The latest story is that on the 22d of this month a shower of mutton fell in Kentucky, clearing a clear, cloudless day. The theory is that a flock of sheep was caught up in a whirlwind somewhere on the plains and torn to pieces, and showered down in the state just mentioned.

Rev. E. E. Berry, of Northumberland, Pa., will preach his trial sermon in the Lutheran Church in this place, March 19, 1876, at 10:45 A. M., and in the Licking Creek Church in the afternoon. He will also preach in the Mifflin Church in the evening.

On account of a severe cold Rev. Mr. Sherman was unable to preach last Sunday. The congregation, however, assembled, and in lieu of services by a regularly ordained preacher, layman, Dr. T. A. Elder read a chapter, and delivered a discourse therefrom, and conducted the subsequent prayer-meeting services.

Mr. E. Southard Doty, a graduate of Lafayette College, has become associated with the management of the Juniata County Normal School, that will open April 10, 1876, in the School House in the borough of Mifflintown. Students have the opportunity presented to them to take the Latin language along with their Normal School studies. From the material of the management of the school, satisfactory results are expected.

Mr. Lawrence Kulp, a citizen of Patterson, last Friday evening traveled in Fast Lane to Lewistown, to inform the sister of Darwin Zeller of the misfortune that had befallen him. He delivered the sad news, left her place, and proceeded on his way as far as to the residence of Mr. Montgomery, where he stopped and knocked for admission. His knock was answered, and an invitation to enter the house extended, which he declined, complaining of feeling ill, and asking for a glass of water. While his friends in alarm hastened for water he sank down on the door step, and when his friends returned he lay dying. He was speedily taken into the house, but survived to breathe only a few times after being thus cared for.

Mr. T. D. Garman will open a Select School in the borough of Patterson, April 17, 1876. Mr. Garman is thoroughly acquainted with the text-books, and knows how to teach their contents to others.

Captain Meeker held a railroad meeting in the Court House in this place, last Friday evening, for the purpose of reviving interest in the Selingsgrove and North Branch Railroad, and to state the proposal of some Eastern company as to what they will do, in the event of more funds being raised by the present company.

Last Friday, a short time before the Lewistown Accommodation passenger train was due, engineer J. C. Thompson started his locomotive back to couple to a train loaded with stones at the upper end of the Patterson Yard. When he drew the lever to check the engine, the machine proved itself unmanageable, and sped back with unabated speed and collided with the train it had been hauling. Thompson struggled to control the engine until the last moment, when he shouted to the fireman that they must jump for their lives, and at the same time sprang from the cabin. The collision took place at that instant, and before Thompson got away he was caught in the flying fragments of the engine cabin and considerably hurt. Darwin Zeller, the fireman, was not quite as quick as his engineer, and was caught in the debris on the engine and hurt severely about the body, besides having his left leg crushed so badly that amputation was rendered necessary between the ankle and knee joints. Amputation was rendered by Dr. D. M. Crawford on Saturday last, at two o'clock P. M., since which time the unfortunate man has been doing better.

It was windy and cold on Monday, and was part of the storm that a day before devastated a part of the State of Missouri; despatches say relative to it: "Seven persons were killed, seventeen were injured, some thirty houses were blown down. Immense damage was done to all kinds of property. In two counties it is estimated a thousand miles of fencing was destroyed. The ground was covered with eight inches of hail."

HARRY, a little son of Oliver Cunningham, was struck in the right eye some time since by what is known among our juveniles as a "shiny block." Recently an examination of the eye was made by a surgeon in Philadelphia, and it was found that the sight was entirely gone. This is one of the serious results that is liable to happen at any time from the dangerous practice of playing "shiny" on the streets.—Huntingdon Monitor.

SELECT SCHOOL.—J. W. Platt will open a Select School in the borough of Thompsonstown, commencing April 10th, and ending June 24th, 1876. [March 8th]

HON. ABRAHAM ROHRER and Maj. John D. Howell recently, because of rough roads, walked to Mifflin a considerable part of the distance that intervenes between the town and their home. Their walking was published at the time, and now exchange papers credit them with having started a new fashion of travel in Juniata, and a good one at that. This is one of the items about relative to their walking, and is from the Lewistown Gazette:

"It is now the fashion in Juniata county to start to town in a buggy, travel half the distance, send home the horse and vehicle, and do the rest by walking." The following appointments were made by the Central Pa. Conference of the Evangelical Church, at its late session in Baltimore, Maryland. Carlisle District, E. Kohr, P. E. Carlisle Spring, H. A. Stoke. Big Spring Circuit, G. C. Carothers.

Prof. of Theology in Union Seminary, J. M. Bentz. College Agent, S. T. Buck.

ABOUT 5 o'clock on last Saturday afternoon, a gloom was cast over our town by the sad intelligence that Frank A. Steel, son of Robert D. Steel, had just been killed. Young Steel got on the Local Freight at the station in town for the purpose of riding up to the coal wharf, half a mile above town, with his brother, who is employed on the train as brakeman. While shifting the cars at that place, the engineer was pushing the train, and the platform of which Frank was standing, down the track at a rapid rate of speed, when it was discovered that the switch was misplaced. Mr. Leonard, the engineer, attempted to check the car, before reaching another train standing on the side track. Frank, seeing the danger of a collision, jumped off, but not sufficiently clear of the track; he was carried over him, and he was found lying between the tender and the engine, dead, being cut and crushed in a horrible manner.

The deceased was a respectable young man, about 18 years of age, and highly esteemed wherever known.—Huntingdon Monitor.

Considering the attitude of the Democratic members in the Lower House of Congress on the question of the Currency, it is well to refresh one's memory with the fact that previous to the election that gave that party they proclaimed it all over the land that if a majority of the Lower House would be accorded to them, they would speedily solve the currency question, and place the business of the country on its feet. But they are the greatest failure that has been in the National halls for a quarter of a century. They have not made a promise good so far. They have no policy on the Currency and Business question. They really do not know what to do. The Sentinel artist, after the fashion of the artist of the Graphic, has described their attitude by picture, which is styled, "The Grand Dilemma of the Democratic Party." The Donkey says, "I suppose I could buy some fodder with one of those; but which? Hee-haw! I'm too much of an ass to know."

On Friday morning last about 2 a. m., the residence of Miss Anna Chambers, a short distance north of Falling Spring Church, was entered by burglars.

It was a very embarrassing circumstance, and it happened in a hotel in Ripon. A man and his wife were stopping there. The man was subjected to severe attack of colic and was taken sick there in the night. He told his wife that he must have immediate relief or he could not live, though a mustard draft would relieve him. She hastily robed herself, went down stairs and found the watchman, who admitted her to the dining room, and she spread the mustard from a cask on her handkerchief, and hastened up stairs. Finding the door ajar she rushed in, turned down the bed clothes, and slapped the mustard draft on the unconscious man's bosom. He instantly sprang up in bed and in a strange voice said: "My God! madam, what are you doing?" She had got it on the wrong man.—Exchange.

That is quite as good as an incident that we know took place among a party of ladies who were visiting a lady friend, not fifty miles from Mifflin. On a certain evening during the visit one of the ladies complained of headache and retired about dusk. The other two lady visitors were made to feel gloomy by the indisposition of their friend. Said one, "I'll ask Mrs. —" at whose house they were staying, "for a suit of clothes of Mr. —, and I'll put them on and go up to her room and enter and see what she will do." The clothes were obtained from the lady of the house, and put on by the companion of the complaining lady. The lady in men's clothes entered the room of the indisposed friend, pulled off her coat, threw it on a chair, unbuttoned her vest, and then walked to the bedside, and threw back the covering. That was too much for the lady in bed. She had lain quiet till that moment, but that brought her out. Down over the foot-board she scrambled, shouting, "Get out, you rascal! get out!" and out into the hall she fled, and down stairs, sounding the alarm. "Oh! oh! there's a man in my room! a thief, a scoundrel, that wanted to get into bed! Oh, my! but it's awful!" It was an indescribably rich scene, and when it was all explained, was also highly enjoyed by the lady who thought a drunken man had stolen his way into her chamber. The frightened lady has told her friend that they shall have a "Bolton for their Oliver," or, in other words, pay them back.

THE Lewistown Gazette says: Peter S. Myers has sold his farm in Oliver township to George Ruble for about ten thousand dollars.

Just as the funeral of Judge James Parker was leaving his house, a pair of runaway horses in a wagon came up, and ran into the house, partly demolishing it and severely injuring one of the horses attached thereto.

About 11 o'clock one night recently a son of Mr. H. H. Kauffman, in Bratton township, waking up, discovered a bright light in his room, which, after investigation, he found proceeded from a fire somewhere in the lower part of the house. Finding it impossible to get down by the usual way on account of the smoke, he descended from a second story window, and broke open the basement door. He found the fire-board consumed, as well as some clothing, shoes and other articles on fire, but quickly extinguished the flames. Thirteen persons were sleeping in the house at the time, and no small stir was created by the accident.

The house owned by Felix McClintic and occupied by Hugh, his son, and Mr. Hassinger, in Sigierville, took fire from a fire in the gutter on Friday last, and was burned to the ground.

Educational Meeting.

An educational meeting was held in Centre School House, Spruce Hill township, on Wednesday evening, March 8th, with the following organization: President, Yost Yoder; Vice Presidents, John Wischaupt, Jr., and Joshua Evans; Secretaries, Urlich Wise and J. F. G. Long.

The first exercise was "Music," by the school. This, with other pieces sung during the evening, was excellently rendered; and when we remember that with but one exception the singers were under 11 years of age, more than usual credit is due.

"Astronomy," by Wm. Groninger.—He showed that from the utterances of Job this science must have been in existence at that time. He described the Ptolemaic system, showing the erroneous principles thereof, and comparing it with our present and correct system—the Copernican. He explained at considerable length the nature and effects of eclipses, changes of the moon, forces of attraction, change of tide, &c., also the signs of the Zodiac, giving names and positions, and making very plain and satisfactory the audience. He spoke for an hour with force and energy, to the delight of all present.

"Music," by the school, after which a selection, called "The Palmetto and the Pines," was read by J. M. Garman.

"Physical Geography," by O. L. Hensch.—He gave the supposed depth, breadth and length of various streams of lava; also, the supposition that the heat of the water in the Gulf Stream is caused by subterranean fires. He also cited numerous volcanic eruptions and advanced the theory that the interior of the earth is a liquid mass of fire. He spoke at some length, and was listened to with marked attention throughout.

Another piece of music, followed by the closing address by J. M. Garman, the County Superintendent. He talked on the "One Hundred Years." He showed the progress in Machinery, Architecture and Education. He mentioned the bridges at St. Louis and at Brooklyn; the Hoosac tunnel and Mt. Cenis tunnel; he sketched the emancipations of the Century, and the railroad progress from the first small road in Massachusetts to the present day. He mentioned sewing machines, reapers, threshers, elevators, printing presses, and many other improvements, showing that we go on "conquering and to conquer" matter, and make it subservient to man. Lastly, he came to that of greatest importance to us all—the Common School system—urging upon the people to support the schools as the nurseries of freedom and true means of reform through the spread of intelligence.

A vote of thanks was tendered the singers and speakers, after which the meeting adjourned, all feeling the evening to have been one of pleasure and profit.
