LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Apples are exceedingly plenty. Gone to the Centennial Exhibition. The Benches have been shipping peaches.

Money and people never flowed so rapidly into Philadelphia as this week.

Three days of rain stopped the fighting, last week, between the Tories and Servants.

The young men started from Huntington for the Centennial Exhibition on foot, last week.

On the 4th for a peep at the sun? was a prevailing exclamation the latter part of last week.

The Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania convenes to-day, at Liveport, Perry county.

Lee's N. Nagle, a citizen of Cambria county, espoused a two-headed black snake the other day.

The ground has not been so thoroughly soaked with water at this time of the year in many years.

Mr. Anstetter, a Kaufman, from Ohio, brought a lot of cattle to this place from the State market, for sale, last week.

Farmers said they desired to sow wheat late this season. The weather has been so season to suit their desire.

It takes acoustical old citizens to tell of a republican storm like that of a week ago, was the Centennial storm.

J. B. M. Todd has gone to Philadelphia to lay in his fall stock. Call and see his new styles at very low prices.

On Saturday a week one of Mr. Bennett's ponies broke a leg at New Port, in a game of Polo, and had to be shot.

The exhibition of articles and stock at the Riverside Park Fair was good, notwithstanding the kind of weather that was vouchsafed.

If you desire to have the Confederate war debt paid by the Nation, vote for Tilden and a Congress that will be in accord with him.

The County Committee met in this place on Thursday. The members report from their respective districts, a most favorable outlook.

Shirley township, Huntington county, is passing through a stage of excitement, growing out of an election. They were met with peace.

In the upper railroad shops in Altoona, the time has been reduced. Forty hours, or five days of eight hours in length, constitute a week's work.

At the public sale of coal in New York, last Wednesday, a lump coal sold at $2.90 per ton, grade sold at $2.02, and chestnut coal at $2.25 per ton.

If you desire to look on a significant name look at the one signed to the article of Mr. Tilden on income tax, it is J. P. Simons. How significant—Simons?

Train Master W. D. Cranmer gave a friend in this place a number of pears, luscious in taste, handsome in appearance, and weightily averaging about 17 ounces each.

Ladies are wearing their bows of ribbons for ear-rings now, and we are told that it is the very latest Paris fashion. The effect is odd, and of course the fashion will rage.

Two powerful earthquakes of the Democracy in Ohio are "hard times" and "sheer." Anything answers with them that will catch the ear and influence the votes of the people.

You'll go the Centennial show and be struck with astonishment, and then it will all be over; but you can only be so stunned once in a lifetime, and that is worth something.

Mrs. Swishlow, writing from Europe, says, in Germany "there is no more idea or sense of the rebellion, and Tilden and a Democratic Congress into power, and you will reach that end quicker than your assisted senses will have time to comprehend the changes.

When Lieut.-Gov. Dorsheimer began his speech in Boston with the remark that "the people of this State" were "effeminate reformers in the crowd shouted, 'So is Mike Doherty!' It was the only joke of an otherwise solemn meeting."

On Tuesday evening a week the trunk of a car on the Raccoon and Vinestreet lines broke while going down hill, and the car ran into one in front of it, killing Alonso Anselmi, of Northumberland county, and injuring several persons.

If you wish to repudiate the National currency, vote as you would for a Democratic Congress in power, with Mr. Tilden in the Presidential chair, and it will be easily accomplished. They will settle that business quicker than you have any thought it can be done.

President Grant's daughter, Nellie Grant, as she is known to the people of the Republic, recently lost a considerable amount in a race in England. The horse came in second best. What will Nellie's maid say to the sporting proclivities as developed in her daughter since her removal to England.

For centuries man has been struggling up roads for Free Government, and now that he has reached, within a year, a goal, we are told that the work is completed, and you had better give the perfecting of the system into the hands of a man who was opposed to the completion of this Democratic or Republican form of government.

Judge Black is down on dead issues, but complains himself as to the Democratic party on a point on that the Abolitionists were the cause of the Rebellion. The public would be more interested in an article explaining his reasons for getting down on the cause of the Rebellion.

When you are told that Hugh T. McCallister is an intemperate man, sit it down as one of Sam's inventions. He is neither a teetotaler or a drinker, in the general acceptance of the term. He has independence of mind enough to drink or not drink, as he chooses.

Charles Haslett, aged about 21 years, whose father lives at Terre Haute, Indiana, topped off, from a drunken and bound trip to the Centennial Exhibition, at Capt. McCallister, to whom he is related, through the family of Mrs. McCallister. About nine o'clock last Friday evening, while he was engaged in conversation with an aunt, the Captain's house, he fell to the floor and died in about three minutes of heart disease. His remains will be taken to this place to be buried on Sunday morning.

The Odd Fellows' parade in Philadelphia last week was a large one. An exchange says: There were in line 10 uniformed Encampments and 170 Lodges, exclusive of Grand Lodges. These lodges had brass bands, 11 drum corps, 525 large banners and flags, and about ten thousand small banners, flags, &c. The procession was two hours and ten minutes in passing a given point, averaging ten abreast, and our informant estimates that there were between 25,000 and 30,000 Odd Fellows in line.

The recent rains not only did great damage in the Western end of the county, but along water courses, and in washing the surface soil from fields, but it did great benefit in the Eastern portion of this county. There are some indications of a change in the weather, and the water in the creeks, from Richfield to the mouth of the stream, every one of which have been seriously damaged. Brown's dam in Coconino county has been washed entirely out, and a speech of the rains work on Georgia along the streams is appalling.

At no time in the history of this county has there been such a looking up of voters as in this the Centennial year. Kings who have never seen an adjourn till to-morrow, to attend a circus. The motion carried and the whole world laughed, that a circus had explored a large number of the South Carolina Legislature to see a circus.

The making public will remember that during the session of the first Legislature of this State, a colored man got up in the Assembly and said: "A circus comes to town to-day, and I have never seen an adjourn till to-morrow, to attend a circus." The motion carried and the whole world laughed, that a circus had explored a large number of the South Carolina Legislature to see a circus.

WALL, MANN & HALL have employed Mr. Porter, an experienced sketch artist, to take from the Centennial Exhibition, the Atlas of Mr. Porter is now here and at work, and you have but to see his sketches to be convinced of his ability to render satisfactorily to all who may engage his company to have your house and lot, or house and lot, or fields, or portion of a farm sketched and illustrated for the Atlas.

It is expected that another call will be made before the 1st of October.

Equinox. The day and the night are equal; Bright summer bids farewell, And the dripping eaves, with the falling leaves, The mournful story tell.

The clouds send tears in torrents down the window-pane, And the dead leaves fall, like a funeral pall, Before the driving rain.

The dreary winter cometh, His messenger is here; For the morning wind no rest can find, And the earth looks dark and dead.

The day and the night are equal, Bright hearts are like the years, When summer hours yields sweetest flowers, The fall brings bitter tears. C. L.

A West Chester woman was the other day in the Art Gallery looking at the pictures, good, bad and indifferent, contained therein, when he witnessed the following: John and his wife were standing in front of a painting representing a chariot race in the Roman coliseum.

"I say, John, what's them fellows doing in that chariot-race?" "Oh, them's the Roman's races; don't you know? He was in Philadelphia last year."

"Oh, yes, I remember now, Sammy was there and we then drove 'round in little carts with gal drivers."

And they turned away to look at the picture of Daniel in the Lions' den.—West Chester Republican.

Dennis Fox, living in a small house on the farm of John Hannevert, in Oliver township, was awakened on Wednesday night of last week by the unusual barking of a small dog. He got up and went out to discover four snakes, coiled around, one four feet long, trying to get into his carriage, and despatch them at once. Next morning, according to the McVeytown Journal, he hailed his landlord with a "Mister Hannevert! Mister Hannevert! does your want a mess of vitts?" taking him to the door and exhibiting his bucket of snakes.—Lancaster Scimitar.

ALL recollect the thunder storm of Thursday week. Among the queer freaks of the wonderful element, recorded by exchange papers, is the following from the Lewistown Gazette:

In the yard adjoining, occupied by Widdien Hughes, that gentleman was feeding his dogs the offals of squirrels which he had killed during the day and just finished cleaning. He was then he saw about ten feet from him, on the ground in the yard a black ball the size of a bushel, moving uneasily about, which expanded with terrific force, sending streaks of fire down the lot. He was thrown back to the kitchen by the shock; his wife, who was calling him to tea from a window in the upper story, was so stunned that she did not recover until next day. The child playing on the lawn was also affected in a similar manner. A small walnut tree in his lot was streaked with his electric current, and shed crisped leaves.

EVERY person should know how to ascertain the state of the pulse; then by comparing it with what it is when he is sitting, he may have some idea of the urgency of his case. Parents should know the healthy pulse of each child, since now and then a pulse is born with a peculiarly slow or fast pulse, and the very case in hand may be of such peculiarity. An infant's pulse is 140; a child of seven about 80, and from twenty to sixty years it is 70 beats a minute, declining to 60 at four score. A healthy grown person's beats 70 declining to 60 at four score. At sixty, if the pulse always exceeds 70, there is a disease, the machine working itself out of gear.

"Go on with you old mill—'I'm ready," said the farmer, taking a seat directly in front of the orator.

"Well, now, Mr. Republican"—here the speaker inflated his lungs with a fresh supply of atmospheric force—"where did you come from anyhow?"

"I came to Illinois from York State—from Columbia county, where Sammy Tilden was born and raised, and I know him and his folks just like a book."

"Do, do, do!"

"Yes, I do, and what's more, I don't know any dog of him, either."

"No matter about Tilden just now—we'll talk about that by and by. What I desire to ask you now is, why are you a Republican?"

"Well, now, that's a pretty big question to answer, and it would take good many words and some little time to do it. As I understand the programme you are the speaker for the evening, but if you won't give me the time to me I'll make the speech. I think I might, in answering the question why I am a Republican, tell you and these other fellows here a thing or two that might be new, interesting, and perhaps instructive."

"A modest proposition, certainly," sneered the young orator, curling his mustached lip. "We don't propose to turn this into a Republican meeting."

"All right, I came up here at your request, and am merely a passenger in this stage coach. Drive on."

"Well," resumed the orator in a bantering manner, "since you are a Republican, will you tell us how you feel anyhow?"

"Certainly," said the farmer, rising to his feet, indignantly. "I feel like a Democrat, and if you really want to know how I feel I'll tell you. I feel—well, to speak the truth, I feel very much as I think a big, well kept Tom cat would feel if he should suddenly throw into a den of hungry rats and the boss rat was nibbling the end of his tail."

Thereupon the farmer turned and slowly walked out, leaving the unhappy stump speaker and his friends to ponder at their leisure whether it is not a little risky to ask Republicans foolish or impudent questions.

The very next day, but, not being copyrighted, our Democratic contemporaries need have no scruples about republishing it.—Chicago Journal.
