Last Thursday John S. Morton, of Philadelphia, was sent to prison, "having pleaded guilty to the charge of fraudulently issuing stock of the company of which he was President."

AN exchange says: Our foreign exports are so heavy that they cover our foreign interest, our foreign purchases and the bonds now returning to this country on account of the Bland or silver bill.

A NUMBER of public men take the position that neither gold or silver is the proper measure of value in this country, but that paper should be the standard currency. Before that can be demonstrated, the Constitution of the country, which provides for coin currency only, will have to be amended.

"The bill fixing the compensation of County Superintendents of common schools at two dollars for every school in the county, and seventy-five cents for every square mile, but no salary to be less than eight hundred dollars, or to exceed two thousand, has passed its second reading in the House."

THERE is a National navigation law that declares that no "foreign-built vessel can be provided with an American register or sail under the American flag." Englishmen now are anxious for Congress to repeal the law. The trouble with Russia inclines them to make a great effort to have the law repealed.

THERE is a bill in Congress that "directs the Secretary of the Interior to place on the pension rolls the names of the surviving officers and enlisted men, including militia and volunteers of the military and naval service, who served thirty days in the Mexican war or thirty days in the Creek war or the Seminole war or the Black Hawk war, or to their surviving widows who have not remarried."

ENGLAND has again snubbed the Russians, and stopped their victorious march, by sending 25 ships, 170 guns, and 6,000 men, near to Constantinople, in the sea of Marmora. She stationed the fleet there in the face of the protest of Turkey, and in violation of treaty provisions with France, Germany, Austria, Turkey and Russia. A continental army in England would settle the career of the meddler, and secure Europe from further interference, and give Irishmen and Scotchmen rights that they have long been strangers to.

A VINDICTIVE ATTACK is being made in New York on the monstrous total for salaries of public school teachers in that city, amounting to several millions yearly. Reduction is insisted on. The complaint is general in all the leading cities, east and west, and the extravagance seems to have sprung from a common cause, the popularity of the school system.—North American.

THE reason Englishmen are so anxious to have the right conferred by Congress to use the American flag to sail their ship under is found in the following paragraph:

"It is stated that a large importer of goods from England has signified to the agents of the American Line of steamships that, owing to the danger of war between Russia and England, he will henceforth ship all his goods by their steamers instead of using English bottoms, as he has been in the habit of doing."

THE Vicksburg Herald says: The people may rest certain that no true friend of southern interests will be content until there is a competing railway to the Pacific Ocean over southern soil. When that shall have been accomplished, then it may be policy for southern Congressmen to agree with northern Congressmen that no more aid shall be given to any railway schemes. As the case now stands, the demands of the south—almost the solid south—for an indorsement of the bonds of the Texas Pacific is just and moderate, and should be granted.

Those Democratic journals which were continually ringing the charges on the subject of President Grant's nepotism, or the placing of members of his family in office, are strangely silent regarding the charges made, and sustained, against Doorkeeper Polk, that he placed both his son and daughter's names on the payroll of his department, and drew their salaries with praiseworthy regularity. Perhaps these Democratic journals do not believe the homely old adage, "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."—Harrisburg Telegraph.

The Silver Bill.

"In order that our readers may be enabled to understand that steps of the Silver Bill as it passed the House and the bill as amended by the Senate Finance Committee and reported to that body, we give below the Bland Bill, pure and simple, and afterward the various amendments which had been proposed, up to last Saturday, when an amendment passed the Senate, that does not differ very much from the bill first proposed. If it is not amended by next week, we will publish the full text.

1. An act to authorize the free coinage of the standard dollar, and to restore its legal tender character. Be it enacted, etc., That there shall be coined, at the several mints of the United States, silver dollars of the weight of four hundred and twelve and a half grains Troy of standard silver, as provided in the act of Jan. 18, 1837, on which shall be the device and superscriptions provided by said act, which coins, together with all silver dollars heretofore coined by the United States of like weight and fineness, shall be a legal tender, at their nominal value, for all debts and dues, public and private, except where otherwise provided by contract; and any owner of silver bullion may deposit the same at any United States coinage mint or assay office, to be coined into such dollars, for his benefit, upon the same terms and conditions as gold bullion is deposited for coinage under existing laws.

2. The Senate Committee struck out the words above italicized, and in their stead inserted the following, which is the text of the bill now under consideration in the Senate:—"And the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to purchase, from time to time, silver bullion at the market price thereof, not less than two million dollars per month, and cause the same to be coined into such dollars. And any gain or seigniorage arising from this coinage shall be accounted for and paid into the Treasury, as provided under existing laws relative to the subsidiary coinage; provided, that the amount of money at any one time invested in such silver bullion, exclusive of such coinage, shall not exceed $5,000,000."

3. The Finance Committee has proposed the further amendment that after the passage of the bill the President shall invite the Governments of the Latin Union, and such others as he may think proper, to join with this Government in a conference concerning the establishment of a double metallic standard and the relation of value of the two metals, and that a commission of three on the part of this country, for that purpose, be created.

4. Senator Barnard proposes the further amendment that the proposed silver dollars shall be legal tender for debts of more than five hundred dollars.

5. Senator Cameron, of Wisconsin, proposes a further amendment that the proposed silver dollar shall contain 420 grains—the weight of the trade dollar. No. 2, and further, that the proposed silver dollar shall contain 434 grains; and further, that the bill, if it becomes a law, shall continue in force for one year only, unless its operation is extended by Congress.

6. Senator Christiany proposes a further amendment to the same effect as that described above in paragraph No. 2, and further, that the proposed silver dollar shall contain 434 grains; and further, that the bill, if it becomes a law, shall continue in force for one year only, unless its operation is extended by Congress.

7. Senator Booth proposes a further amendment that holders of coin in sums of not less than ten dollars may deposit with the treasurer or any assistant treasurer of the United States and receive therefor certificates, such certificates to be receivable for customs and all public dues, and the coin so deposited to be held by the treasurer or to redeem such certificates upon demand; so that the inconvenience of transferring silver coin in business transactions may be avoided.

8. Senator Morgan proposes a further amendment, that any holder of silver bullion may deposit in any mint or assay office not less than one hundred dollars' worth of it at one time and not more than one hundred thousand dollars worth in any one month, to be valued at its market price in legal-tender notes; that certificates therefor shall be issued payable by the secretary of the treasury in silver dollars or legal-tender notes in not less than thirty or more than ninety days; and that after one year silver bullion shall be coined on the same terms as gold.

9. Senator Beck proposed a further amendment, that the secretary of the Treasury be directed to buy silver bullion at the market price, in amounts of not less than three million of dollars' worth a month, and as much more as the mints can coin, to be coined into the proposed silver dollars, the gain or difference between the value of the bullion and the coin to be paid into the treasury; that, whenever the market price of silver is so high that it cannot be bought at less than par in legal-tender notes, silver bullion shall be coined for any holder who shall deposit it the same in any mint or assay office upon the same terms as gold bullion; and, further, that hereafter the subsidiary coins shall contain the same relative quantity of silver as the proposed silver dollars—that is, one half, one-fourth and one-eighth, respectively, of 412 1/2 grains.

10. Senator Blain proposes a further amendment, that the dollar shall contain 425 grains of standard silver, shall have unlimited coinage, and be an unlimited legal tender.

11. Senator Christiany proposes a further amendment providing for the coinage of silver dollars of 412 1/2 grains to be a legal tender to the amount of ten dollars, for all sums beyond ten dollars, silver dollars subsidiary coins, and mint stamped silver bars to be legal tender for their value in gold."

On Friday the 15th inst the Senate held an all-night session, voting on the numerous amendments to the bill and itself. Mr. Edmunds moved to amend by adding the words: "Nothing herein shall be construed to interfere with the coinage of gold and subsidiary silver coins as now authorized by law." Defeated by a vote of 46 to 23. The next day the Senate voted on Mr. Wallace's amendment to coin $100,000 in three years, and if by that time silver not worth 87 per cent. of gold coinage should be discontinued. Defeated by 40 to 26. The next amendment, to make the amount of silver to be coined not less

SUFFERINGS OF A YVESSEL'S CREW. A Week at Sea Without Food—The Fish Cut from the Body of a Murdered Sailor to Sustain Life—The Story as Related by the Captain.

Special Dispatch to McClure's Times. NEW YORK, Feb. 11, 1878. Captain Charles Keen, of the schooner Speedwell, arrived in this port to day, bringing with him the officers and all, except one of the crew of the Sallie M. Steelman. He reported that he found her nearly water-logged, but making steady way, under fore and mainmast, northeast of the Bermuda flag. She was flying the American flag.

My vessel belongs at Somers' Point, N. T. We left Charleston December 17, loaded with phosphate rock a terribly bad cargo to carry in rough weather. We were bound to Baltimore and had provisions for a short voyage. Up to December 30 we had light, pleasant winds, but on the night of the 30th a hurricane burst upon us. We were in the hour of a calm, and the men were left on deck, and that the men were hardly able to walk. Every article of food in the Steelman had been consumed eight days previously.
