PENNA. R. R. TIME TABLE.

On and after Monday, June 25th, 1877, passenger trains will leave Mifflin Station, P. R. R., as follows:

Eastward. Phila. Ex., daily, except Sunday 12:54 a.m. Mifflin A.C., daily, except Sunday, 5:25 a.m.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

There are no changes in city grain markets, worth mentioning.

No birds, but snow birds. Beautiful day—last Friday.

Sunday was a delightful day. The Teachers' Institute is in full operation.

The Post Royal Band has been re-organized.

No school this week, and the children are happy.

Base ballers are still hopeful of clear water this fall.

Lots of new clothing for men and boys, at Harley's. Call around.

The Court House offices have been nicely cleaned, by Johnnie McNulty.

William Banks received another installment of cattle on Sunday from Chicago.

The latest date for Indian summer to put in an appearance is the 25th of this month.

Mrs. Pannemaker has had a new roof put on her house, on the north side of Cherry street.

The reservoir at Hollidaysburg has been stocked with grass and rock fish from Lake Erie.

A coon captured on Tusny mountain was sent to the editor of the Huntingdon Globe last week.

Strayer has opened out a new lot of the latest styled clothing. That's where you should call.

This has been the get out year for the Republicans, and the get in year for the Democrats.

O. P. Robinson is about to build a stone wall along the foot of his lot, on the west side of Water street.

One hundred and thirty-seven Mormons passed this place, in cars, a few days ago, for Salt Lake City.

"The man who does not subscribe for a newspaper contents himself with perusing drug store almanacs."

The champion duck hunter of Mifflin county is Samuel Marks. He shot a dozen wild ducks one day last week.

And now the fishermen are puzzled to know what Grass Bass are. They are a western fish, but what are they like?

The Junata Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Church will convene in St. Paul's church, this county, on Monday evening, November 19th.

Winters' boys, living in Licking Creek valley, have a first-rate coon dog. In six teen hunting excursions to the woods to hunt, after night, they captured twenty-two coons.

A flock of forty-five wild geese passed over town on Saturday evening. It was conjectured by those who are good on a conjecture that the geese might reach Millersden dam by night-fall.

Two horses belonging to Joseph Slesher, of Fayette township, fell to kicking each other, some days ago, which resulted in the breaking of a leg of one of the animals. The animal with the broken leg was subsequently shot.

An exchange says that it received an inquiry as to whether a "puzzle editor" could find employment on the paper. The inquiry is answered by "No, thank you. We have no puzzle editor, and that is sufficient. He is puzzled to find out why some people don't pay for their papers."

Be careful what you shoot at. Judge Jankin recently charged the grand jury of Perry county, thus: "Any shooting at supposed game, before the sportsman has discovered his mark, is carelessness, and if the object thus carelessly fired at, turn out to be human, and death ensued from the shot and wound that is manslaughter."

About 11 o'clock last Wednesday forenoon the house occupied by Wm. Wise, a short distance north of Patterson, took fire, it is not known how. Conjecture has it that a spark from a brush-fire that Wise was managing, a short distance from the house, set fire to the roof, and thus brought on the conflagration. Mr. Wise was considerably burned in his efforts to contain the fire and in the effort to save his household effects. The household goods were mostly saved. The house was almost entirely destroyed.

Last Thursday, as Rev. Mr. Berry and Mr. Harvey Yeakey were descending from a bench of Shale mountain in a wagon, their horse became a little too free in his movements. In the effort to restrain the free inclination of the horse, one of the lines broke, and then it went after the fashion of a loose horse in a wagon, on a mountain road going down hill. The wagon was soon lodged upside down against a tree, the shafts all broken to pieces, and the horse speeding like the wind toward the valley, which he reached all right, and brought himself to a halt at a stable where he had been fed. The reverend gentleman and the merchant gathered themselves out of the wreck without injury excepting a few bruises.

JACK ZILBUS was arrested and lodged in jail on Monday, charged with selling liquor without license, selling on Sunday, selling to minors and persons of intemperate habits, for harboring stolen goods, and for keeping a bawdy house. On Monday evening a Deputy U. S. Marshal came here to arrest him for running an illicit distillery and for making counterfeit money, but the authorities here refused to surrender him. It is said there are several parties who are quaking in their boots, and are strongly in favor of delivering Jake into the hands of the U. S. authorities.—Huntingdon Globe.

Personal.

King, of the Blair county Radical, has been elected to the Legislature. He will make a good member.

J. W. Laughlin, formerly of this county, now of Philadelphia, paid the town a visit on Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Curran is conducting a protracted meeting in the Evangelical church in Patterson.

A sleek, plump-figured tramp entered the Lutheran church on Sabbath evening, early, and listened to Rev. Mr. Berry's sermon, and lingered till all the congregation passed out of the building, till the sexton was about to close the church, before he left.

No uterlyman who uses tobacco can be admitted to the Tennessee Methodist Conference.

General Sigel's three sons are to be farmers.

The Democratic press of Ohio favor General Morgan for United States Senator.

William and Mary Pugh, of Delaware county, celebrated their golden wedding last week.

Mrs. General Anderson, widow of the hero of Fort Sumpter, is living in New York.

Mrs. Van Doren, aged 90 years of Whitehouse, N. J. has the whooping cough for the second time.

General Crook telegraphs that the movement of the Indians toward the Missouri has been impeded by snow.

William Theford, of Tyler, Texas is trying to drive a hog into a pen, fell and was attacked by the hog and killed.

Ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull, Illinois, has been married to Miss Mary J. Ingraham his cousin, and eldest daughter of the late apt. John Ingraham, of Old Saybrook, Conn.

Rev. John Marples, a minister of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, has become an ardent spiritualist, and has sent his resignation of his connection with the Presbyterian Church.

A dispatch from Pittsburg on Saturday says, James Boyd, Geo. Boyd and W. H. Smith, charged with riot in stoning engines on the Pan Handle railroad during the riots of last July, were acquitted yesterday morning. The evidence against them was very positive.

The counsel for the Commonwealth was thoroughly disgusted with the verdict and declared that they would try no more riot cases with the present jury, as satisfactory justice could not be obtained. A change of venue is talked of, but no motion for change has yet been made. The present jury seems to be strongly in sympathy with the rioters.

A new jury will be had next week, when the riot cases will be resumed.

The Altoona Tribune of last week published the following relative to the question of the resignation of Rev. Mr. Chichester, of the Second Presbyterian Church of Altoona:

The Reverend gentleman said in the congregational meeting: In the first place, he did not make the request because the congregation had defrauded in the payment of his salary.

It was not because he coveted a larger salary.

He did not ask it because of any unpleasant disturbance in the church. He never knew a time when there was such unity, such an all-prevailing feeling of brotherly love in this church as now.

These explanations, the speaker said, he made to set at rest evil tongues, and he was glad of the opportunity of distinctly denying that these were reasons why he wanted to go, as has been indicated in the circulation.

My first reason is that I have not been as successful in my work in this community during the past few years as in other years gone by. I have labored none the less ardently but with results neither gratifying nor satisfactory.

In the second place I ask it because of the spiritual apathy pervading this congregation which I have not been able to overcome. I have not the same influence over you I once had. I do not blame you; I blame myself. A stranger may remedy this evil.

I find it impossible to secure time for proper pulpit preparation, general literary culture and mental improvement, which a young minister needs so much more than any one else. I need time for mental rest.

I can no longer satisfy the exacting demands of this church in a personal way. The membership is too large for me to visit every member even twice a year.

My fifth and last reason is that with God's blessing I may do a grand work in Titusville, much better than I could do here for many years to come. Of course I can't tell; the matter lies with God. The call is an unanimous one, and the people there say I am the only person that the whole congregation could have united upon.

In conclusion I would say I have been asked if I wanted to go. I reply that I want to do my duty. If it is my duty to stay I will do so cheerfully. I frankly confess to you to-night that I don't know what my duty is. I leave the matter in the hands of Presbytery.

An adjourned meeting of the Huntingdon Presbytery was held in the Second Presbyterian Church of Altoona, to take into consideration the resignation of Rev. W. J. Chichester as pastor of that congregation. The attendance of ministers was not large. The Titusville committee presented a strong plea in favor of the dissolution of Mr. Chichester's present pastoral relation, but the Presbytery refused to entertain their plea by a vote of yeas 5, nays 9. Thus the matter rests for the present.

The Bloomfield Advocate says: On Thursday night of last week Mr. George McKee and wife made a narrow escape from suffocation from coal gas by some means their horse reached the stable where he had been fed. The reverend gentleman and the merchant gathered themselves out of the wreck without injury excepting a few bruises.

True Love's Time of Day.

When shall I find you, sweetheart, That shall be and must be mine? I seek, though the world divides us, And I send you the secret sign.

There's blood in the veins of the morning, So fresh it may well deceive, When man awakes forth as Adam, And woman awakes him as Eve.

There's an ebb spell in twilight, When the bats of fancy fly, And sense is bound by a question, And fate by the quick reply.

And the moon is an old enchantress, With her snares of glimmer and shade, That have ever been false and fatal To the dreams of man and maid.

But I'll meet you at noonday, sweetheart, In the billowy fields of grain, When the sun is hot for harvest, And the roses at their fair.

With the daylight's truth on your forehead, And the daylight's love in your eye, I'll kiss you without a question, And you'll kiss me without reply.

—Bargara Taylor, Harper's Weekly.

Mrs. Koester, died while at the supper table, at her home in Fort Royal, on Tuesday, Cough, it is believed ruptured a blood vessel in her lungs, from the effect of which she died.

The educators are all here, such distinguished foreigners as Wickström, Hayes, Seitzer, and Raub, add additional grace, and interest, to the steady work, that is always engaged in by such local celebrities as Robinson, Greening, the Garansa, Swin, Marks the Hibbs brothers, Lantz, Platt, and others.

A "STILL HUNT," AND WHAT CAME OF IT.—One night, in the early part of last week, a revenue officer in a number of places, accompanied by a number of assistants, and the chief of police, visited the house of Jacob Zilbus, in West Huntingdon, for the purpose of searching it to find out the truth or falsity of the suspicion that Jake had an illicit distillery in operation. They went to the front door, rapped, and it was opened for their admittance, when they entered the house. The officer, who was in a quandary how to proceed, but he finally told Jake his mission there, when he was informed by Jake that he could not search the house unless he or his wife accompanied him. The officer lifted a lamp from a bracket in the hall and was about ascending the stairs leading to the second-story of the building, when Mrs. Zilbus came upon the scene, and in a twinkling she led drive at the officer, catching him with her right hand just below the ear, knocking the lamp out of his hand and extinguishing the light. The confusion aroused an inmate of the house from a drunken stupor, who came staggering among the crowd flourishing a revolver, and rumor has it that he fired one shot which barely escaped taking effect upon one of the revenue officer's assistants. There they were, in total darkness, while blows were being struck thick and fast, and revolvers and sword-canes flourished with impunity. How to escape with whole hides was the next question that occupied the minds of the searchers, when fortunately for them some one opened the front door and presented to them a mode of egress, and it is hardly necessary to tell our readers that they did not stand upon the order of their going, but went at once, and at a rate of speed that their necks had they been so unfortunate as to have made a misstep in descending from the porch in front of Jake's mansion. They didn't find the still, and we don't believe they will visit the house again for so unbecomable an hour to search for it.—Huntingdon Journal.

The Lewistown Gazette says: As John Miller, who lives at Kelly's church, was going to his work at an early hour on Saturday morning, he discovered the back building or shed of the house occupied by Joseph Hoffnagle, on the old Major farm, on fire. He immediately aroused the firemen and Mr. H. his wife and children all got out safely, but in a frantic moment Mrs. H. rushed into a part of the house not yet on fire and got upstairs, but found her return cut off by fire and smoke. She got to a window and was urged by the bystanders to jump down on some bedding which had been thrown out, but before she could summon resolution enough to do so, the floor gave away and she was precipitated into the burning mass. Mr. H., who also entered the burning building, came near being suffocated by smoke, but was rescued. He was burnt on the back of his head, neck and face, and was so prostrated as to be unable to attend his wife's funeral. What her motive was in going up-stairs is unknown, but as some silver coin was found near what was left of her body it is supposed she tried to save them or something else she valued. Her maiden name was Sarah How, daughter of Benjamin How, deceased, was 31 years and 1 day old, and leaves two children. Various theories are advanced as to the cause of the fire, but nothing certain is known.

The Lewistown Gazette writes of Amos and Jacob Wmsler, of Juniata county, who have been drilling wells in the west end of Kishicoquillas valley. These are the same who were drilled for Jonathan Hartzler near McVeytown, and were very successful in striking a stream that furnished an abundance of water. They drill a 3 or 4 inch hole, as the parties may desire. For Jacob King, near Allentown, they drilled a 3 inch hole about 20 feet deep, but failed to strike any stream; yet Mr. King thinks he may have water enough for his present wants. On ex-sheriff D. M. Conner's farm they were more successful. By drilling a little more than 10 feet they came to an opening in the rock from which water arose in the well four feet.

Ex-Sheriff Miller, of Clearfield county, and son in law of D. W. Moore, Esq., late of the Altoona Sun, disappeared from his home over a year ago. The cause of his mysterious disappearance was unknown, but supposed to be pecuniary embarrassment. All traces of him were lost, and it was only within a few weeks that any tidings of Mr. Miller reached his friends, who were greatly concerned about his safety and whereabouts, to ascertain which they had made every effort. A gentleman from York, Pa., had occasion to visit Oregon this summer, and there found and recognized the ex-Sheriff working in a lumber yard. On his return home, he made known his discovery, which was conveyed to Miller's friends in Clearfield. His wife opened up a correspondence with him, which resulted in a remittance of money, and a request for her to rejoin him on the Pacific slope. The Pacific went on Friday morning bore her toward the setting sun, to be reunited to her long lost husband. We wish her a pleasant and safe journey, with the hope that prosperity may beam more brightly on them in their far off home than it did here, and in the fondest of their childhood and of their honest undertaker.—Altoona Tribune.
