

B. F. SCHWEIER,

VOL. XXXIII.

THE CONSTITUTION—THE UNION—AND THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAWS.

MIFFLINTOWN, JUNIATA COUNTY, PENNA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1879.

Editor and Proprietor.

NO. 18.

H. T. HELMBOLD'S

NIGHT ON THE TWELF.

Night lingers—but the world's cold... The mist along the river slowly creeps... The tall trees heavy with their weight of sleep...

COMPOUND

The black city holds its silent place... The fitting lights, the mourning lights... The crowded thousands, with their day's work done...

FLUID EXTRACT

The light is gone, and darkness covers all... The river-mist, the trees, the distant hills... The sobbing of the mourning lights...

BUCHU.

The house creeps on—do quivering light beams pass... From red to rosy along the river shore... The birds are whispering that the night is over...

PHARMACEUTICAL.

Diamonds.

"Oh, you ought to see the new gentleman," exclaimed Nellie Ford, as she rushed into the boarding-house parlor... "Such magnificent diamonds! Just think, he wears a pin large as a frying-pan and a ring to match, and he's a Californian, and isn't married, and he must be as rich as Croesus..."

A SPECIFIC REMEDY FOR ALL

DISEASES

OF THE BLADDER & KIDNEYS.

For Debility, Loss of Memory, Impotency, Hematuria, Stricture, etc. Helmbold's Buchu is a specific remedy for all these ailments.

"Helmbold's Buchu"

DOES IN EVERY CASE.

HELMBOLD'S BUCHU

IS UNEQUALED

By any remedy known. It is prescribed by the most eminent physicians all over the world, in Rheumatism, Paralysis, Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Acute and Chronic, General Debility, Kidney Diseases, Liver Complaints, Nervous Debility, Epilepsy, Head Troubles, Paralysis, General Ill-Health, Spinal Diseases, Sciatica, Deafness, Decline, Lumbago, Catarrh, Nervous Complaints, Female Complaints, &c.

Helmbold's Buchu

Invigorates the Stomach,

And stimulates the torpid Liver, Bowels, and Kidneys to healthy action, in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

PRICE $1 PER BOTTLE

Or Six Bottles for $5.

Delivered to any address free from observation. Patients may consult by letter, receiving the same attention as by calling, by answering the following questions: 1. Give your name and post-office address, county and State, and your nearest express office. 2. Your age and sex. 3. Occupation. 4. Married or single. 5. Height, weight, nose, and in health. 6. How long have you been sick. 7. Your complexion, color of hair and eyes. 8. How long have you been sick. 9. How long without restoration all you know about your case. 10. Your letter will then receive our attention, and we will give you a consultation free. Your letter will then receive our attention, and we will give you a consultation free. Your letter will then receive our attention, and we will give you a consultation free.

H. T. HELMBOLD, Druggist and Chemist, Philadelphia, Pa.

One of the Railroads in the U. S.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, not only from the extent and perfect equipment of its main line, but from the numerous branches, and the ramifications of its connections, is a work of semi-national importance. It embraces in its operations the most extensive railway system in the world, and represents more than one-eighth of the entire mileage of the whole country.

The afternoon of Diamonds were devoted to business visits down town, so he said, and as he liked a walk for a constitutional, he generally managed to pass Nell's school just as it was being dismissed, and during these walks he congratulated himself in her favor, and dizzied her by descriptions of his wealth and his home in California and of the magnificence he intended to lavish on his wife, that she finally consented to elope with him, partly because it was romantic.

"Dear mamma will be sure to forgive me," she thought. And she pictured herself coming with her husband in a new elegant carriage, to receive her mother's forgiveness and ask her blessing, and of then carrying her off with her to her home in California, which her lover had so gloriously described.

The evening assigned for the elopement arrived. The day following was to be the much-talked-of birthday of diamonds, on which he was to make known to her his betrothal to Mrs. Lee, and on which also he had, in a tender, significant tone, requested Miss Bell to grant him a private interview.

"What is he looking for a wife! The ladies, as if electrified, started from their apathy and eagerly looked Nell, who had been favored with a look at him, with all sorts of questions concerning him. 'What is he like?' 'Is he tall or short?' 'Is he fat or thin?' 'Is he rich or poor?'

"My sweet Nellie, our engagement will have to be postponed for a while—sorry to disappoint you. In half an hour we would have been off. 'Dear Clara, we will have to little talk one other time. 'My own little, good-bye!' bowing very low to the widow. 'I am sorry our marriage cannot take place just as soon as we intended.'

"What on earth does he mean?" Nellie buried her face in her mother's lap and sobbed hysterically, but was finally soothed by Fred. Hat had been a man who had long been attached to her, but as he had no diamonds, it is to be supposed that he had been slow to find favor in her eyes.

"We will keep our engagement a sweet secret, darling," he said to the widow, "until my birthday, just three weeks hence, it seems a long time to wait, dear one," he said, caressing her, "but it would give you such pleasure to make it known at that day. How satisfactory they will all be, won't they, pet? Now just set your little head to thinking what pretty things you would like me to get for you. Do not be afraid to tell what you fancy, your wish shall be a great favor of us."

"Why, what did I say?" asked she coquettishly. "You said you would never live out of New York." "Well, my home is in San Francisco," he said, significantly.

These complaints, however, were peculiarly forcible. The parties fought with their fists, and the prize fighters, but they frequently introduced balls of iron and stone, with which they often struck fatal blows. They introduced the Cestus which was a heavy glove or gauntlet of thick leather, studded with nails which were equally destructive.

It was a man of powerful frame, who ruled in the mouth which knocked in all his teeth, swallowed them, together with the blood that followed, to reward from his antagonist an injury which he might have to atone for by continuing the fight. There are many instances in ancient times of ferocious bravery, which at the present day would be discarded as a relic of barbarism.

On the farm, and in all the various details of rural and domestic life, prudence and just economy of time and means are essential to the success of the farmer. The earth itself is composed of atoms, and the soil is a mass of particles of matter, which are constantly being renewed and reformed.

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

A Japanese Bedchamber.

Of furniture, in one sense of the word, there is, in a Japanese house, almost none. The casual visitor sees no sofa, chairs, tables, screens, curtains or hangings. In the parlor, or room for receiving guests, are seen in the tokonoma, or raised space, a handsome sword-rack, flower-vases, bronzes, and a hanging scroll.

The early part of the present century running matches were as popular as at the present time. It was then excited by the wonderful and almost incredible performances of one man. This man was Messen Ernst, born in Bergen, Norway, on October 19, 1799. He was the son of a sea captain, and when still a boy entered the English Navy. Although his powers as a runner were displayed even in his boyhood, he made three voyages to the East Indies, and had completed a three-years' cruise on the frigate Calcedonia, before he made a public exhibition of them, which he first did by running a race in London, when nineteen years old.

On the farm, and in all the various details of rural and domestic life, prudence and just economy of time and means are essential to the success of the farmer. The earth itself is composed of atoms, and the soil is a mass of particles of matter, which are constantly being renewed and reformed.

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

A Wonderful Runner.

The early part of the present century running matches were as popular as at the present time. It was then excited by the wonderful and almost incredible performances of one man. This man was Messen Ernst, born in Bergen, Norway, on October 19, 1799. He was the son of a sea captain, and when still a boy entered the English Navy.

On the farm, and in all the various details of rural and domestic life, prudence and just economy of time and means are essential to the success of the farmer. The earth itself is composed of atoms, and the soil is a mass of particles of matter, which are constantly being renewed and reformed.

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."

"I'll say," said Uncle Giles, with a bewildered air, "I don't know what you mean by that. 'No, nothing,' said I; 'so on, don't let me interrupt you.' 'When I was down in the San Juan country, I saw a man who was carrying a gold mine, and that was the end of the matter. The clergy were also liable to trial by battle; and Louis the Fat, in his charter of the Abbey of St. Maur, admitted that a prodigious number of men were engaged in the fight for the rights of the church."