An exchange paper is responsible for the following: "A colored janitor of a hall in Chester, Delaware county, where the meetings of a Democratic club were held, presented a bill recently for $25, containing the following items: For cleaning the room week, 50 cents; for purifying spittoons, 10 cents; for rummaging, 25 cents; for ironing, 50 cents; for voting the Democratic ticket, $1.

J. B. M. Todd has received his spring stock of Shoes, Ladies' Gaiters, $1.00 to $1.25.

The Huntingdon Journal says: During the hunting season of last fall our friend, Thos. C. Fisher, Esq., gathered in the following game: 25 pheasants, 20 woodcock, 45 partridges, 2 mallard ducks, 1 common duck, 2 turkeys, 30 quail and 7 rabbits.

During the morning service last Sabbath, in the Presbyterian church, Rev. T. J. Sherrard preached an attractive sermon from a text in 1st Corinthians, 4th chapter, 6th verse. It was Paul who uttered the text, and the introductory to the sermon was so comprehensive that it gave in detail the missionary work of Paul to the city of Diana, where Apollus was met. The great power of Apollus as a preacher was dwelt on; the doctrine that he preached was pronounced as almost identical with that preached by Paul, and by the blessing of God, through the instrumentality of a couple of Paul's fellows who remained in Corinth with the Apollus while Paul journeyed elsewhere to preach, the difference between the two great missionaries was harmonized.

On Thursday last, a four-year daughter of Cookson Green, of Lewistown, administered to her baby sister, aged about fifteen months, a quantity of landanum, supposed to be nearly two teaspoonfuls. Fortunately the fact was immediately afterward discovered, and Dr. Campbell quickly called in, who by dint of skillful management succeeded in saving the child's life. The incident only adds another proof that poisons should be kept out of the reach of children.

There has been a very interesting meeting in progress in the Presbyterian church for a couple weeks past. Between 50 and 100 persons have attended the prayers of the church. While the good work is going on, the devil is busy at work too, but there is some prospect now that he will be tamed and caged.

The Junata Conference of Central Pennsylvania Lutheran Synod will meet at Lillyville on Monday, March 25th, 1878. The basement of the new Lutheran church at Siggerville will be dedicated on Sunday, March 24th.

Peach buds have been much injured by the cold, in Oliver township. Chicken thieves are operating at Newport. Rev. B. H. Crever, residing in Liverpool, was visited by quite a number of his parishioners last week, who made him quite a liberal donation.

The dwelling of Henry Beigh, situated near the Lutheran church, in Liverpool, was destroyed by fire on the 6th inst. His furniture, &c., were nearly all saved. The dwelling was insured in the North American Fire Insurance Company, of Philadelphia. Loss about $600.

On last Thursday a son of David Maxwell, of Centre township, had a leg broken. The boy is about twelve years of age, and was riding on a wagon, when he slipped and his leg was caught between the spokes of one of the hind wheels of the wagon and the standard.

On Friday last, Mr. George Eker, Jr., was cutting wood on the hill south of Bloomfield, and by some mishap sank the axe into his right foot, splitting the foot three or four inches. He was only able to reach home when he fainted from loss of blood.

A couple of tramps became unruly in Duncannon on Monday last week, and broke a looking-glass in a barber-shop. They were knocked down by some of the boys who were there, and were afterwards sent to Bloomfield and put in jail.

The Selinsgrove Times says: Washington Heimbach, who resides in the vicinity of Northumberland, started to come to Selinsgrove on Friday last when he came to the west end of the Northumberland bridge, a well dressed individual stepped up and asked permission to ride with him in the buggy, saying he was cold. His request was granted. When he got into the buggy his coat caught on the buggy seat and exposed a revolver in a hip pocket, and as he drew up the robe over his knees a set of small knives were observed by Mr. Heimbach to rise up from between the fellow's fingers. This alarmed him, especially when the stranger would slide his hand over Mr. Heimbach's overcoat and compliment his nice warm overcoat. He began to study how to get rid of his companion. So he kept looking back until the pickpocket asked him what he was looking for, when Mr. Heimbach told him his buggy was broken and he feared it wouldn't carry them. He induced the pickpocket to lean over and look under the buggy, when he dealt him a severe blow with his fist and knocked him overboard, the hind wheel passing over him. He gave the rascal, as he looked back, he was sitting upon his haunches and feeling about the sore spot where Mr. H. dealt him the blow.

An exchange says: A very clever (and therefore dangerous) imitation of the genuine trade dollar has made its appearance within the past few days. On comparison with the genuine coin it will be found that the bogus trade dollars are pinkish white in hue. They may be readily detected by this peculiarity in color. The milling of the counterfeit is nearly perfect, but there are slight traces of a mold in which the coin has been run visible on the edge; it is also light in weight, and will not rebound much when sounded. However, no bogus coin larger than a dime will rebound to any extent, however hard it may be struck on a wooden surface.

PUBLIC SALE.—Parfet & Hopper will sell at public sale at the residence of J. W. Parfet, in Delaware township, 14 miles Southeast of Brown's Mill, and 8 miles east of East Salem, on Thursday, March 21, 1878, 2 good heavy mares, nine and six year old, 1 four year old horse, 1 four year old mare, 1 three year old colt, 1 cow coming in profit about time of sale, 2 cows, coming in profit in May, 2 head of young cattle, 1 Hebecker's one horse threshing machine, complete, 1 two horse wagon, 2 Double seated Spring wagons with shafts and pole, 1 new James plow, together with a large lot of farming utensils too numerous to mention. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. when terms will be made known.

LUMBER.—All kinds, sizes and qualities, for sale at prices to suit the times. Call on or address JAS. C. SMITHSON, 204-4th St., near McAlister's, Pa.

Pictorial History of the World.

Full and Authentic Accounts of Every Nation, Ancient and Modern. Time, Space, Decline, and including a Full and Comprehensive History of the Rise and Fall of the Greek and Roman Empires, the Growth of the Nations of Modern Europe, the Middle Ages, the Crusades, the Reformation, the Revolution, the Discovery and Settlement of the New World, &c., &c., with Sketches of the Leading Characters in the World's History.

There has long been a demand for a work of convenient size and moderate price, written in popular and interesting style, and presenting in a clear, succinct and accurate form, the history of the various nations which have played their part in the world's history, in a work, which shall be easy of reference and thoroughly reliable. The publishers appreciating this demand, now offer to the public the Pictorial History of the World. It is from the pen of an author distinguished for his historical writings, and embodies the results of years of patient and laborious study and research on the part of Mr. McCabe, who has availed himself of every authority, from the vast collections of the Government libraries of Europe and this country, to the libraries of the Historical Societies of the whole world, which have been freely opened to him. He has carefully investigated the great field of historical discovery opened by the French, German and English writers, and in this volume presents the latest conclusions of the most eminent authorities.

The work opens with a carefully-prepared sketch of Sacred History, from the creation down to the establishment of Christianity, and the final destruction of the Jewish Nation, by the Romans. The author shows the clear light of modern science upon this narrative, and at the same time vindicates the truth of the Bible story. Then follows a valuable history of the great Babylonian and Assyrian Empires, until they were merged into one, and finally destroyed by the all-conquering Medes and Persians. We are given a deeply-interesting account of the peculiar civilization of both Babylon and Assyria.

We next tell the history of Egypt. Following this is the history of Phoenicia, the little country that is justly called "the Mother of Commerce." We are shown the rise and progress of the Phoenicians, the glories of Tyre and Sidon, and the sudden and overwhelming downfall of the nation. Greece is then taken up, and the country is described in such a vivid manner that the reader cannot fail to understand its geographical features which so powerfully affected the history and destiny of the Hellenic race.

The Great Medio-Perian Empire next claims our attention, and we are shown its wonderful growth, and its final overthrow by Alexander the Great. Carthage is next introduced, and we are told the story of its rapid and splendid growth; the triumphs of Hannibal, and the downfall of the Republic.

We now come to the History of Rome. We are told the early history of the "Eternal City"; the distinctive political Constitution of Rome is explained; the extension of the Roman power, until it overshadowed the whole world, is related; we are made acquainted with the means adopted by the Republic for civilizing and governing. The author gives a glowing account of the wars and conquests of Julius Caesar. The Great Roman Empire is next brought before us, and we are shown its steady and rapid decline; the history of the division of the Empire is related; and we are told the career of each portion until the final destruction of the Eastern branch by the Mohammedans; and the breaking up of the Western Empire into the nations of Modern Europe. The history of the Gothic Kingdom of Italy is related, and we are also given a clear and most valuable history of the Rise and Fall of the Papacy as a Temporal Power.

The Rise of the Saracens, their great conquests in the East under Mohammed and his successors, and the efforts made by the European powers during the Crusades, to wrest the Holy Land from them, are told with great force and interest, and the work includes a complete history of the Modern Turkish Empire. The History of England is related from the earliest times. The History of Ireland and of Scotland is also related, making the account of the British Kingdom complete. German History is given at length, from the first conquests of the Romans to the present time. The History of France, forms a deeply interesting portion of the work, and covers the entire period from the conquests of the Romans to the present day.

The History of Spain and Portugal, including the great discoveries and deep interest, and the reader is shown how the Spanish Kingdom was formed, how it became the leading power in Europe, and how and why it sank to its present obscure condition. The History of Modern Italy, is a very interesting portion of the work, and traces the fortunes of the Italian States from the Middle Ages to their Union under Victor Emmanuel in the Kingdom of Italy, and down to the present time. The Histories of Sweden, Norway and Denmark, are related separately and in detail; and the author then gives us the History of Holland.

The History of Russia is given in full, and relates the growth of the great Empire of the Czar, from the earliest times to the present day. This portion of the work includes a full and authentic account of the War between Russia and Turkey, and is the only complete history of that great conflict yet published. The Book also embraces full and accurate histories of China, Japan and India, and is rich in valuable information concerning the civilization and progress of those countries.

Having completed his account of the nations of the old world, the author takes up the history of our own country, and relates in full, from the discovery of America by Columbus, through the Colonial period, the Revolution, the Second War with England, the Mexican War, the Great Civil War, and the period of Reconstruction, down to the present day. Next follows a full and interesting history of Canada and the British Provinces of North America, a feature of the work of especial value to all American readers. Mexico and the States of South America are next taken up and the history of each is related in full; and we are also given an accurate and interesting history of Australia—that great English-speaking Empire which is growing up in the Southern Seas. The book is a complete treasury of history, and there is not a question that can be asked concerning any historical subject, but an answer to it can be found in this great work. It gives, as has been shown, in the limits of a single volume, a full and complete history of every nation, ancient or modern, that has ever flourished upon the globe; and constitutes a library of historical information such as has never before offered to the public before.

The publishers confidently assert that this is the most valuable and useful history ever published. It is the only complete work of the kind in print, and should be read by every intelligent person. It is comprised in one large royal octavo volume of 1260 double column pages, magnificently embellished with over 650 fine engravings illustrative of the events recorded in the narrative, embracing battles and other historical scenes; portraits of the great men of ancient and modern times; views of the principal cities of the world, and of noted places and public buildings, executed by the best artists and engravers of Europe and America. The engravings in this book are genuine works of art, and were made at a cost of over $25,000. The great number and high character of these engravings make this the most valuable art publication of the century. The work meets an acknowledged want, and Agents will find it an easy matter to obtain subscribers for it. There is no other complete History of the World before the public, and the people really want this history. With the certainty of an immense sale, the publishers have put the price very low, so as to bring it within the reach of all. AGENTS WANTED.—Send for circulars containing a full description of the work, and our extra terms to Agents. Address: NATIONAL PUBLISHING CO., 27 N. Seventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.; J. R. LOCKIN' THE BARN. "Jamie, where ha' ye bin, my lad? There's fallow upon your sleeve, An' your face is just as red as your beard, I verily do believe." "I was out if the barn lockin' up, sir, For to keep the thieves awy, Ye'll mind as ye told me not to forget, I'll stick a week again to-day."

JENNIE, where ha' ye bin, my lad? Your tresses are a' awree, An' the red on your cheeks is very red, An' a sparkle is in your eye." "The win' was a-blowin' so dreary, sir, That the candle-light was dim, An' please, sir, I only went along, 'Just to hold in need for him."

WEE, man, the time I've lockt the barn, An' I've still a clean coat-sleeve, An' Jennie held niver a light for me, I verily do believe. There's somebaird coonin', Gad bless ye both, If I know what I'm about, Take care that the dreary win' o' life, Blows niver your candle out."
