made clothing of the latest and choicest styles, for men and boys, hats, caps, boots and shoes, notions, Furnishing goods in endless variety for sale at Samuel Strayer's, in Patterson.

Down to Newport.—Democratic Congressional Conference there.—The Candidates and Others. Catching a few hours of leisure, last Thursday, we left for Newport on the noon mail train, and almost before we realized it had traversed the twenty-two intervening miles, and reached the chief town of Perry county.

The town has lost the antiquated appearance it had a dozen years ago, when we last passed through its streets. The past six years have been years of vigorous growth and improvement. It looks like a new town. Its population rises to nearly 2,000.

On our arrival there we had but fairly left the depot when we met, on the side walk, H. B. Zimmerman, editor of the Newport News. Time's unavoidable embrace has somewhat marked him, but the same individuality of mien and peculiarity of face that characterized him when he carried the banner of the Superintendent of Common Schools in this county, marks his every appearance yet.

Passing the Branch of the Juniata Valley Bank of this place, we stepped in and found a Juniata county man duly, regularly, installed as cashier, and at work there. Barring the money in such institutions, it was one of the most exquisitely arranged places of the kind imaginable.

As we proceed here, was in his place, as smooth in speech and as placid in countenance as a mountain lakelet. He is gliding down toward the border-land of the kingdom of young bachelorhood, and if he miss that disconsolate place by a step into marriage kingdom, his better-hal had better be an exquisite in the artistic keeping, arrangement, and management of a house, for the order of the effects of the Bank, furniture, everything, indicate practical order and arrangement fully developed.

Up town farther the salutation "Good day, sir," came at us out of an open window. Of course we looked in, and there, among piles of money of the Branch of the Millerstown Bank, sat William Rickenbaugh, cashier, also a Juniata county man, young and cheerful. He pronounced the institution in a wholesome condition, and believes Newport to be a No. 1 town.

By and by we reached the Miller House, just then the political focus of a contest for Congressional nomination. Groups of men were standing and sitting about it, and one skilled at reading at a glance the character of a crowd, would have pronounced it a gathering of politicians. Such it was. It was made up of conferees and outside supporters of the Democratic candidates for Congressional nomination for the district composed of the counties of Huntingdon, Fulton, Franklin, Perry, Snyder and Juniata.

There were only three of the candidates there: Fisher of Juniata, McKee of Perry, Spear of Huntingdon, who also had the conferees from Snyder county. The candidates from Fulton and Franklin counties were not there.

Mr. Spear had six conferees, and, as far as appearances went, had the inside track. He was as genial as ever, his face all the while beaming with intelligence. What a handsome and easy courier he would make; how royally and loyally he could bend the knee to a Sovereign, King or Queen; how gallantly he could kiss a lady's hand, with no more thrill than the act of courtesy and politeness itself would impart.

With an open face and good heart, he is collected, and understands the wiles and guiles of men quite well; well enough to not sorrow over disappointment. Mr. McKee, to the "manor born," was there. He, too, like Spear, has served a term in Congress, and the fact of his presence at the conference as a candidate bore evidence that he liked the life, and if the securing of a second term was to be had he was ready to receive it.

men there perhaps was the oddest. With modesty as tender as a woman's, a kind heart for a friend and a blow for a foe, and an acquaintance with the ins and outs of intrigue, he watched the game in speechless silence.

Cornman, of the Huntingdon Monitor, was there, spectated. His dark hair with pleasant looking curls in it seemed too cheerful for his grave face. He sat most of the time, and if his face was an avenue to his mind he was off into the realms of thought as often as into the conference with the contending conferees, and every now and then he thrust the point of his cane into the floor of the porch as if he would impale his opponents on a Spear. He looked dangerous, and if the Huntingdon lawyer, who encountered his ire at the late Democratic State Convention at Pittsburgh, had been there, he would have pronounced him thoroughly game.

Ex-Senator Petriken, a Democratic candidate for Governor, was there. How like a cultivated Greek of the olden time he looks, clever, recognizing the amenities in life. You look into his countenance and a gleam of the diplomat unfolds itself, and you do not wonder that during his first winter as Senator at Harrisburg, certain Philadelphia friends paid him a visit at his quarters at the Bolton House, and discharged a couple of muskets over the transom of the door of his room; and the more you look at him the more easily you can understand with what coolness he remarked on that occasion: "Hell's broke loose; The devils are all here."

Did he talk that way to Spear at Newport? Who knows? The most shocking thing said about the protractedness of the conference was that if the conferees had to pay their board bills the nominations would soon be made. The panacea for this terrible reflection on the conferees was found in the fact that the man who made it lives outside of the district; he lives in Millin county.

The conference had opened the day before—Wednesday—but up to the time at which we left for the depot, 2.30 P. M., they were still at sea, with eighty odd ballots on the record.

On the way to the railroad we met John Shibley, editor of the Broadfield Advocate and Press. He had been looking at the conference from afar. Mr. Shibley served last winter in the Legislature, and if he becomes a candidate again he should be returned. He has battled long and faithfully for his party and party friends, and if he asks the pittance of a reelection to the Legislature they should hasten to give it to him. Must honest and faithful labor go unrewarded?—Must the men who keep the banners on the outer walls never be asked into the feast?

To all Whom it May Concern.—Know ye that I am prepared to furnish anything in the Furniture line that you may need, and at less cost than you can buy any place else. CHAIRS, the best stock ever kept in this county, I sell cheaper than the cheapest, and guarantee my work to be equal, if not superior, to any other for sale in this county. Come and examine before going elsewhere, as I am confident I can please you. Remember the place, on North Main street, Millintown, Pa. Respectfully yours, WM. F. SNYDER.
