According to the Reading Eagle, within a radius of twenty miles of that city and within a few years four terrible murders have been committed that for barbarity and cool deviltery have not been excelled in the annals of that class of crime. No person thus far has suffered for these crimes at the hands of the law, and of all those arrested to answer for the deeds but one remains in jail, and it is altogether probable that he, too, will be released as soon as the Coroner is ready to give him a hearing.

On Barren river, in Allen county, Ky., there is a mill dam built forty-five years ago, says the Glasgow Times. In excavating for the foundation a stone wall was found ten feet below the surface, together with some pottery and charcoal. There is a tradition in that locality that says a number of mounds in the vicinity were built by prehistorics, and it is thought the rock wall was another of their productions.

An eleven year old daughter of Joel Snyder, miller of Lynn township, Lehigh county, was terribly mangled in her father's mill by being caught between two heavy cog wheels. Her father was a witness to the terrible scene and had presence of mind enough to stop the wheels and remove his child. Besides the flesh being torn off nearly the whole of the back, one of the lower limbs is broken at three places, the arms are very badly bruised, and the face is horribly disfigured and battered. There is no hope that the child will survive.

On Friday three officers started from Mercer, Pa., to bring four prisoners, who had been convicted of stealing coal to the Allegheny County Workhouse. The men were handcuffed together and about thirty miles from Allegheny one of the prisoners named Williams called the attention of the officers to a red lantern that was hanging to the post. He then quickly slipped the handcuffs over his hand, ran to the door and leaped off the train. He alighted on his feet, ran across a field and entered a farm house where he was soon lost to sight.

THE FIGHT HAS COMMENCED.

Within Ten Days.

An exchange says:

An act was passed the last session of the State Legislature, has been signed by the Governor and become a law, requiring justices of the peace aldermen to render Judgment within ten days after all evidence shall have been heard. Heretofore the law required judgment to be rendered in twenty days, and this change is one that should be remembered by all thriving suits pending or who expect to have business of this kind to attend to. It may be well for all to bear this matter in mind so as not to be "caught napping."

Rum and Water.

The banishment of wine from the White House table recalls some piquant words of John Adams, written from Philadelphia in 1777 to his wife Abigail. "Gen. Washington," he says, "sets a fine example. He has banished wine from his table, and entertains his friends with rum and water. This is much to the honor of his wisdom, his policy and his patriotism."

Cool.

Refreshingly cool—A Texas stage robber has been caught, and has employed a lawyer, who was one of his latest victims, to defend him.

Long Terms.

Texas journals tell us that a negro was sentenced to the penitentiary for fifty years at Huntsville, Texas, for killing another negro, and a negro was sentenced to the penitentiary for ninety-nine years at Cameron, Texas, for killing another negro.

Sued.

A Covington physician was sued for damages for putting impure vaccine matter into the arm of a child, from which it died. A judgment for $5000 was awarded, although another child was vaccinated at the same time and did well.

Settling a Title.

On April 24 a dispute arose at Deadwood, D. T., in which several persons were engaged, concerning the title to a town lot in South Deadwood. After some harsh language all hands drew revolvers and commenced firing. D. O. Brodovitch, of Eureka, Nev., was killed; Stephen Courich of the same place, mortally shot and A. Milich, slightly injured.

One to Ten.

Last year 251 divorces were granted in San Francisco. Compared with the number of marriages for the same period (2,558) the proportion is about 1 to 10.

Well Chased.

An Omaha man is doubly in trouble. He deserted his wife to elope with a girl, and the wife is chasing him. Then he deserted the girl, and she is chasing him. The chasers have joined in the pursuit, and he fears the worst if they catch him.

No Jealousy There.

A lady correspondent, has discovered an Elysian abode teeming with men and women of the most singular temperament. She writes. One of the most extraordinary features in Hawaiian character lies in the fact that the terrible passion of jealousy is unknown among them. It does not exist any more than a thing that never had an existance. The Hawaiian woman is the most loving of human beings. The Hawaiian lover, however, deeply he loves her, is never jealous of her. Men may smile upon her, but his soul is unruffled by the greeneyed monster. Native women are not jealous of native women nor of men, husband is not jealous of wife. The native is not insensible to the wishes of his husband. He woos upon her with gallant attention. In fact, the Hawaiian is so extremely gallant that he thinks it a glory to do honor such, if the thing thereof will please his consort.

A Dissatisfied Elpehant Subdued.

A hugh elephant recently received from Europe at Gilmore's Garden, New York city, became dissatisfied with his keeper, and struck that individual a blow in the side with his trunk, sending him flying twenty feet away. Nothing daunted by his treatment, the keeper ran at the monster with a view of subduing him, but was seized and thrown over the railings surrounding the enclosure. A second return to the attack resulted in the keeper being again seized, and if he had not been dragged away the enraged beast would have pierced his body with his tusks. The beast then broke his chain and started on a tour of destruction. Before he had proceeded far, however, he was lassoed, thrown down, beaten, prodded and otherwise punished until he submitted. It took six hours to conquor him, and men were afterwards occupied for hours in washing away the blood which streamed from the wounds in his body. This seemingly harsh treatment is necessary to conquor the beast. If he had been allowed to have his own way this time, there would have been no living with him. His keeper was seriously but not fatally injured in the combat.
