It is no wonder that the soft and beautiful clinging black ca-hmere has become so popular. They have entirely taken the place of all lar. They have entirely taken the place of all black goods of less value than silk, and to-day they are sold so cheap. We saw at the retail house of B. F. Dewees, 725 Chestnut street Philadelphia, very fine double width (28-inch) black Cashmeres, made in Bradford, England, at 25, 28 and 31 ceuts, and beautiful all-wool French Cashmeres from 47 cents to $1.25. This house sends -amples of black goods and all kinds of dry goods free on application.
