Our dearest little Willie boy Has gone where all is peace and joy; For Go1, who is above us all, Has said, "Willie, you must leave all."

I gazed upon his pallid brow, And prayed that I could just tell how To ease him of his dreadful pant, But soon I found it all in vain

He was the idol of our heart, But still with him we had to purt; But now his loss we can't but mourn, Though to heaven he has been bortle. Methinks I saw the angels stand, With crowns of glory in their nand, Waiting to crown his little head

And now, my little Willie, dear, We'll cease to shed another tear, And bid farewell, and let you die, And hope to meet you by and by.
