Through a Woman's Eyes.

HOW PRESIDENT GRANT LOOKS TO ONE WHO SEES HIM OFTEN.

BY A GRAPHIC LADY WRITER.

President Grant stands to-day a Sphinx in the midst of those he so perfectly typifies. As a people we do not yet recognize the realization of the calm ideal we struggle for, and we go out from his presence dumb ourselves, saying: "What is this man—a mighty warrior who settled the destiny of a nation; a statesman who has ruled through the demoralized era that ever follows a terrible war; who sees enemies conquered and friends false, and even his own future threatened, and says nothing?"

General Merritt warns simple folks who may be tempted painfully to go to the Black Hills that the auriferous capacity of that part of the country which is now accessible has been overrated, that the diggings are already overcrowded; that the most fortunate do not more than make wages by hard work in the midst of danger and discomfort.

Henry's cotton mill in Angora, Pa., was burned Saturday morning a week. The fire originated from the heating of a shaft. Loss $200,000; insurance $81,000. Mrs. Jane Hunter, of Fayette City, was born in 1771, and is therefore 105 years old.

Twelve ladies received the degree of M. D., at the commencement of the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia yesterday. Last Tuesday a week ago a man named Williams, residing near St. Petersburg, beat his wife almost to death. It is feared that she cannot recover.

The Butler court for license to sell liquor—94 for taverns, 26 for restaurants and 13 for wholesale. Five of these petitions are from women. Two horse thieves were recently captured in Bedford county, having in their possession two horses stolen from Mr. Wilhelm, a resident of Somerset county.

Attempted Bank Robbery. Last May a party of three, man and wife and a child, representing themselves as Southerners, visited Chambersburg. The principal, a finely educated gentleman, who claimed to be a Colonel in the "Louisiana Tigers," made quite an impression in the social circles of the staid village.

News Items.

Omaha advises say that the rush of Black Hillers is undiminished, and the trains are overcrowded daily with them en route via Cheyenne.

A few days ago James L. Benedict, aged 18 years a mail carrier with the South Norwalk and Norwalk, Conn., was arrested for robbing the mail. Upon his person were forty letters which he had stolen and opened, and a money-order for $40.

On the 22nd inst., four hundred pounds of "Jupiter" powder exploded in New York, by which four men were literally blown to atoms, some six or seven severely injured, of whom one or two will die. The mill was blown to pieces, and buildings in its immediate vicinity were considerably shattered.

The Easton (Md.) Star has the following about two diminutive young ladies from the lower part of Delaware. The Misses Marino, from Greensboro, are extraordinary curiosities. They were born and raised in Sussex county, Delaware. Miss Lizzie, twenty-eight, is thirty three inches tall, and weighs fifty-five pounds. Miss Amanda, eighteen, is thirty-seven inches tall, and weighs fifty pounds.

Light weight pugilists pounded each other seventy-eight rounds, near Eikton Md., last Wednesday. There seems to have been an organized attempt to burn Seranton, in this State, within the past week, by incendiaries. Five thousand dollars reward is offered for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the incendiaries.

A Clergyman who was HUNG FOR FORGERY.

From the New York Observer.

To tell the story of Dr. Dodd, who was hung for forgery in 1777, may be quite out of time in the beginning of the year 1876. But there is a purpose in it, and perhaps the story and the moral will be timely, although the event occurred just one hundred years ago save one. William Dodd was an English clergyman, born in May, 1729, and educated at the University of Cambridge. He married a woman of extravagant tastes, and in this respect as in others, his tastes were alike. After being ordained he was made rector of the parish of West Ham, near London. There he proved to be so objectionable that he was soon called into the city, and became one of its celebrities. With his popularity and prosperity he was more and more extravagant and reckless in his style of living.

After securing Mr. M. they ransacked the vault, and after loading themselves with booty prepared to escape. On coming down the bank steps Ralston heard an alarm from Mr. M., who had succeeded in partially removing the gag. Under the excitement he tripped and fell to the pavement. A colored man passing, seeing the man hurrying out of the bank at that late hour, at once suspected something, and seizing the robber he overpowered him and called for help.

On his person were found some $300.00. He [Ralston] had a revolver in each hand, and a large dirk in his belt. His confederate, Johnson, escaped. Both had horses saddled close at hand, and would doubtless have gotten off had not fortune played false to this hero of modern society. A full set of burglar's tools were found in the vicinity where the horses had been secured.

The fire bells were rung, and the citizens turned out, and it required strenuous efforts on the part of the officers of the law to keep the infuriated populace from lynching Ralston to a lamp post. Johnson was captured at Mercersburg. Altogether it has proved one of the most complete plots—well laid, well executed, but a sad finale. Harrisburg Telegraph of 25th inst.
