LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Wheat fields are improving in appearance. Hollidayburg had a Bee last Friday evening. Exchanges are noticing the close of soup houses.

Abraham is to have a Bee on Saturday, the 17th. Mumps is the epidemic now among town children.

Enos Bergy is shipping a lot of horses east this week. Huntingdon Presbytery convened at Park Royal yesterday.

Lewistown had a lively Spelling Bee last Friday evening in the Court House. John McEwen shipped a lot of hand-made and well-fattened steers east on Friday.

A troupe of showmen entertained players in Graybill's Hall last Friday evening. Fifteen hundred pounds of stones are required to keep the town clock in running order.

Fields from which wheat was taken last winter, have little grass on them; it was killed by frost.

Simon Zook, of Millin county, lost $240 and his pocket book a few days ago while going home from Lewistown.

Last Friday the Thompsons shipped a lot of live horses eastward. The horses are represented as being above the common run.

The question of the engine or no fire engine was voted on in Patterson on Monday. The election was carried in favor of an engine.

A marriage notice in the Lewistown Democrat last week was headed, "Died." 'T would give a quarter to know what the groom said when he read the notice.

A fashion writer says of the new bonnets: They have a hurricane comb, a bell tower, signal lights, birds of paradise, quail, Welsh rabbits, and flower gardens all in.

"No B-or-n-et to B-e." There is to be a Spelling Bee at Meckon on the evening of the 20th inst. It will be fine sport to see the Bee at work. Go down and be a spectator of the Spelling Bee.

The attendance at Court next week is expected to be quite large. We should have, at the lowest figure, no less than eight hundred calls during that week. "That's a hint, and I hope you see it," as the eccentric and good Rev. Mr. Gruber used to say.

The town clock is in complete running order now. It is believed that many watches will be for sale. People say, "What's the use of having or carrying a watch when the time of day is sounded in one's ears every hour during both night and day?"

The Franklin Repository says Col. W. C. McKnight, in Antrim township, having sunk a well eighty feet in the limestone rock without obtaining water, adopted the method of the petroleum miners of exploding a charge of nitro glycerine at the bottom of the well. The result was very gratifying—the rock was shattered and a plentiful supply of water was obtained.

A Lewistown man while among the mountains south of that town found an antiquated-looking map, and forthwith took it to the Gazette office, which was the most proper thing to do, as it must needs be written up to it which appeared in last week's issue. It is the queerest article on pot-holes we ever read, and is learned enough to confound all of the pot-holes in the State. Fryinger is good on old whole pottery; how is he on old pottery in pieces?

The Democrat and Register last week directed attention to sales of property by the Sheriff, and attributes them to be the outgrowth of the management of the Republican Administration, just as if Sheriff's sales did not take place when the Democratic party ruled the State and nation. If the readers of that paper can stand that kind of clap-trap stuff, they are lower in the scale of intelligence than we believe them to be. It becomes a question, which of the two individuals is to be pitied the most, the man who writes such a paragraph or the man who believes it.

A Patterson youth named Jacob Slagle was arrested last week on a charge of taking things that belonged to the Railroad Company and appropriating them to his own use. In default of bail he was sent to jail, where he remained until Sunday evening, when he succeeded in climbing up the inside of the jail yard wall to the top of the east side facing on Third street. He sat a moment there and took in the situation. It was about church time, and a number of people on the pavements in the vicinity saw him. When satisfied with the bearings he dropped himself to a frame leaning against the outside of the wall, and thence to the sidewalk, and thence ran northward out Third street and across the Presbyterian graveyard at a rate of speed that induced the spectators to believe that he had been trained for the occasion.

GENERALLY speaking Spelling Bees afford great entertainment.

It is seldom that anything of an unpleasant character grows out of one. That there are exceptions, is testified by this, which took place at Harrisburg: Friday afternoon last, a young man living on ——— avenue and a young woman dwelling on ——— street were married. The wedding was a quiet one, as the bride's family was in mourning on account of the recent death of the bride's mother's grand aunt, and though merrily rang out the bells, still these were wed. After dinner the shedding of tears, the shying of old shoes, and similar nuptial ceremonies had been duly performed, the young couple proceeded to the modest cottage on ——— avenue which was to be their home—delicious thought!—their home.

After tea, the two young people were sitting in the dusky parlor testing the carrying capacity of one chair, when, naturally, they happened to remember that at that very moment the great spelling-tournament was raging at ——— Hall. After saying that each would rather be where he or she was, than at ——— Hall, etc., etc., the turtle doves organized a spelling tournament of their own, the reward of merit being kisses and the odious penalties for errors severe hugs. Presently the newly-made bride asked the newly-made groom to spell "impenetrable," and he spelled it, "i-m-p-e-n-e-t-r-a-b-l-e."

"O, you great goose," blithely said the sole partner of his home and heart, "You educated at a university, can't spell impenetrable?" This nettled the head of the family, and he asked her how she spelled it. "i-m-p-e-n-e-t-r-i-b-l-e." "That's the worst I ever heard," said he, "for a young woman who pretends to have moved in society and gone to the Dearborn Academy." "Pretends," remarked the bride, on those cheeks two scarlet spots could be seen glowing in the dusk (for the lamp had been turned down very low), "pretends," she echoed as she left his knee for a rocking chair, and began to rock herself vigorously and fan herself with her handkerchief, "my father never was a tailor, and I cannot remember that my mother ever took in washing." "Possibly not," retorted the husband, with forced calmness, "but at least my father always paid his debts, and my mother's bridal trousseau, if plain, was paid for." "Edwin slept on the sofa in the parlor that night, while Angelina shed a bucket and a half of tears in the solitary nuptial couch that she occupied.

At 10 A. M. the husband and wife of a day, pale, cold, and determined, called on a lawyer who had known their families for years and announced their determination to separate as soon as the requisite papers could be prepared, on the ground of incompatibility of temper. Edwin stated that he hoped to find in the Black Hills present distraction and speedy death, while Angelina remarked that, though she looked perfectly horrible in black and detested veils, she would to a cunning go. The lawyer, after some difficulty, induced them to tell him the cause and manner of their separation.

"Sir," said Edwin, "I cannot live with a woman that spells 'impenetrable' with an 'e.'" "Did you really do that, my dear?" said the kindly old Judge to the weeping wife. "Yes," she sobbed. "That was wrong, that was very wrong," he replied. "So I told her," stated the husband, but she said she could not safely trust her happiness to the keeping of a man who spelled it with an 'e.'" "Ah!" said the lawyer, "that is the way you spell it, is it?" "It is." "Then you are both wrong; it should be spelled with an 'a'."

"Swift as a flash of lightning Edwin, pressing one hand to his throbbing brow, leaped to the book case and seized a Webster's Unabridged, while Angelina, whose heaving bosom betrayed her emotion, turned over the pages of the copy of Worcester's that the kind hearted old lawyer had placed before her. "It is an 'a,'" cried each, simultaneously. "Edwin!" "Angelina!" "Like torrents from one mountain source, they rushed into each other's arms.

This is the latest way they are telling the story that a Brooklyn resident, name not given, appeared at the gates St. Peter guards for admission to Paradise. The Saint turned to the register pages: "Where are you from?" "Brooklyn." "I don't think we can admit you; rules very strict. In fact, can't do it. Think of that scandal!" It is said that the Brooklyn man looked steadily at Peter and crossed three times. His saintship colored, fumbled his key a minute, and then said: "Well you can go in, but don't you do that again to me."

SPELLING BEE.—There will be a Spelling Bee entertainment in the School House in Mexico, on Tuesday evening, April 20th, at 7 1/2 o'clock.—The matches will be interspersed with instrumental and vocal music. Webster's dictionary is to be the authority for the occasion. The spelling will be confined to the letter "B" of that author. All are invited to attend. Admission 10 cents. The money will be devoted to the U. P. Church.

Do not be prejudiced, but give Pain Cure Oil a trial. You have no idea how quick it relieves pain. Its effect is astonishing to all.

Sold wholesale and retail by Banks & Hamlin, Millintown.

The most pleasant entertainment Harrisburg has had within many years was the "Spelling Bee" last Friday night, in the Opera House.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color. A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It is not a store food, or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair to the falling, or destroyed, or of the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous, and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit, but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

WANTED, AGENTS, male and female, to sell Pictures everywhere. Fourteen thousand ready-made. Another series: I can make more money at this business than I can at $10,000 farm, all stocked. WHITNEY & CO., Norwich, Conn. Jan 27-3m
