

At a recent caucus of Republican Senators, held at Washington, it was resolved to not break with the President. That was the advice of Senator Morton a week before he died. Wise advice, for on the question of appointments the President holds the situation, and as to the ability of rallying the party under the cry of the Bloody Shirt, it can not be done now. Nothing but a series of new outrages will arouse the people on the question. So, taken all in all, it is wisdom to stand by the President. The President is a good Republican, has never been anything else. To fall out with him because times and circumstances are not what they were five years ago, is to display great folly. The Democracy recognize the progress of events. They are changing with the times and circumstances. They should not be allowed to beat the Republicans in the arts of diplomacy. Cut the President, and no good can come from it; on the other hand the Democrats will reap the profits.

The debates in Congress on the finance of the country tell of many an ignorant man who is in Congress, who had better never been sent there. We never owned an U. S. bond, and never will while a continual abuse is heaped at the owners, by ignorant Congressmen and their followers. If it had not been for money raised on U. S. bonds and other U. S. securities, the Republic would have been crushed out by the Confederates. To hear certain men talk, if one knows no better, will lead to the conclusion that some great wrong lies at the bottom of an issue of bonds by the Government, that the American people profess so much love for. Is it more of a wrong for nation to issue bonds, than for an individual to do so? Is it more of a wrong to loan money to a nation than to an individual?

When Vanderbilt, the manipulator of stage, canal and railroad routes, died, he left an unencumbered estate, worth millions of dollars. By will he left each of his children several hundred thousand dollars, a most liberal provision for each one. To the oldest son he left the great bulk of his property, hoping thereby to perpetuate the Vanderbilt family, believing that money is perpetuation; but it is the old story of the counterfeit trying to pass for genuine coin. The staying quality of genuine aristocratic stock was not there, and as soon as the father was in the grave all regard for the acts of the sire must be disregarded, after the fashion of dogs, and now they are all set on the oldest son, trying to overthrow the work that the father assigned to him. They are trying to make their father out to have been a crazy, and everything but the right kind of a man. Father Vanderbilt desired to be aristocratic, but low far wide of the blood he stood is proven by his children. The lines in such things are closely drawn. It is impossible to make an eagle out of an owl, or lion out of a bear, or a sheep out of a hog. The lines in each are distinctly drawn, and however much the one would be the other, they cannot be anything but what they are, and yet they are all different kinds, they all are, or may be ranked under the general name of people, or men and women, but differences do exist naturally. "Can the Levite change his skin, or the leopard his spots?"

"Merrill is agitated by a desire to reach Europe without going to New York, and to that end proposes a ship canal between the headwaters of the Kalamazoo and Raisin rivers—a distance of some fifty or more miles. There are three railroads across the peninsula there now, and there is water communication by the Straits of Mackinac; but, prompted perhaps by Chicago, there is a lively discussion of the expediency of digging a canal and rendering unnavi-gable streams available to large craft. By the time Michigan has dug and paid for one canal and fitted one shallow river for steamboats, this fever is likely to cool off. It burns quite feverishly now."

REPUTATION TALK IN CONGRESS. Hush! Wait till the Democracy get the Senate, then look for a breeze in financial affairs. No panic that this country has ever passed through will be like it, unless it was the one that came with the repudiation of Continental money.

The Russians have been successful in their efforts before Kars in Asia, having captured that place. The cool weather is bracing up the Russians to a more vigorous fight.

At the close of the present Congress in 1879 the terms of the following Senators will expire: Spencer, Rep., Alabama; Dancy, Rep., Arkansas; Sargent, Rep., California; Chaffee, Rep., Colorado; Barnum, Dem., Connecticut; Conover, R.-P., Florida; Gordon, Dem., Georgia; Oglesby, Rep., Illinois; Voorhes, Dem., Indiana; Allison, Rep., Iowa; Ingalls, Rep., Kansas; McCree, Dem., Kentucky; Dennis, Dem., Maryland; Boggs, Dem., Missouri; Jones, Rep., Nevada; Wadleigh, Rep., New Hampshire; Cushing, Rep., New York; Merrimon, Dem., North Carolina; Matthews, Rep., Ohio; Mitchell, Rep., Oregon; Cameron, Rep., Pennsylvania; Patterson, Rep., South Carolina; Merrill, Rep., Vermont; Howe, Rep., Wisconsin. The Louisiana seat now in controversy between Spencer and the Republicans and six Democrats.

Twenty thousand men tramp in Indiana.

The hog cholera has broken out in the vicinity of Robeson, Berks county. Ten young men at Hellam, York county, have just served a term in jail for disturbing a religious meeting. A boy fourteen years of age recently shot a wild cat in Franklin county which measured four feet and one inch in length. The stone breaking establishment at Bethlehem will be ready for operations on Monday next. Fifty cart loads of stone have been provided for the wanderers to begin on. Nine mad dogs have recently been killed in one township in Northumberland county. A castan woman (N. C.) woman, who gave birth to triplets two years ago, has lately improved on the achievement by producing four children at one birth. All seven of the infants are living. A Paris correspondent, who has fallen, doubtless, into the European practice of eating late suppers, says it is a mistake to suppose the medical faculty hostile to sleep following supper. He discussed the question recently with an able physician, who said to him: "There is nothing more absurd than to pretend that healthy sleep is immediately after the day's last meal. Is not a man an animal? Do not animals, without exception, sleep immediately after eating? Do we not feel like sleeping after each day's last meal? And is it not by an effort that we shake off sleep? Evidently the body yearns for sleep. Exercise after every meal is pernicious. Rest is healthful. What rest can compare with sleep which reposes the mind, the lungs, even the heart? See the peasants. No persons enjoy better health than they do. No sooner have they supped than they go to bed. Look at the actors. There was Rubini. He dined at three, went to his dressing room in the Italian Opera house, and slept until the theatre opened the doors. At mid night he waked heartily, and straight to bed he went. He died of sheer old age. You know Mons. Thiers' habit. The moment dinner ends he stretches himself out to sleep, and sleeps an hour. The truth is, if you look about you there will be found that the great majority of men go to sleep immediately after making their best meal. You certainly never saw anywhere in the world healthier or stronger women than those of the great markets. What is their rule of life? Dinner and to bed. Take another, the very opposite class—the tramps. They keep late hours. Their best meal is taken when they are stars say "good night." They then go to sleep. Did you ever hear of an astronomer dying under one hundred? The great majority of servants and mechanics go to sleep immediately after taking their best meal. They are right. They obey Nature's voice, which always gives judicious counsel."

A Fight with a Grizzly.

A short time ago Mr. Buchanan, residing at McKinney's Station, Lake Tahoe, was out hunting with two companions, when they suddenly came on a grizzly bear. Mr. Buchanan had an had during the summer trapped three grizzlies, and had come to the conclusion that he was a born grizzly fighter, and accordingly, when his companions slid up their respective rifles, he made after the bear. He hunted the bear for a few minutes, and then the bear turned and began to hunt him. Buchanan rushed back at a pretty lively pace to where his companions were, but they were so high up that they could not hear him cry for assistance, or could not help him if they did hear him. He had a shot-gun loaded with buckshot, and as the monster neared him he attempted to shoot, but in his hurry and excitement had only half-cocked the weapon. Finding, as he supposed, that his gun was useless, he began running around a clump of brush with the grizzly at his heels. He finally cocked his gun, and when the bear was within twenty feet away, he let him have a charge of buckshot to the side of his head, which seemed to temporarily embarrass the animal. Bruin soon recovered, however, and went right after his man, when he got the contents of the second barrel in the same place. Abashed, but not defeated, he went again directly for Buchanan, who by this time had rushed to climb the tree where one of his cowardly companions was indifferently looking down upon his peril. At the foot of the tree lay a loaded rifle which the other had dropped, and picking up this he shot the bear, as he advanced, under the fore-shield, killing him, at which the other men came down and congratulated him on his escape. When the carcass was cut up two balls were found near the heart, imbedded in callous flesh, showing that the bear had met with rough usage before.

Russian Victory.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A special dispatch to the Daily News dated Veron Kaleh, Sunday evening, says: "The fortress and city of Kars, with three hundred cannons, stores, ammunition, cash, etc., has fallen into Russian hands. The Turks lost five thousand killed and wounded, ten thousand prisoners and many flags. The Russian loss is about twenty-seven hundred. The Russian soldiers made but trifling booty, and spared peaceful citizens, women and children.—General Loris Melnikoff directed the battle during the day. The Grand Duke Michael was present also. The former entered the city at 11 o'clock Sunday morning."

Several hundred coal miners at Braidwood, Ill., resumed work yesterday at the company's terms. They have been idle for seven months.

The oil fever has reached York county.

A Mennonite school has been opened in Fayette county. A cheese factory is to be erected at Lynamsville, Potter county. Westmoreland county boasts of cabbage heads weighing eighteen pounds. Reading car shops are overcrowded with work, the men working twelve hours in Utah a few weeks ago a couple were married on Saturday and divorced on Monday. It was the usual duo applied for the divorce. A Drunken man was picked up in the streets of Pittsburgh recently, with $3100 in his pockets. Special constables, appointed by the sanction of the Governor, are now arresting tramps along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. A visitor at the house of a Mr. Sallada of Berks county, witnessed the extraordinary sight of a father and mother and 23 of their sons and daughters seated at the same table. A woman writes to the Boston Globe to say that there is a question in her mind whether it is exactly the proper thing for young men clerks in shoe stores to fit young ladies boots on and lace them up for them. She says she saw a young man fit ten pairs of boots one after another on a young lady recently and then they could find a fit; and the young fellow seemed to like it too. Lockville bridge has been the scene of a number of accidents since the new bridge was begun. The Harrisburg Telegraph of the 14th says: We are called on to chronicle another accident, which, fortunately, was devoid of serious result. A young man named Stroh from this city, who has been working on the bridge, yesterday afternoon fell off that structure, dropping a distance of forty five feet and striking on his back in the water. He turned quickly and swam for the pier, not a bit hurt. His fellow workman let down ropes and pulled him up. Mrs. Cady Stanton is credited with making a very sensible and sarcastic reply to some one who asked her if she thought that girls possessed, as a general thing, the physique necessary for the wear and tear of a collegiate course of study. Mrs. Stanton answered: "I would like to see you take thirteen hundred young men and lace them up, and hang ten to twenty pounds' weight on their waists, perch them on three-inch heels, cover their heads with rick-pick chignons, rats and mice, and stick 10,000 hair pins into their scalps; if they then can stand all this, they can stand a little Latin and Greek."

A man disguised as a woman, who recently canvassed Hagerstown, Md., measuring ladies' limbs for garters, which were altered to fit the purchasers has been arrested at Petrolia, in this State in the same disguise, while selling corsets to ladies. The villain now languishes in jail.

A hand fire engine, purchased by enterprising citizens for the town of Brookville, remains unclaimed at the railway depot in that place. The borough council refuse to pay the freight charges and bring the machine into use, and no one else is willing to pay the sum of $15 to get the engine out of the custody of the freight agent.

Mr. James M. Candless, who was so terribly mutilated by a vicious bull, at Butler some days ago, is in a fair way of recovery. This is considered one of the most remarkable cases on record, wherein a man could drag his bowels for several rods on the ground, and lay for one hour before they were replaced, and then live.

Deacon William B. Spooner, of Bristol, R. I., died through the mistake of a druggist, who put up the wrong medicine. Isaac B. Wadleigh, of East Greenwich, died the same day from a similar cause.

The Somerset Herald is informed that Samuel A. Wilt, of shade township while digging a post hole one day last week, accidentally struck upon a large earthen vessel which contained twenty-seven hundred dollars in old gold and coins, principally Mexican dollars. The date of the newest coin is 1751. How the coins got there is a great mystery. Some think they were placed there by John Graves, a well to do but eccentric individual, who resided on the premises many years ago.

A wealthy farmer near Groveport, Ohio, has offered a reward of $500 for the body, dead or alive, of Edwin C. Dyer, of that city, who disappeared so mysteriously recently from near Groveport.

A Pittsburg physician was arraigned the other day before the mayor on the charge of neglecting to report a case of supposed small pox. The patient was brought into court for the mayor to decide whether it was small pox or chicken pox, but he was unable to do so, and discharged the defendant.

A few nights ago, at Franklin, Illinois, John H. Duncan being refused liquor at the drug store of Wright Bros., returned after the store was closed, entered through a back window, distributed a keg of gunpowder over the floor and set the whole on fire and attempted to escape, but before he had succeeded a terrible explosion occurred, entirely demolishing the drug store and setting fire to an adjoining grocery store. Loss $14,000.

On Tuesday evening, about dark, the barn and outbuilding occupied by James Hibbs, Jr., at Langhorne Station, Bucks county, were fired by an incendiary. The buildings, a pair of mules, a cow and two hundred bushels of corn, together with seventy tons of hay, grain, &c., were totally consumed. As soon as the fire was under headway the dwelling house of the father, James Hibbs, Sr., was entered and gone through. Nothing of value has been missed, as the fire started in the barn and spread to the house. Mr. Hibbs had deposited five hundred dollars in bank at Bristol a few hours before, which was what thieves were in search of. No insurance.

An Indian girl, said to be a Mohawk princess, has entered upon a dramatic career in Toledo, Ohio. She is self-taught, has a voice of peculiar sweetness, has sung often in public, and promises to become a good actress. Her brother, now a temperance advocate in London, was educated at the expense of the Prince of Wales. The Youngstown Tribune states that a vein of good coal has been found in Richmond township, Ashland county, Ohio. This is twenty-five miles north of any coal yet discovered, and in a locality where experts and geologists have decided that it could not be found. Richmond township adjoins the Ohio State line in North Beaver township, Crawford county, Pa., where oil has recently been discovered. Considerable excitement prevails over the coal discovery, as the territory is now considered very valuable. In Zanesville, Monday evening, a week Lewis Kirk and George Griet, two young "sports" jealous of each other, on account of George Raunie, a cyprin, indulged in a street fight with pen knives, and slashed away at each other in murderous style until covered with blood and obliged from sheer exhaustion to desist. Their "lady love" witnessed the scene, and at its conclusion took the arm of Kirk, the least injured, and escorted him to her stopping place. Griet, very weak from loss of blood, found his way to a doctor's office, and had his wounds dressed. They were eight in number—on the left side of the neck and jaw seven inches long, another across the forehead three inches long, four in the breast, one in the upper part of the stomach, and the eighth in the right groin. It is thought he will die, and Kirk has been arrested.
