A number of men were hanged last week, by sentence of court for murder, and at a number of the executions the disgusting clerical ceremony of assuring the condemned man that all they need to reach heaven is to feel certain that they are forgiven of the crime that they have committed.

The latest rumor circulated concerning General Grant is certainly ingenious if not truthful. It was said that Joseph Seligman, the wealthy Jew banker of New York, who, it will be remembered, was refused admission at A. T. Stewart's Saratoga hotel last summer, was at present paying the expenses of the foreign tour of the ex-President and his family.

Who loses the Eight Cents.

Seventy or eighty persons have come to hand this week, inquiring in a pathetic voice who it is that loses the eight cents when a laboring man takes a twenty-cent silver piece for a dollar and passes it on his butcher for a dollar and the butcher passes it on the shoemaker for a dollar, and the shoemaker passes it on the landlord for a dollar, and the landlord passes it for a dollar on the State taxes, and the State passes it for a dollar on a mason for work on the new State House, and the mason passes it for a dollar to a merchant for a silk dress for his wife, and the merchant passes it for a dollar to the custom house officer for import duties, and the United States Treasurer passes it as a dollar to a soldier, and the soldier passes it as a dollar to the same carpenter heretofore previously mentioned, we are unable to see who has lost the eight cents. Happy thought! - perhaps the loss fell on some man who did not get it! Seriously the same man lost the eight cents who loses sixteen cents every time he takes four silver quarters that have only eighty-four cents worth of silver in them. But, even then, the five-cent nickel puzzle us. In a dollar's worth of these there is only nineteen cents worth of metal. Now, will some of the editors who lie awake at night to figure such things out please to inform us who it is that loses the eighty-one cents every time a dollar's worth of nickel is passed? Who loses four cents every time a five-cent piece is paid for a glass of lager or a car ride? The little copper cents are even greater robbery. We have not the heart to go into a calculation as to how many million dollars are wrong from the horny-handed bondholder every day in the passage of this debased cent, but it is inconceivable how an opponent of the Bland bill can pass one of these fraudulent tokens—even at a distance—without blushing for the perfidy of his race. -Graphic.

The hanging of Gus Johnson the murderer, at Rome last Friday a week was the greatest show that has been held in Georgia in many a year, it was a disgusting exhibition. Fifteen thousand persons were present when the trap fell and the wretch's neck was twisted. He left the jail smoking a cigar, and conversed freely with the Sheriff all the way to the gibbet. After reaching the gallows he asked for something to drink, and the priest who was officiating gave him a bottle of holy water. Johnson, after tasting it threw it under the gallows with a curse, saying that he thought it was gin. After some persuasion the Sheriff gave him a drink of whiskey. About this time Mr. Lawrence, a street evangelist, spoke to the prisoner about the importance of thinking seriously on religious matters. This raised the temper of the Catholic priest, who told him to go about his business, as Johnson had made his selection, and had asked him to officiate as minister, and that he would not have any interference. The evangelist, pointing to the following words: "The blood of Jesus Christ, God's son, cleanseth from all sin," printed in large letters, and posted conspicuously above the heads of the crowd, said: "Mr. Johnson, that is the text," and retired. After taking four or five drinks and several quills of tobacco, he asked the sheriff to let him tie the noose, and finally consented to throw aside the remains of his second cigar and to let them hang him.

The wife of George Wallace, alias George Baker, and their child were lying in the woods near Littleton, West Virginia, by John Wallace a brother of the husband, murdered and horribly mutilated. The wife was lying on her back near a fence corner, with the child across her lap. John Wallace immediately gave the alarm, and went for his brother. The husband went to his house and there found a young lady fourteen years old, a niece of his wife Mary Church, lying on the floor dead with three gashes in her forehead. The young lady was supposed to have been outraged and then murdered. Squire Morris impelled a jury, and the father of the murdered woman had the husband arrested on suspicion of committing the murder. Circumstantial evidence points to John Wallace as being the murderer. Threats of lynching are talked of. A heavy guard has been stationed over the prisoners. A crowd surrounded the jail howling and crying, "lynch them."
