A Nabob at One End and a Tramp at the Other.

There are few of the rich men of this country who can go into the past one, two, three and four or more hundred years and find a rich ancestry. Ninety-nine per cent of the nabob class, as Mr. Dill calls them, had poor people for their ancestors, and many indeed had an ancestry in that class of people known as tramps. The great distinguishing feature of the civilization of the Northern States is that all the channels, or avenues to business, religion, pleasure and office are open alike to all, and that is the reason that so many poor people get rich and are nabobs, as Mr. Dill says; and that is the reason that Mr. Dill is a candidate for a nabob office; for, certainly, by his own standard, any office that pays a salary of ten thousand dollars a year is a nabob office. The would-be Governor has not stated just which end he favors, whether that of the Nabob or that of the Tramp; but if his actions may be taken as a standard to judge by, and the common saying is that actions speak louder than words, which, if they do, he must be after seeking to be a Nabob, for how could a man be in love with the Tramp and seek the Nabob end with a ten thousand dollar salary. It is not exactly the fair thing to put in a bid for the tramp fraternity, and the Commune, by slapping the nabobs in the face, by saying the Republicans made you nabobs, and to the tramps say the Republicans made you tramps. No, that is not quite the fair thing, when it is considered that Mr. Dill is the son of a tramping preacher. But with all its unfairness it would not look so bad if he would want to get a $10,000 office. It looks very much as if he has a desire to quit the tramps and turn nabob. If it is true, what he said, that the result of Republican policy "is a nabob at one end of society, and a tramp at the other," Mr. POTTER is no longer plain Mr. Potter by name; his title is Don Pottero U. S. Mexican Congressman from New York.

It is no uncommon thing for men to talk away their chance, but no candidate for the office of Governor talked himself into defeat in so short a time as Mr. Dill. His nabob and tramp speech forever destroyed whatever chance he had for reaching the office for which he was nominated. His remarks are a bitter satire on himself, for to a certain degree he effects the style of the nabob, and discards the ways of the tramp. The people of this State cannot so far forget themselves as to elect a man Governor of this Commonwealth, who declares that the result of Northern civilization is a "Nabob at one end of society, and a Tramp at the other."

A Remarkable Platform. From the Norristown Herald. The Democratic platform constructed at Pittsburg is a wild and weird piece of fiction. It will prove a formidable rival to the average gas metre as a skirmisher away from the truth. Its charges against the Republican party are voluminous and happily conceived, but they don't charge the Republicans with having stolen Charles Ross, or accuse them of causing the defeat of the Turks in the recent war. It doesn't "unanimously" assert that the Republicans are responsible for the big fire in Chicago and the Chinese invasion of California; it forgot to declare that the Republican party, its measures and its men, are responsible for the grasshopper plague in the west and the potato bug in the east; for the famine in China. We note many other important omissions. Why in Dickens didn't the Democratic party finish their platform while they were about it?

The bankrupt law has been repealed. The terms of 24 State Senators expire this year and there is one vacancy. Of the retiring Senators 10 are Republicans and 14 are Democrats leaving 21 Republicans and 4 Democrats holding over. The Republicans are reasonably certain of electing 12 this fall, and if Senator Dill resigns they will make the next Senate stand 34 Republicans to 16 Democrats. A right good working majority all around.

nothing to do with the origin of the system. It was started in the Revolution. All that the Republicans did for it was to prevent the Southern men from crushing out that part of the system that the Northern people believed in; and to prevent the South from accomplishing its purpose it cost the North thousands of precious lives, and entailed a debt of millions of dollars, and furnished the material for such demagogues as Mr. Dill to criticize.

Whatever credit is due the Republican party for putting in practical operation, in all parts of the country, the system "that all men are born free and equal under the law," they should have, but they did not originate the system. It struggled up through the past, and first found recognition as a government principle in the Declaration of Independence in 1776. Mr. Dill should give that document a "keel-hauling." He should take for his text, "The result of the Declaration of Independence in 1776 is a nabob at one end of society, and a tramp at the other."

Potter Committee Work.

James E. Anderson, supervisor of East Feliciana parish, Louisiana, during the late Presidential election, and Secretary Sherman were before the Potter investigating committee on Saturday. Anderson's parish is one of the parishes in which the Republican voters were so intimidated as not to vote, and for that reason a large Tilden margin was given. When the time came to sum up the vote of the State, Anderson and others declared that intimidation caused the Republicans to remain away, and therefore Tilden had the majority. Under Louisiana law, such intimidation gave the Returning Board the right to reject the vote of the parish. It was rejected, with others, and the State declared for Hayes. Now Anderson says that the tales of intimidation were manufactured, and that no intimidation of Republicans took place. He tells that when the Democratic and Republican committees came down there to examine into the truth of the statement, that the Democrats offered him $4,000 if he would declare for Tilden. He tells on the other side that Secretary Sherman told him to stand steadfast. Anderson said he could not do that and remain in Louisiana. Secretary Sherman then told him that he could be provided for outside of the State; and from that interview, he alleges, he remained firmly for Hayes, and finally obtained a letter from Sherman promising that he should be taken care of. The letter itself was not produced, but he says that he called a copy of it to the committee. Sherman was put on the stand, and to the letter. He said he believed that he never wrote the letter; he had no recollection of writing such a letter.

There will be evidence on all these points, and the country can afford to coolly await it, in the consciousness that those who have been wallowing in the mire of crooked ways and false swearing will be found out.

It is not investigation that the Potter Committee is after. The object is to oust Mr. Hayes. They deny that object, just as they denied that the South intended armed rebellion in 1861. Jefferson Davis and all of his kind professed that they were preparing for rebellion, and the people were so blinded by their persistent lies that they did not realize the situation till the boom of cannon fire on Sumpter sounded through the land. Reader, are you in an incredulous and blind state now, as to what the Potter people mean? Awake! arise! and tell your representatives in Congress that you are not yet ready for a revolution. They will Mexicanize the Republic. Mr. Steger from this district is on the Potter Committee. No greater mistake could have been made than to put a man on from such a district as Mr. Steger represents. Of all the people in the country they will be the last to declare for the Mexican process of setting up and tearing down governments.

KEY SPEAKS OUT.

A LETTER TO SOUTHERN DEMOCRATS.

His Opinion of the Potter Resolution—Hayes to be Ousted and Tilden Inaugurated—The South to Face the Most Momentous Crisis Since 1861, and Its Duty.

WASHINGTON, May 28. In lieu of personal answer to many letters received from friends in the South, disclaiming sympathy with any effort to unseat President Hayes, Postmaster General Key has written the following open letter to the people of the South:

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The circumstances attending the passage of the Potter resolution to investigate the alleged frauds in the Presidential election of 1876 in the States of Louisiana and Florida, together with the subsequent declarations of many influential Democratic politicians and journalists, evidence that if both houses of the Forty-sixth Congress are Democratic the majority intend to oust President Hayes and inaugurate Mr. Tilden. The title of President Hayes was settled irrevocably by the Forty-fourth Congress in the act creating the Electoral Commission, under which he was legally declared elected and legally inaugurated. The Forty-fifth Congress has no more right to dispute his election than he has to contest the title of any victorious candidate in his own country. The Forty-sixth Congress will have no more right to ignore him and to recognize his defeated contestant, Mr. Tilden, than Mr. Hayes would have to send a file of soldiers to the House of Representatives to unseat a Democrat whom he might consider to have been wrongfully seated or fraudulently elected. The leaders in this desperate attempt to Mexicanize our institutions rely confidently upon the "solid South" to furnish the bulk of the Democratic majority in the next House of Representatives, the Senate being already secured. Remembering the encouragement which the Northern Democrats in 1860 and 1861 extended to the Southern States to secede, and the manner in which their promises of aid and comfort were fulfilled, can the Southern people afford to join this revolutionary movement with the certainty that when the inevitable hour of the electoral count under the law which parties in Congress had enacted. But now the representatives from the Southern States, with a very few exceptions, have joined a movement to subvert the results of their former patriotic action and to remand the country to that anarchy from which less than two years ago it was saved by their efforts. Grant that in permitting the autonomy of that body of States, and in appointing citizens to office in the South instead of strangers, President Hayes but discharged his constitutional duty, does that excuse the Southern Representatives for attempting to invalidate his title, which they established, or will it justify them in bringing the country again in danger of civil war in the effort to unseat him and inaugurate Mr. Tilden?

FACING A CIVIL WAR. The South must now face the most momentous crisis in its history since 1861. To endorse the recent conduct of their representatives is to admit the truth of the charge that the people of the South care nothing for the welfare of the Union, desire the downfall of the republic, and would rejoice to see it again involved in civil war. If their representatives have not reflected their sentiments, as I believe to be the case, then the people of the Southern States should take care that in the Forty-sixth Congress they are represented by men who will defend the stability of republican institutions for the sake of revenge on political opponents and in the hope of dividing the spoils of victory. If the Democratic Representatives of the South could not resist the caucus command to pass the Potter resolution, unamended and without debate, how will they be able in the Forty-sixth Congress to resist a similar command to ignore Mr. Hayes as President and to recognize Mr. Tilden?

Revolutionary Resolution Potter, wrote a letter justifying his course in offering the resolution to oust Hayes, which nobody read except to be disgusted with its sophistry and falsehood. Alexander Stephens answers that letter and literally "chews up" the afore-said Potter. Stephens concludes: "I so look upon the whole of this proceeding, concocted as it was conducted as it has been, as most unwise, most unfortunate, and most mischievous. My own opinion is as I have repeatedly said, this affair will prove in the end a bitter and contemptible farce, or a horrible tragedy. Whether it will lead to the Mexicanization of our Federal Republic and the result must show. But I say, as I said on another recent occasion, that all soft words instilling in the minds of the people of this country the idea that Mr. Hayes can be peacefully unseated by Congress are as delusive and as gulfing as the whisperings of the great arch-fiend in the shape of a toad in the ear of Eve, from which sprung all our woes."

A Desperado Lynched in Indiana. CINCINNATI, O., June 1.—An Enquirer special states that on Wednesday night at Owensville, Gibson county, Indiana, Andy Compagnon, a desperado, was taken from his bed by six masked men, carried to the outskirts of the town and there shot to death. Compagnon had been suspected of attempts to rob James A. Robinson, a cattle dealer, who was in the habit of riding around the country with considerable sums of money upon his person. There had been several attempts to rob him. One night he was called to the door and fired upon by a gang of robbers, receiving two wounds, not fatal. Robinson returned the fire, dispersing them. He made search for the robbers, and his head and hands were arrested, convicted and sent to the penitentiary. No positive evidence being found against Compagnon he was discharged. A trap was laid to get a confession from him, but he avoided it, having been warned. He afterwards endeavored to shoot one Simpson, who was one of the principal parties to the trap. This he succeeded in doing, but a mob assembled and killed him as stated.

STATE ITEMS. The Knight Templars held a convocation at Altoona last week. Tea swindlers are taking in the innocent near Scranton. The Temperance people held a State Convention at Altoona, last week, and nominated a State ticket. About 22 counties were represented. Starch is being manufactured on a large scale by Somerset county farmers. A woman named Snyder, of Berks county, was muled in $350 damages, for gossiping about a minister. The trial of Alexander Sayres, who killed his wife in church in Philadelphia was commenced on the 29th ult.

A new secret society composed exclusively of ladies is becoming very strong in the eastern part of the State.

THE DUTY OF THE SOUTH.

It is therefore the duty of the Southern people to afford a crowning evidence of their renewed devotion to the Union, in which they now enjoy every right of citizenship and are subjected to no restriction not laid upon every citizen, by sending representatives to the Forty-sixth Congress pledged to resist at all hazards the revolutionary schemes of the mischief-makers who seem to have gained control of the House of Representatives of the Forty-fifth Congress. To this end the people in every district should meet, publicly organize and resolve to support no person for Congress who has given aid to this movement, and will pledge himself to sustain the title of President Hayes during the term for which he was elected against all attempts at its overthrow. Only in this way can a grave danger to the Republic be averted and convincing proof be given that the confidence was not misplaced which President Hayes manifested in the South when he withdrew the troops from the State Houses of South Carolina and Louisiana. I have spoken plainly and earnestly for a feel that should be unworthy to represent the South in the administration were I to remain silent now. Invited to the Cabinet as a Southern man to see that justice was done to the South required me neither to apologize for my record nor to disown my political principles; it is my duty now to warn the people of the South of the danger which threatens the country. No man need hope that the schemes of the men who have been moving the movement to unseat President Hayes can be carried through a bloody civil war. To avert this danger I confidently rely upon the patriotism and honor of the people of my native country.

Fishermen have discovered that eels will attack shad, and a contemporary newspaper says that eels often attack the shad in the nets after the shad have been caught in the river. They enter the shad at the gill openings, and suck out the spawn and entrails, leaving the fish perfectly clean. Fishermen say that the shad thus attacked are the best, for the eels will not enter any but the finest and fattest fish. Eels also follow up the shad, all the way up the river, and devour the spawn. Were it not for these natural destroyers, the shad would increase to an amazing extent.

Last Wednesday the Philadelphia Record said: Some of the most desperate characters in the country are parading the streets of this city seeking for something for idle hands to do. Six weeks ago the Penitentiary contained a population of over 1,000 persons: now it is less than 1,000. Among those who have gained their liberty is a notorious robber of country seats who, six years ago, caused considerable trouble to the residents of Germantown and the first class suburbs. He has just finished a seven years sentence, barring the countenance allowed for good behavior. Another man is a terror to farmers. As a horse thief he has been a success. His liberty was obtained by a pardon secured through the connivance of an ex-sheriff in one of the counties adjoining this city. The horse thief made $109 by overwork and gave $75 of it to the ex-sheriff, who secured the signatures of the jury men in the case, and also carried the matter before the Pardon Board.

In a conversation with Levi Zimmerman, Esq., of Derry, whose store was robbed, and the parties traced to near Cornwall, Mr. Z. mentions that he had read a report from some person unknown to him, that there was a rendezvous of thieves in the Cornwall mountains, and that he could conduct a party within a few hundred feet of it but it would be as much as life was worth to approach it. He represents the place not only as well guarded, but naturally almost inaccessible, while the bandits who occupy it have numerous winding and intricate passages out of it. If this story is true, and circumstances transpiring daily so highly verify it, the next should receive the attention of the officers of the law, but it is not safe for one or two of them to attempt it. They should be dislodged, so that people living in that vicinity can retire without fear of robbery or something worse.—Lebanon Times.

Mr. Thomas Martin, an old gentleman living in Valley township, about seventy-six years of age, was terribly gored by a bull on Monday, the 20th instant. He went out to the barn and turned the bull out into the barnyard, when the animal suddenly lowered his head and made a furious charge upon him. Mr. Martin tried to escape, but was not quick enough, for the enraged beast reached him in a few bounds and with one of its horns threw him to the ground, one of the horns penetrating his thigh, making a fearful gash about five inches long. The animal then stood over the unfortunate man trying to run him through, but did not succeed further than to make a wound in his shoulder, where a small piece of the bone was chipped off, though a number of severe bruises were inflicted by his head and horns. Mr. Martin screamed loudly for aid and one of the women at the house, hearing his cries, ran to see what was the matter, but by the time she reached the barn the bull had moved away and the wounded man had regained his feet and staggered outside the barnyard. He was helped to the house and a physician summoned to dress his injuries. Although the wounds were serious, and especially so for a man of his age, Mr. Martin rapidly recovered and is likely to soon be as well as ever again. The animal was subsequently sold to a butcher, who killed it, and thus its goring days are over.—West Chester Republican.
