It is said that sixty feet of the breast of the Columbia dam has been swept away.

The Legislature of Tennessee inclines to favor the payment of the State debt at 50 cents on the dollar.

The government of Denmark has issued an order regarding the importation of live cattle from the United States.

HERE'S the difference between Republicans and Democrats. The Republicans kept Democratic employees in office in the U. S. Senate during all the years they have been in control of that body.

The Democrats have sent out all Republican officers in that body in less than one week from the time they got a majority.

When President Hayes announced his civil service policy the Democracy cried it highly, and said, "It is just the policy," but their insincerity was demonstrated in the new Senate, where they are insinuating the Jack sonia principle, that "to the victors belong the spoils." They are putting everybody out that is suspected of Republicanism.

Constitution has wrought wondrous changes in Southern sentiment, as witness the following poem from the Okla-homa (Miss.) Southern States in refer- ence to Jeff Davis: "He asks no odds at the hands of the pirates and jackals of Yankeeedom, No, sir! Strong is the strength of his own career, he looks down from invincible heights with ineffable contempt upon the dastardly ruffians that are buying at his immortal name."

The hungry office-seekers of the Democracy that trained under the Wallace banner are in a serious state of perplexity. Randall has carried off all the "loaves and fishes," and left nothing for the Wallace party to feast on. Tilden joined Randall, and that causes the case to stand Tilden, Randall, Spear and the barrel, against Wallace. Just where the sanctity of the ballot-box comes in is not so clear. Reform!

The Democrats in Congress are playing the Jackson Democrat by turning out everybody that does not belong to them. They forget that only a few short months ago they were full of recommendation to President Hayes that a new civil service would suit them. It should be a service that would make merit the standard for the office, and that political considerations should not be put above personal merit. But the memory of the Democracy is short on some questions.

The Democratic Congress, threaten to stop the government by refusing to pass appropriations to pay for the running of government, unless the Republicans will agree to the repeal of certain election laws that were passed by Congress to check the work of the bully at the polls. It was the refusal of the Democracy to pass the appropriation bills that made an extra session necessary. General Garfield excited the country by the manner in which he held them responsible for the evil that would come out of their revolutionary work.

PEOPLE, naturally may be given to "fits and starts," but it does not follow as a consequence that as slavery was abolished by the Republican rule by the consent of the people, that now since the Democracy are in power there is to be a start in the old direction that will result in the restoration of slavery, and so forth.

The statement who cherishes such a belief, cherishes a delusion. The Democracy must not set up the standard of revolution too high, or they will be forsaken by the people of the country, as they were in 1861.

The estate of a Kentucky family by the name of Buford got into court. Two of the ladies of the family were made insane by the finding of the court, so at least it is said. One of the ladies died in an insane asylum and the other in an insane asylum. A brother of the Miss that died vowed over her grave that he would avenge her death, and what he called the wrong visited on the family by the court. He loaded a shot gun and went on the street till the Judge came along, and then told him, that he had come to shoot him, which he did, killing the Judge instantly. Now they are trying Buford for killing the Judge.

THE Democrats in Congress threaten to wipe out the Republican records of the past twenty years. On this point the North American says: "What Republican legislation do they propose to wipe out?—the law providing for free and free elections? They cannot do that so long as there is a Republican President. They cannot repeal the amendments to the Constitution, and they form an important item in Republican legislation. The Republicans abolished slavery. Will the Democrats re-erect it? The Republicans established universal suffrage. Will the Democrats abolish it? The Republicans found the nation prostrate without credit and without money, and they raised the nation to its present proud position—prosperous, foremost among nations, as regards the credit, and respected everywhere. Will the Democrats undo all that? If not, then how can they make good their threats to wipe out the record of the Republican party? How can they wipe out Republican history and not wipe out the nation? They cannot do it. The policy of the Republican party preserved the nation, and holds it in its place at this hour. It rescued the Union from the death that Democratic treason meditated for it. It proclaimed the political equality of all men within its borders. It realized the dream of the fathers of the Constitution. And it cannot be wiped out with the consent of the people.

LAST Thursday in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, Mr. Moore, from Lackawanna county, presented a petition praying for the impeachment and removal of Garrick M. Harding, the President Judge of Luzerne county.

The petition charges that the Judge in his course has brought the judicial office into thorough contempt among the people and destroyed all confidence in the idea of there being anything like a genuine administration of justice in a court presided over by him, and that while holding the office of Judge he has been guilty of bribery and corruption to influence and control the election to the same office in his own favor; that he has used his position as President Judge to secure favorable contracts for certain parties, whereby the public moneys were squandered, and has received costly presents in return; that he has violated the plain provisions of the Constitution and the constitutional rights of Senators in the courts by making private improper arrangements with certain lawyers who are known to be favorites. That he has falsified the records of his court by filing false charges, and otherwise making guilty of drunkenness and immorality, and of frequenting saloons and drinking places; he has habitually indulged in conversation which is generally obscene, frequently profane, sometimes blasphemous. The petition was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

A DISPATCH from Harrisburg, under date of the 28th ult., says: Last evening Amos Gayman, for three years a boot proprietor at Dauphin, eight miles from this city, murdered His daughter Douglas, aged nineteen years, and almost simultaneously fired a bullet into his own heart, dying instantly and falling alongside the girl.

Miss Douglas had been in his employ about two years, and, being possessed of some personal charms, he fell in love with her, and an intimacy sprang up between them which aroused the jealousy of her father, who compelled the domestic to leave the premises.

She became a servant in another family, and Gayman continued his amours until a young man stole her affections. He then became very jealous of her, began drinking to excess, and made a number of efforts to get her back to the hotel, believing that he could thus win her back to him again.

She refused to yield to his requests, and he determined that if he could not have her as his sweetheart, she should not become the wife of the new lover; he accordingly, yesterday, provided himself with a large navy revolver, loaded all the chambers and watched his opportunity to shoot the young and unsuspecting woman.

He met her on the street in company with a female associate, and, walking up to them, asked permission of Miss Douglas to accompany her. She told him that he might do as he pleased, and soon after he stepped before her, drew the revolver from his pocket, pointed it at her breast and fired. The shot having the desired effect, he discharged another shot without striking her. As she was slipping from the grasp of the lady in her company, he fired again, the ball entering her breast and causing instant death, the muzzle of the revolver being so close to her person that her clothing was burned, and the powder driven into the wound. Gayman then placed the revolver to his breast and shot himself through the heart.

Gayman had a wife and three children. The tragedy occurred a short distance from the hotel.

STATE ITEMS.

At the residence of Henry Hottel, in Pottsville, Berks county, a scene was enacted on Monday night a week that very much resembles murder. The family, consisting of father, mother, several sons and daughters, retired for the night at about twenty minutes past eight. They had a small dog which is generally left in the kitchen during the night, but on Monday night a week he was left in the dining-room. The family had not been up stairs more than ten minutes when the dog set up a terrible barking in the dog below.

Not thinking that anything was wrong, one of the daughters, named Sallie, started down stairs to let the dog out of the room. When she opened the state door leading into the dining room she was confronted by three young men, one of whom immediately knocked the lamp out of her hand, and stabbed her in the leg above the knee, cutting two ugly gashes about six inches long. She at once began to scream and started up stairs, bolting the door after her.

Instead of the world-be murderer decamping they tried their best to get up stairs, but the bolted door debarred their further progress. The family up stairs in the meantime made free use of their lungs and the cry of "murder" rang out on the night air. H. S. Daub, of Pottsville, and Daniel Borneman, of Limerick, who were spending the evening at a house about a quarter of a mile distant, and others hearing the terrible cry at once went to the rescue. When near the house they called to know what was the matter, where the answer, "Help, for God's sake, some one is in the house trying to murder us!" They needed no further entreaty, but at once made for the house. Arriving there, they found that the rascals had escaped. It is supposed that they had secreted themselves in the cellar some distance from the house, and when the family had retired proceeded to carry out their villainous designs, whatever they may have been, perhaps robbery or even murder. Miss Hottel's assailant and knows him well.

A Lebanon clergyman complains that three within two years he has received, in lieu of a marriage fee, an empty piece of paper, rolled up in a most deceptive way. Now he opens them in the presence of the bride, and it has the effect of making the groom pony up if there is nothing in it.

The lumber rafts are coming down the Susquehanna in large numbers. It is estimated that fully one thousand rafts will be run down from the Clearfield region along this spring. The market at Lake Haven for timber ranges from 5 to 15 cents per cord, and the latter figure is for oak. The first timber rafts of the season passed Harrisburg on Saturday afternoon.

During the trial of Col. Campbell, of Pittsburgh, three daughters and two sons of the defendant were in daily attendance, and when the verdict of acquittal came in, five of the twelve jurors were kissed out of gratitude by the Misses Campbell.

A famine next year in Russia is predicted by Russian journals. Failures of crops, cattle plagues and the extra-ordinary drought of the last half year are the causes given.

A convention of clergymen is to be held in Springfield, Mass., on the 5th and 7th of May next, for the consideration of the due observance of the Sabbath.

A report comes by way of San Francisco that the revolution in Sonora, Mexico, is at an end, the forces under Mariscal having disbanded.

A Berlin dispatch says upwards of one hundred arrests have been made in Moscow in consequence of the assassination of a government spy.

A new and delightfully innocent style of cock-fighting has been introduced in Brooklyn. The chickens, as it were, in gloves, having "backskin" protectors over their spurs and leather muzzles over their beaks. They are said to fight with great spirit, but a cock-fight must lose much of its attraction as a refined and mainly sport. The birds do not suffer, and the Horace Manchester went down to the sunken mail packet Thomas J. Lynch, off Port Judd, near Newport, on Monday week being eighty feet under water. He signalled at the end of three quarters of an hour that he was all right; later that he wanted more air, and still later that he was getting too much. Shortly afterwards something appeared to be wrong and Augustus Falson, another diver, was sent down. Falson returned after an absence of twenty minutes. He reported that Manchester's dead body was suspended about five feet above the vessel, and that the air-line had caught upon one of the hooks about the rigging. The body was finally recovered.

Peter Smith, a farmer living near Clear Creek, Ia., went into his smoke house on Sunday and being absent a unusual length of time his wife went to see what was the matter. The door had been closed, and on opening it, she found her husband on the floor in the agonies of death. It is supposed that the door of the smoke house suddenly closed, and being unable to open it, soon enough Smith was overcome by the dense smoke and fell to the floor, where he was found dead.

The Jacksonville, Fla., "Republican" says: Some years ago one Cannon hired a man in Texas to murder an enemy. The man who did the murder was condemned to die, but the night before the execution his wife brought him poison in her mouth, and both were dead when found next morning. Cannon has just been captured and will probably hang. This man Cannon is said to be the same one who lived near Landgra in this county.

It is remarkable and creditable that the preparations of the Grand Army of the Republic for the observance of Decoration never were as extensive, or long prior to the occasion, as they are this year.

The affair lasted two hours and twenty minutes, and 137 spectators were present.

Suit for malicious trespass, as well as damage, was entered against her, and the woman pleaded guilty and was fined.

A crowd is approaching the earth and is nearly upon the earth. Its first appearance was noted only thirty-three years ago and its present appearance is the seventh time it has been recorded. It will be nearest the earth on the 10th of April, at a computed distance of about seventy five millions of miles, so that there is not the slightest prospect of a collision. It has never been seen from the earth much farther than the planet Jupiter. In 1857 it was seen in the extreme southern horizon and could be easily discerned with an opera-glass.

At four o'clock on the morning of the 26th ult., a terrible explosion shook the people on Northampton street, one of the main thoroughfares of Wilkesbarre. Investigation showed that an attempt had been made to destroy a public house, known as Harmony Hall, by means of a bottle filled with gunpowder and bullets, to which a long fuse was attached. This was placed under the front window through an iron grating. Fortunately the space was not sufficiently confined to produce the desired effect. The large window in front was smashed, the floor torn up and the wood work filled with bullets. The house had just been bought at Sheriff's sale and was unoccupied. An attempt had been made some time before to set the building on fire. The loss is not large.

The Grano-Roman wrestling match between William Miller, of Baltimore, and Col. J. H. McLaughlin, of Detroit, which was the entrance money and the championship of the world, came off on the night of the 26th ult., at the Academy of Music, in that city. Both men were in splendid condition. The house was crowded, but there was little outside betting. The first bout continued an hour without result. In the second bout they had not clasped hands when Miller, who was on his hands upon the stage, but Miller fell on his face and instantly turned his antagonist and pressed both shoulders to the floor and a fall was awarded him. In the third bout both men went to work vigorously and after ten minutes Miller was thrown, but the referee declared it a foul, McLaughlin having tripped Miller, which was not allowed by the rules governing the match. The fourth bout was short and decisive. Both men showed great skill, but after twelve minutes the men were prone on the floor, and Miller, with his look neck held, turned McLaughlin, and gained the fall and the match. The match was one hour and fifty-five minutes in length.
