Perryville—Its Business People
The Fair held there Last Week.
MIFFLINTOWN, SATURDAY EVENING, October 10th, 1874.
Editor Sentinel and Republican:
Perryville is located on the west branch of the Juniata river, at its junction with Treverser creek, and by the late census—in 1870—has a population of 560 persons. There is little about it that is antiquated in appearance; it looks new and fresh, and has pretensions and aims that exceed many larger and older towns. But a few years ago it moved the whole county to an election on the question of moving the county buildings within its precincts, and only since the commencement of the building of the new Court House has it ceased to breathe or express its passion for its acquisition. If I could feel that it was only a flirtation on their part for the obtaining of the capital of the county, it would be pleasant than to believe that they were really desperately in love with lawyers, courts, jail, court house, and their necessary adjuncts, and really wanted to possess them. How their hearts must ache, now that the object of their love has passed beyond their reach forever.

While there are no quite rich people in the town, a number of citizens have amassed considerable property, and there are no really poor people among them. Possibly no town of its size in the State has more money and property so evenly distributed.
The religious and moral requirements of the place are far greater than most towns of double its population, as three large churches evidence beyond dispute. These churches are Presbyterian, Lutheran and Methodist. The ministerial requirements of the first are supplied by the Rev. H. Stewart, an earnest, able, young, fine-looking, Anglo-Saxon, unmarried man. The second is amply supplied in all that pertains to its moral and religious wants, by the Rev. H. C. Schindler, and the third, and by its rapidly increasing membership, is abundantly cared for by the Rev. W. R. Whitney and Rev. Wm. Marshall.

It can boast of one of the most thorough Academic institutions in the State. "Ary View Academy" was founded in 1852, by Prof. David Wilson. Years before he had most successfully conducted "Academia," and when he opened at "Ary View," the solid reputation he acquired at the former institution gave "Ary View" such a start that it took rank immediately among the first Academies of the Commonwealth, which place it has ever since maintained.

The Common Schools of the town are taught by Wellington Smith—who has been prominently before the county for the office of Superintendent of Common Schools, and there is no telling where he may land in the system, for he is yet a young man—and John Turbett.

The Juniata Valley Bank has a branch bank there; its precious treasures are presided over by Mason Irwin, of Millintown.

Messrs. Buck, Okeson, Mills, Jones, Gibson and Herr are the heads of the six mercantile establishments of the town, and J. H. Thompson furnishes jewelry not only for the town but for a large district outside. Confectioneries, such as would do credit to a large place, are sold by Cyrus Funk, Robert Logan, and Mrs. Plater. "The weed" of course is not eschewed, but freely smoked and chewed, and sold by tobaccoist J. Smindle. Everything complete in the line of such necessary articles in housekeeping as hardware, are promptly supplied by Henry Oves and John Dunbar. Saddlery, harness, and trunks of every description are made by J. L. Mills and John Lepley, and the sales of the feet of men are cared for by shoemakers John Taylor, Wm. Rutherford and L. D. Cyril, while their bodies are covered with fashionable clothing made by merchant tailor Mills. Blacksmithing is done by Samuel and John Beaver, and cabinet-making carried on by Henry Brenniss-boltz, Wm. Oves and Benjamin Stummell. The latter also performs the sad but necessary office of undertaker.

Handsome and substantial coaches are made by J. B. Thompson, and pumps that flow water without much work are introduced by William Noble. Carpenters Henry Speice and William McCormick put up the buildings. John Gamberger paints them. Doctors Graham, Beale and Shelley heal the wounded and make the sick well, and William Wright and William James look and take their bread, pies and cakes, and the best of beef they get from butchers Arbogast and Runkle. Dentist Dr. Burian draws teeth in the most approved way, and inserts artificial ones on the most scientific principles. Charles Emery, after the manner of a skilled workman, cuts stones. McMillan and Shields dispense the hospitalities of their respective inns with the civility of hotel keepers of the olden school. Abraham Kaley deals in produce, Samuel Ard is the market car man, and Noah Hertzler and Samuel Herr buy grain of all kinds and in any quantity. The Post Office is most faithfully kept by Miss Maggie Whorton, daughter of Captain Whorton. The ladies of Perryville dress handsomely, which need be shaped and put into form by milliners, Mrs. Brownsholtz, Mrs. Isenberg, and Mrs. Pfaler and dress makers Mrs. Oves, Mrs. Shaffer, Mrs. Logan and Mrs. Dennis. D. R. P. Bealer sells fruit and other trees.

How many industries and enterprises in that snug village I missed as I journeyed through it, last Thursday, in the gloom and splash of rain to the grounds of the Juniata Agricultural Society, I do not know. It was the Fair of that Society I went to see. The entrance to their grounds is at the north-east corner. I passed through the gate about noon, and stepped a short distance from it and looked over the enclosure. The contrast between it and the grounds of the fair, which were apparent, but as it is not my purpose to draw comparisons in this letter, the contrast is only mentioned and passed. Mr. Jamison, the President of the Association, stood but a little distance away, smoking a cigar, seemingly unconcerned by the besieging rain as Grant was when he cut loose from old landmarks and floated below Vicksburg, to re-open the battle with renewed and quickened vigor. High Hamilton, Judge Burchfield, the William Heuch and other pillars in the Millin town, stood near by, and here and there over the green, near a stand, far apart, like mile stones, stood a turnpike road.

A few ladies clustered in Floral Hall and in the building set apart for the exhibition of fruit, grain and vegetables generally. There were as many people in attendance as could be expected in the rain and mud of that day.
Riverside Park Association is a modest association, but because it is endowed with that enviable quality of credit that is due it for giving the Juniata County Agricultural Society the most complete exhibition it ever had. It is true the former association did not furnish the exhibition directly for the fair, but the force of its example has been so powerful that the latter society was quickened into new life. To its old and sluggish movement was imparted the elastic step of vigorous youth; and the result has been that they have had a fair that the whole county can be proud of. If there had been no other articles on exhibition than the fruit, grain and vegetables, that would have done amply, but every other department had its quota filled, and there are no unfavorable criticisms.
The music during the fair was rendered by the Perryville Brass Band under the leadership of R. McMeen. A number of young musicians from Millin were in the band, assisting in its music.
On Friday there was a foot race by young men—half mile heats—which was won by a student of Ary View Academy named G. W. Plater, in 2:28. There was also a running race by two horses. The race was won by a horse ridden by D. Beale, a youth about 14 years of age.
On account of the bad weather the fair did not close on Friday, but was continued on Saturday. On the afternoon of that day the trot by county horses took place. Isaac Sieber's Country Girl won the race. Time, 9:15. Dr. Bank's horse, Dasher, came in second, and John Fink's horse came in third. The time was not what it would have been if the track had been in proper condition for trotting. The late rains had spoiled it for fast trotting.

Respectfully yours,
MAIN STREET.

The "City of Palms" lay bathed in light, which fell upon turret and tower and dome.
Twas not heeded by all—for the darkness of night,
Shrouded the eyes of the beggar lone,
Who sat by the wayside, near the gate,
Patiently waiting with outstretched palms
Toward the passers by, both early and late,
For gentle charity's kindly aid.

The Beatty & Plotts celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organ is by far the best parlor organ in use. I have carefully examined it, and find its tone, workmanship and durability to be the best I ever saw, and I can with pleasure recommend it to any one who is in want of a first-class parlor organ.

Messrs. Beatty & Plotts, Gentles—Having had one of your Golden Tongue Parlor Organs for six months past, I thought before recommending it to give it a fair trial, and so I have to testify that it surpasses all that I have ever used or ever seen. There are three different professors of music and celebrated organists come and try it, and all say that it is one of the sweetest and best toned instruments in the market. It has taken the shine out of all the others around here. I am perfectly satisfied with it, and if I could not get another of the same kind, I could not get another one to part with it. You may publish this if you see fit, as my organ can be tried by any one wishing to do so, in proof of what I say.
