REGARDLESS of the fact that the New York Tribune is not published in this State, it took almost as active a part against General Hartranft during the campaign that resulted in his election as Governor, as if it had the whole interests of Pennsylvania pressing on its shoulders. It predicted that he would do no good. It does not now view him as it did then. It says, "He has not only lived down the slanders that were set afloat against him when first nominated for the distinguished position he now holds, but that he discharged the onerous duties of his office with integrity."

John H. Mathers died at 1 o'clock P. M., on the 25th ult., in his adopted home at Sidney, Ohio. Death did not come to him unexpectedly. His approach had been heralded by consumption, so strikingly that the end for many days previous to its coming could have been announced. With a resignation becoming a Christian, and in perfect accord with the characteristics of his honored father, James Mathers, deceased, and his beloved grandfather, Rev. John Hutchinson, deceased, both of this place, he looked at death without apprehension or terror. Believing, however, that it is proper to employ all means extended to man by the art of medicine for the restoration of impaired health, he took advice of medical men and visited the Soldiers' Sanitary Hospital at a suburb in that city. But God had appointed the time to call him to dwell with him above, and all the balm of air and life of sunshine of the South was of no avail, and he returned, with health unimpaired, to Sidney, content to leave this world. With the expectancy of his death constantly present with them to fortify them against impulsive manifestation of sorrow, his friends here could not resist the grief with which their souls were stricken on receiving the announcement of his death. They knew his father, and no more upright and honorable lawyer ever espoused the cause of a friend or advised a client. The family was known to the people of this county, and was honored by them. Though the son tarried only long enough in his native place to reach a commanding place as a young lawyer, the affection that the people had for the father was ever ready to be extended to him. After filling a term as District Attorney of this county—to which place he was elected by the Whig party, against what has almost ever been considered a standing majority of three hundred for the Democracy in this county—he went to Sidney, Ohio. He located there in 1856, and soon reached, and has ever since held, a most prominent place at the bar in that county. At the time of his death he was aged about 45 years. A wife and three children mourn for him on this side the grave. That they may see in this most bereft bereavement the wisdom of God, as the husband and father saw it in his affliction, is the prayer of the friends of the deceased who knew him here in his native place.

A CHURCH in Nottingham, Manitoba, recently had a double service of a most infelicitous character. A quarrel had divided the congregation, and each party claimed to be dominant. Each had called a new minister, and the two clergy men were on hand to begin their labors. The first to arrive took possession of the pulpit and the other sat behind the chancel rail. The man in the pulpit gave out a hymn, the other man gave out another, and both were sung confusedly by the rival sections of the assembly. Then the man behind the chancel rail started off on his sermon, and the other began to read a portion of Scripture. When the reading was over and it was plain that the preaching was going to last much longer, the partisans of the reader sang another hymn with a loud organ accompaniment. The musical noise drowned the voice of the clergyman in the pulpit, but when it was found to be preaching right along as though nothing unusual had happened. The clergyman in the chancel, less cool, was unable to fix his thoughts on a discourse, and so remained silent and beaten. At the close of this extraordinary scene a deacon explained that it had been enacted "under legal advice and to further the cause of Christ." It is more easy to understand about the legal advice than how such belligerent proceedings were calculated to "further the cause of Christ."

Spelling-Bee—No. 2.

POST ROYAL, MAY 8, 1876. Mr. Editor—No. 2 was held on the evening of May 7th, in the Lutheran church of this place. A class of 64 spellers greeted the audience. The spelling was on the removal of No. 1. Two hundred and eighty words were spelled correctly, and sixty-three missed. Mr. Hunsbarger, a young man from Mexico, secured the first prize.

The following is a synopsis of the spelling: Some found it up-hill work to ascend the "knowl," while others did not "guess" right. To "bauch" at such a time is bad, but to "guess" at "clock" is worse. A whole "group" went at once. "Gause," "phlem," and "mumps" tried to "dispell" a young man's "pealt." "Frigit" was the air when she sought to "perill" the "arican" from the "tome." "Taslt," "tett" and "trant" were out before any one could be found to "hazard" "catarrh." One "dagnereyote" was "ruined" before "overpost" dropped his weights, and a certain Captain handed him a "fragrant" "loquet." "Gambon" tried to wait until the "baronah" had passed, but the "gager" was near and cast a "chamo!" to the "mook" "presencial," which a knight of the plane thought to be very "picturak," until a "sawn" was caused by a "get running" "saw-geant" out with a pair of "stomers." "Spinage" was hauled before the "wocral" was let out. "Frickasee," "sulpher," "hoing" "strich-line" and "dialcian" flew when the other Captain's "cartilage" seemed out of fix, and "munching" ceased, when "phlyatory" stepped down and out. "Inedeaable" was too thin to wash, while "analyse" and "terpactial" quit out of pure "necessaity." The "privilege" was now given to the "occulist," but he could "te" too much, and was too "mischivious" to be "intelligible." "Byology" as a profession was a failure. "Ambiguos," "coignose," "gancily," "statin" "hand" and "dialcian" were not "benefiting," and "disturbance" was tried and would not go. Another received a dose of "chloroform" and went to sleep. "Phagition" and "poutifry" were nore, and "cyanure" was the last to throw up the sponge.

The two Bees were a success, financially and otherwise. The profits will not be appropriated to the building of a fence in front of the Lutheran church. Not enough money was obtained to reach that desired object, yet the project is on a fair way to accomplishment. Bee No. 3 will be held on Monday evening, May 17th. Ten prizes, ranging from $12 down to 50 cents, will be distributed. Profits to be used in defraying expenses on decoration day. It is hoped that all will (as returned soldiers especially) assist in making it a success. Rev. Marshall, Capt. J. B. Thompson and H. H. Snyder are the Committee of Arrangements. Admission 15 cents; class tickets 25 cents. Exercises commence at eight o'clock sharp. Yours respectfully, ONE OF THEM.

A MOST daring highway robbery was committed in Franklin township, Huntingdon county, on Wednesday night last. The victim was James Leech, who had been working at Reynoldsville, Jefferson county, this State, and was returning to his home in Franklin township, when he was waylaid on the public road about midnight by two men, a short distance from his residence. A violent blow was inflicted on his neck by the use of a stick, which rendered him insensible, after which he was gagged, his arms tied behind his back with a handkerchief taken from his pocket, and robbed of seventy-five dollars in money. After they had completed their diabolical work, the robbers wrote a short note, addressed to their victim, stating that they had got more money than they expected. After the lapse of a short time, Mr. Leech became conscious, and realized the terrible fact that he had been brutally assaulted, and robbed of his money, and that he was now left in the public road, at the hour of midnight, with his arms pinioned, and his mouth gagged, so as to prevent him from even speaking, and thus endeavoring to call some one to his rescue. He at once began to make every possible effort to free himself from his dreadful situation, and after patiently working, he finally succeeded in freeing his arms; this being done, he had no difficulty in removing the gag from his mouth, after which he proceeded on his way home, which he soon reached without further injury. On the next day two persons, named respectively, Hiram Bowermaster and Daniel Bailey—both of whom belong to Franklin township—were arrested upon suspicion of being the persons who perpetrated the robbery. They were taken before "Squire Leech," a Justice of the Peace of Franklin township, and who is also the father of the party who had been robbed. When taken before the Justice, the prisoners protested that they were innocent of the charge preferred against them, and demanded a hearing, which was accorded them. At the hearing the Justice mistakenly permitted the prisoners to give evidence on their side of the case, and the result was, they succeeded in establishing an alibi, which induced the officer to discharge them. There were, however, some facts elicited in the hearing of the case, which, taken in connection with the previous characters of the accused, led the citizens of the neighborhood to believe that Bowermaster and Bailey were actually the guilty parties, and hence efforts were set on foot to secure their re-arrest.—Constables Thomas Isenberg, Daniel Irwin and William Powley accordingly started in pursuit of the accused parties, and succeeded in again arresting both of them, in Bald Eagle Valley, centre county, on Friday last. The prisoners were brought to Huntingdon in charge of Constable Isenberg, on the evening of the day last named, and were lodged in jail to answer, at the next term of court, the heinous charge of highway robbery.—Huntingdon Monitor.

The Case of Thirteen Mills School Tax in the Supreme Court.

A case contesting the right of school directors to levy a tax of thirteen mills for school purposes was carried up from a court in Columbia county to the Supreme Court, in which an opinion was delivered on the question by Judge Gordon. The learned Judge says: The Locust Mountain coal company in its bill in this case, set forth inter alia, that it is the owner of large tracts of coal lands in Conyugham township, Columbia county, upon which, for school purposes for the year 1874, the appellants illegally levied a tax of thirteen mills upon each dollar of the valuation thereof. Whereas, by the act of Assembly of 1854, they have authority to levy an amount not greater than that which the law authorizes to be levied for school purposes, to wit: ten mills. The court below adopted this view. The court below granted a preliminary injunction to restrain the collection of the excess of said taxes over ten mills. A careful examination of the act of 1854 compels us to dissent from this conclusion. Section 29 of that act requires the County Commissioners to furnish the president and secretary of the school board "with a correct copy of the last adjusted valuation of proper subjects and things made taxable in the same for State and county purposes, which said property, subjects and things are hereby made taxable for school purposes according to the provisions of this act." This section furnishes to the board of directors a schedule of those objects upon which they may assess their tax. Now it matters not that certain articles, found in these assessment lists, are taxable only for county purposes, because all are made taxable for school purposes without distinction. The act refers in general terms to subjects taxable for State and county purposes, in order that the valuations may be uniform, and that those made for the County Commissioners become valuations for the school assessments; uniformity is thus obtained and expenses avoided. Nevertheless the school assessments are none the less separate and independent because based on the county and State valuations.—Let us select for example three subjects, pleasure carriages, lands and horses, the first liable only to State, the second only to county taxes, and the third to both State and county taxes—all, however, are subjective to school levies, and for such purposes they form a separate and independent schedule and the school officer is not bound to know for which of the above-named purposes they are taxable; it is enough that they are taxable for either. Then, having the schedule, the next inquiry is, What amount may be levied thereon? The 31st section of the act of 1854 furnishes the answer. "The board of directors * * * shall proceed to levy and apportion said school tax, pursuant to this act, not exceeding the amount of State and county tax, authorized by law, on all objects * * * made or to be made taxable for State or county purposes." Now, as the obvious grammatical structure of this section requires that the first clause be immediately connected with the last, and that the middle one be transposed or read parenthetically, we may arrange them thus: "Shall proceed to levy and apportion said tax on all objects * * * made or to be made taxable for State or county purposes, not exceeding the amount of State and county taxes authorized by law."

We can hardly conceive of anything more definite than this language. The school director says: I have now a lawful list of the subjects which I may tax, now what is the amount I may levy? Answer: An amount not exceeding the amount, that is, the aggregate, the sum total of the State and i. e. added to (for this conjunction implies addition) the county tax. We are, therefore, to take the amount of the county tax authorized by law at the time when the school tax is assessed, now ten mills, and add thereto the amount of the State tax, in like manner authorized at the time of said assessment, now three mills, and their sum gives the maximum rate for the school assessment.

According to the construction contended for by the appellee, the above rule would apply only to articles taxable for both State and county purpose, whilst another must be adopted for those taxable only for county, and a third for such as are taxable only for State purposes. Thus the tax on horses must be thirteen mills, upon lands ten, and upon watches and pleasure carriages three mills. The objection to this construction is that it destroys both the uniformity and simplicity of a tax system in which both these elements are important, and worse than all, it does not properly express the legislative will. Again, if our construction of this enactment be not correct how shall we interpret the 6th section of the act of April 11, 1862, Ph. L. 472, which reads in this wise: "The school tax on all watches and pleasure carriages shall be at the same rate on the adjusted valuation thereof, as upon other property taxable by rate, in the proper (school) district."

Now, adopt the rule claimed by the counsel for the plaintiff as the true one, and we may well ask what rate, and what other property is here meant? Shall we levy three, ten or thirteen mills? For, according to his exposition, the "other property" is taxable at all these rates. Clearly the Legislature of 1862 understood as we do, that the act of 1854 authorized us but one

The Political, Personal, and Property Rights of a Citizen of the United States—How to exercise and how to preserve them: by Douglas P. Fitzess, L. B., author of "Jones Brothers & Co., Philadelphia, Pa."

A careful perusal of this work will convey an adequate understanding of all legal questions arising in public or private life, for it gives a clear explanation of those universally recognized principles, on which are based all existing laws enacted to secure us in the enjoyment of our rights and privileges. That every one should be well informed concerning the rights and duties of the citizen, is of the greatest importance in this country where he participates so freely and so directly in the affairs of government.

This volume will prove of great value to the statesman and to lawyers, and cannot but be eminently useful to the citizen of every class and calling. The ability, accuracy and long experience of the author as a law writer and teacher, are a sufficient guaranty that the work is one of merit and usefulness. The language of the author is simple, he eliminates from it those abstruse phrases so common in most law books and brings his subjects within the comprehension of those unlearned in the law.

His explanation of the exarces which led to the framing and adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and its principles and purposes, is alone well worth the cost of the volume to every one who aspires to the full enjoyment of the privileges guaranteed him by the Supreme Law of the land. The vast amount of useful knowledge, the excellent forms, the rules for the organization and procedure of deliberative bodies and the glossary of law terms in common use make this work one of great popular value.

A REMARKABLE child was born in Bratton township, Mifflin county, on Friday last. A boy, entirely healthy, and thriving well, but having no nose, excepting two openings for nostrils—and no eyes, though fully developed eyelids which can be opened. Otherwise his head is perfect, with the exception of an unsightly roll or protuberance upon his forehead. One of his feet has six toes, though two of them are grown together; the other foot has five toes, and upon its side another which very much resembles a thumb. Altogether the child presents an extraordinary freak of nature.—Lewistown Democrat.
