Wood for Carving.—Lime tree is soft and pliable to the tool, and less liable to split and splinter than almost any other wood, which qualities render it of great utility to carvers for carrying out designs when lightness and bold-ness are equally required. It takes a stain well, and a fair polish, or it may be varnished without greatly altering the color of the wood but giving to it a very agreeable box-wood appearance. As well as for large festoons it is suit-able for smaller works, such as book-stands, miniature and portrait frames,

Mt. Vesuvius. This fairly illus-trates the force of habit, and the persistency with which people clang to options when once trates the force of habt, and the persistency with which people cong to opinions when once form ad. For example, Dr. Pierce's Golden M dical Discovery cures incipient consump-tion, coughs, colie, and all affections of the liver and blood, yet some still depend upon physicians and remedies that have mough but repeated failures to which they can refer. And all hough Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a sold under a positive guarantee to cure those weaknesses peculiar to women, and notwith-standing that thou ands of women bear testi-mony to its efficient and the truth of all mony to its efficacy, and the truth of all sta ements made concerning it, many set sub-mit to he use of caustic and the knife. Again, Dr. Pierce's Pieasant Purgative Pellets, no Dr. Fierce a Fleasant Purgative Peilets, no integer than mustard seeds, will positively cure constipation, where it is dependent upon dys-pepsis o. torpid h. er; yet some still depend for relief upon the 'bine pill' or huge d.ess of drastic esthario medicins. In the face of such facts, can we wonder at the binduess of the poor Italians?
